Local Civilian Defense Council Organized; H.D. Mayhugh Named Coordinator; Registration Sat., January 10

The National Civilian Defense Council has been set up by an act of the President of the United States in May, 1941. The President appointed Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York as Director. The Defense Councils are to be organized in every city and county throughout the country. These Councils are set up to train the citizens of each community how to protect themselves and their property. It is necessary that everyone cooperate in making our country more secure during this crisis.

H. D. Mayhugh has been selected as Coordinator by Mayor LaGuardia to organize the Civilian Defense Council in Walton and Boone County.

An executive committee is being formed by the Coordinator, citizens of Walton and Verona to direct the civilians of these two communities.

Thus far the committee consists of the following:

C. W. Ransler, Chairman; Chas. W. Thompson, Vice Chairman; Mrs. Lula Huey, Secretary; A. H. Gaines, Treaurer; R. C. Brakefield; Powers Conrad; D. L. Lusby; Barnett W. Franks; Clinton F. Cleek; W. F. Coop; R. E. Brugh; Dr. R. E. Ryle; Mrs. John L. Vest; Mrs. A. H. Gaines; Mrs. C. W. Ransler; Mrs. Ora Fry; Mrs. W. W. Rouse; Mrs. B. W. Franks, and Mrs. Aleen Conner.

It is the duty of the executive committee to direct the committees of volunteers for the following positions:

First Aid and Nursing; Rationing; Auxiliary Police Force; Health and Social; Fire and Air Raid Wardens, including lighting and alarms; Guard Service; Public Information; Inspection of residents during blackout; Entertainment; Educational Instruction; Typist and Clerical; Registration; Maintenance; Flag and Proper Use; Vital Statistics.

The Civilian Defense Council is asking you to volunteer for the positions outlined in the National Emergency. Please register for the service on Saturday, January 10, 1942 from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at the Walton Town Hall.

The Registrars are Rev. C. J. Alford, Mrs. J. E. Stephenson, Mrs. John Hartman and Mrs. D. Hess Vest. These registrars will be glad to give you instructions and advise in filling out the forms for registration.

It may be well to add here that you will serve only in your immediate community. Let us have everyone 16 years of age and over register for service. It will be educational and constructive.

When we realize the dangers we are facing and the strength of our enemies, we will then heed the call for the defense of our nation. When our sons are taken from us to be placed in our Army, Navy and Air force, we will realize the importance of these organizations. We must fortify ourselves and be ready to back them up by showing them we can keep the home fires burning.

Let us not think the enemy can never bomb nor invade this country. Too many nations thought this too, and where are they today? Prepare for the worst and hope it will never come.

The Civilian Defense Council is for you and your protection, whether it be war or epidemic. Let everyone come out and register. It is your patriotic duty.

Civilian Defense Council,
H. D. Mayhugh, Coordinator.

Cats Win 53-20; Play Pioneers Fri.

The Bearcat basketeers of the Walton-Verona High school resumed their basketball wars on Tuesday evening at the home court with Ludlow being the visitor. The Cats evidently lost none of their zip during the Xmas holidays, as they showed their visitors no mercy, overwhelming them by a score of 53 to 20. The locals were on top throughout, leading at the end of the first period 11-6; at the half 27-7; and at the start of the final quarter 41-12.

DeMolsey and Groger led the bombing attack for the winners, with 10 points each, and they were trailed closely by Mayhugh, Simpson and Welsh, who garnered 9, 8, and 7 markers respectively.

High scorer for the Ludlow boys was Maher, with 8 points.

In the preliminary contest, a fast and scrappy Ludlow second team whipped our reserved by a score of 30 to 23.

Play at Simon Kenton Friday

A game of interest to many in this section, will be that between the Bearcats and Pioneers of Simon Kenton High, on the latter's floor, Friday night, Jan. 9th. The Pioneers have been going great guns this year, as have the Cats, and the tussle Friday night should be a "natural." A packed house is expected to witness the match.

On Tuesday night of next week the Bearcats will be hosts to the Dixie Heights Little Colonels. The Dixie lads are the only ones to date to defeat the locals, and the Blue and White will be looking for revenge. Come out.

The Pioneers will be away from home next Tuesda ynight, going to Silver Grove.

The Time Is Now! Support Red Cross

The war fund has accorded prompt White House endorsement through a proclamation issued by President Franklin D.Roosevelt.

LOAN OFFICE OPENS IN BURLINGTON

The Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association recently opened an office in Burlington to serve Boone County farmers. The Production Credit Ass'n is an organization of farmers to secure credit for farm needs at a low rate of interest on quick term loans. Boone County was selected as the first county in northern Kentucky to have this service available to farmers, according to Lloyd Siekman, Field Representative.

Within the next few months farmers that are planning to expand their 1942 production in the way of food crops, as well as dairy and pork productions to meet the demands of the national defense program should feel a need of a short term loan at a low rate of interest.

TOBACCO LEADERS TO MEET JANUARY 13th

Boone County tobacco leaders will meet at the County Agent's Office, Burlington at 1 p. m. on January 13th to plan the 1942 Tobacco Improvement Program, according to H. R. Forkner. Russell Hunt, tobacco specialist from the College of Agriculture, will meet with growers in planning the program.

Mr. Lents also stated that it is not too late to send him a dollar just in case you have forgotten to send yur dollar for the seals the sales organization mailed to you in November.

Farmers Urged To Vote Saturday

Boone County farmers are urged to vote Saturday, Dec. 10th in the Soil Conservation District referendum, according to C. Liston Hempfling, Chairman of the County Soil Conservation District Organization Committee.

Mr. Hempfling states that Boone County should have the many benefits that can be derived from a district that he has seen in other counties and that the county will lose these benefits unless large numbers of farmers come out and vote. Failure to vote is the greatest obstacle toward securing a district as there is no known opposition.

The district, if formed, will enable farmers through a county corporate soil conservation district body to secure advantages of Government aid thrugh use of CCC labor, WPA labor, power machinery to construct ponds, terraces, etc., and other soil conservation practices that work for the general soil improvement. These services in the future can only be secured through the formation of a district.

The services of the district, if formed, will be available to farmers who express voluntary desire to cooperate and to work out a soil conservation program for their farmers.

Five convenient voting places have been set up in the county. These referendum voting places and referendum committeemen are as follows:

Hebron—Hebron Bank. All the lands within the voting precincts of Petersburg, Bullittsville, Hebron and Constance. Edgar S. Graves, R-1, Burlington; Chas. Hempfling, Taylorsport; Virgil Campbell, R-1, Burlington; Howard Huey, R-1, Petersburg.

County Farm Loan Association To Meet

The Boone County National Farm Loan Association will hold its annual meeting in the Court House at Burlington, Jan. 15th at 1:30 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. In addition to the hearing of reports and election of officers, H. R. Forkner, County Agent, will address the meeting on "The Farmers' Place in National Defense." This is the only scheduled address at this meeting and the Association officials hope for a good attendance of its members. In dispensing with the expense of a lunch and an all day meeting, the Association is able to purchase an additional $100 U. S. Defense Savings Bond. The Directors have already ordered that this investment be made.

The Association owns $1,900 in Consolidated Federal Land Bank Bonds, which are now selling at a premium, and the Directors have ordered these bonds sold and the proceeds reinvested in United States Defense Savings Bonds.

The Secretary-Treasurer, A. H. Renaker, reports that there are fewer delinquent borrowers than at any time within the past several years, at this time of the year, and that it is anticipated no delinquencies will be on the books of the association when the balance of this year's crop of tobacco is marketed.

This speaks for a healthy financial condition of the farmers of Boone County, whose loans exceed $800,000.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Washington is burning the midnight oil.

Unity behind the Victory Program is a real, almost tangible thing. It can be seen in the earnest manner in which the Administration, industry and labor have accepted their respective roles. There are still many rough spots, but criticisms offered are helpful. All "fight-to-the-finish" stuff between Administration and critics has been shelved for the present.

One touchy matter which has yet to be straightened out is the status of the closed shop. Any extension or curtailment of the closed shop will not only influence production schedules for the duration of the war, but will also affect the course of national readjustment afterwards.

The latest battle for a closed shop, resulted in strengthening the unions' position. The facts of the captive coal mines dispute bears this out. In spite of the fact that public opinion was against the strike in the steel company-owned mines; in spite of the fact that the National Defense Mediation Board twice ruled in favor of the steel companies; in spite of the fact that the President personally intervened to effect a cessation of the strike; and in spite of the fact that the Smith Bill designed to prevent strikes was passed by almost a 2 to 1 vote in the House, John L. Lewis got his closed shop.

The decision of the Arbitration Board appointed to settle the issues in the captive coal mines dispute was in favor of a union shop. The distinction between a union shop and a closed shop is a legalistic one. For all practical purposes, they are the same.

Business circles in Washington draw the conclusion that the Administration is still not willing to let organized labor lose a decision.

On top of the captive coal mine mess comes the announcement that the Senate Committee on Education and Labor will postpone further consideration of legislation to prevent strikes, pending the outcome of a conference between spokesmen for management and labor which the President has called.

There is not too much enthusiasm here for the conference. Prior to the declaration of war by Japan, there was practically none at all. But under war conditions sentiment changed and many Senators who had been prepared to support labor legislation swung over to the conference idea.

The boys around town are saying that this is organized labor's big effort to prevent the passage of strike legislation—and that the Administration would like to see it successful. Industry doesn't like the idea, but feels that it is its public obligation to come and cooperate. Many Congressmen don't like the idea either. The formulation of a national war-time labor policy is the job of the President, the Senate and the House, they think, and responsibility should not be shifted to private conferees. The interests to be considered are far wider than those of labor and management alone. Even the blessings of the Executive branch of the Government cannot give these interests voice at the conference.

The news situation in Washington is more confusing than ever. On one hand, President Roosevelt warns the nation not to listen to gossip attributed to "authoritative sources." On the other hand, Cabinet members and others who are "in the know" caution newspapermen not to reveal the source of the information that is given to them—which means more stories from "authoritative sources." Naturally there is a wide divergence of opinion as to what should or should not be printed. No one wants to give away any military secrets, but the public should not be kept entirely in the dark. It is a situation which will clear up with time and the application of common sence by all concerned.

Bright spots of the week: The first heavy tank ever built in the United States roared through a series of tough tests with ease—a tribute to the productive ability of American industry.

There was no great economic panic as a result of the declarations of war against Japan, Italy and Germany. The stock market accepted the declarations calmly, and a few hours later had discounted them. That's something to be thankful for.

Essentials such as food and clothing are available in sufficient quantity. Consumers will, however, have to learn to do without a good many of the trimmings. Almost everything which requires essential materials is removed from private consumption.

Money Talks

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

MONEY TALKS

The United States is now at war on two oceans. In the months ahead it is not at all unlikely that we will find ourselves fighting on three continents also.

I recently stated that to defeat the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis will require diversion from two-thirds to three-fourths of our industrial facilities to munitions making.

As events of the past few weeks unfold, we get a clearer picture of what will be necessary to carry on this war. Officials in Washington believe that it will take an expenditure of upward of fifty billion dollars annually or about half the national income. Part of this money will come from taxes and the remainder from Government borrowing.

We must expect a sharp increase in all taxes in 1942. Financing a modern war means that all past tax policies must be discarded and new ones formulated. There is no doubt but what individual income taxes will be much higher for the middle calss, and we may also expect a payroll tax of around ten percent. There is now talk of a general manufacturers' sales tax. It would not surprise me to see some type of sales tax enacted before 1942 comes to a close.

Defense bonds must be purchased in larger quantities by individuals, banks and all savings institutions.

Other things we may expect are labor "registration," to assure our farms and factories of adequate manpower. This is especially apt to happen if we increase our armed forces to from five to ten million men. The Secretary of War has already stated that we must conserve farm and factory labor and especially skilled labor. Labor behind the lines is important in modern warfare. In World War I it was estimated that it took five men at home, in factories and farms, to keep one soldier in the field. At present we estimate that it takes sixteen men at home, to keep one soldier in the field.

We may also expect food rationing if the diversion of manpower to military services impairs our food production.

Our merchant marine must be doubled if our armed forces are to be sent abroad. These are but a few of the things we must expect as the war progresses. As others occur, I shall discuss them with you.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY
Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Early Rising

Our lives have become so complex that regular hours for everybody are no longer possible or advisible. But when most of us were farmer folk or very closely allied to them, things were different. Consequently what was the standard for a community became almost as severe as the laws of the Medes and Persians. To deviate very much from this standard meant that one was deliberately lazy.

The matter of early rising became almost a fetish. Just what was or is the correct time to rise I have never known. But the idea of getting up before the sun, even in the long days of summer, seems to have been the least that one could do. To rise, like the woman in the Proverbs, "while it is yet night" seemed to be most virtuous. Some of our neighbors regarded this in the same light as ringing the farm dinner bell some hour earlier than any one else. You could get up any time after three o'clock in the morning and see the lights on in the cottages, where the woman of the house was cooking breakfast, while out at the barn the glow of the lantern showed that the man of the house was feeding the stock and milking the cows. When I taught my first school, I boarded with a farm family that always ate both breakfast and supper by lamplight. The 4:05 train used to pass while we were at breakfast. I do not know to this day when the housewife slept, for she was up washing dishes when I went to sleep and up with breakfast prepared when I awoke. The neighborhood seemed to demand this killing routine, and my landlady and landlord would have browen statute laws far more quickly than neighborhood customs.

The thing that always amused and somewhat angered me when I was a farm boy was that we got up just as early when there was nothing to do as when the farm needed our every attention. On Sunday mornings, when we could have had a beauty nap of several hours in length, we were rousted out of our warm beds to feed the stock and eat breakfast just as if it were a morning that would see us starting with a load of tobacco to the county seat or a morning when hog-killing was the order of the day. We boys always declared that our fathers got us up earlier on the mornings after we had been to a party or had called on our girls up the creek and had thus got home late.

The strength of such social customs as early rising is much greater than that of mere superstitions. I have never known a superstition that was believed by a whole neighborhood; some skeptic would laugh at it and live to tell the story. But hundreds of these same brave souls were afraid to dare social custom by staying in bed until after sunrise, or serving any kind of breakfast except the standardized one of the community, or having meals at times other than at the foreordained and predestinated hours. A dinner served in the evening would have branded the woman doing such a rash thing as either affected by Northern novels or as showing signs of mental decay. It just was not done in respectable families.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

Those physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than one something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

WE'RE ALL DEFENSE WORKERS

SUCCESS in our war effort means that every citizen must do his job well—whether he be selectee, farmer, business man, factory worker or housewife. We're all part of a great army of producers upon whose efforts victory depends.

As suppliers of a service essential to production, your electric company realizes its responsibilities in the defense picture. This is a war in which electric power ranks in importance with man-power, not only because it speeds the output of vital war materials in industry, but because it releases the time and energy of individuals for other important defense activities. Now, more than ever before, it is our No. 1 job to keep an ample supply of electricity flowing uninterruptedly to the industries, farms, homes, schools and business houses in the territory we serve.

We are ready for the task at hand. Because continuous service is a tradition of the utility business, we have remained in a constant state of preparedness. Our men have been trained to act quickly in an emergency. Our equipment has been maintained in first class operating condition. Our power facilities have been planned with an eye to future demands so that, barring unanticipated requirements, our present standard of service can be maintained, with a minimum use of vital materials needed for national defense.

We are proud to be a part of the nation's great army of defense workers. We have enlisted for the duration and stand shoulder to shoulder with other citizens in the communities we serve in working for final victory.

Good Resolutions

AT THE beginning of the New Year, one is apt to hear a great deal about good resolutions and the figurative turning over of a new leaf. And how pleasant it is to feel this glow of good will, and to think gratefully of fresh opportunities to be better! Perhaps one is heard to assert solemnly that only wisdom and independence shall characterize his conduct in the future. Many purpose more earnestly than ever before to put a seal upon their lips, lest they may offend by foolish or factious remarks. Others resolve to avoid the pitfalls of intemperance, indecision, or delay. They hope that human ability and judgment will help them to withstand temptation at all times.

Who has not learned, however, that one's noblest intentions sometimes give way under stress of circumstances? One can resist the tendency, however, to lapse into the wrong thought habits of self-condemnation, self-pity, or cynicism. For real help can come through a right understanding of God, who is the sole source and power of good resolutions. God's wisdom and love support and give scope to each heavenly desire and design. . . .

God's perfect creation, man and the universe, consists of spiritual ideas, which manifest His nature, power, and substance. The allness of God, good, precludes the possibility that there can be a real and evil power to oppose Him. It is false material sense which seems to hide divine reality and to reverse the activity of good.

There is encouragement for all in the words of Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, who says (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 326): "The purpose and motive to live aright can be gained now. This point won, you have started as you should. . . . Working and praying with true motives, your Father will open the way. 'Who did hinder you, that ye should not obey the truth?'" Stability, dominion, progress, and joy belong to the real man. Therefore, there is nothing which can hinder the true thinker's efforts to realize and claim his perfect, spiritual heritage.

To fear or ignore evil's claims is not to destroy them. It is right and necessary to detect and correct through one's understanding of Truth the human hindrances which seem to postpone the enjoyment of good. Honest self-analysis may uncover the errors of procrastination, vanity, or dread of human opinion, which often seem to reverse the best of intentions. Unworthy companionship, love of ease, or a limited personal sense of man's capabilities may claim to cultivate instability. There are those who become so engrossed in domestic cares or social demands that spiritual inducements do not find in them a loving and eager response. And surely health and morals are not improved by fixing the attention on supposed diseased symptoms and human failings.

How wise it is to see through these deceptive material evidences of evil and grant to them no power, intelligence, or reality! For God, good, is the only Mind, and His law is forever expressed in right action. Spiritual understanding of the real helps one to distinguish steadfastness from self-will, quietness from stagnation, divine reflection from arrogant human efficiency, and unselfish affection from personal attachment.

There is a helpful lesson in the experience of Peter. It is related in the Gospel of Mark that Jesus, who was aware of his impending ordeal on the cross, said to his disciples (Mark 14:27), "All ye shall be offended because of me this night." And he further said to Peter (14:30), "Even this night, before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice." How promptly and fervently Peter protested his fidelity to the Master, even his willingness to die with him! A multitude then came and took Jesus to the palace of the high priest, where he was to suffer brutal indignities. Peter followed him at a distance and took refuge with the servants. Here he was pointed out three times as a companion of Jesus, but each time he denied all knowledge of him. Then, "the second time the cock crew," Peter remembered Jesus' prophetic words, "and when he thought thereon he wept" (Mark 14:72).

Peter's redemption from sin and remorse came through loving service and obedience to the Master's demand (John 21:17), "Feed my sheep." Fidelity to the ever-present Christ and love for God and man enabled him to heal the sick, restore to life those who had died, and to leave wise spiritual counsel for all.

The real man's complete spiritual perfection is manifested step by step; and watchfulness, courage, humility, and love hasten our progress heavenward. . . .—The Christian Science Monitor.

91 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

Pre-World War I Days

One of the most important steps ever taken by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad came in November, 1909, when it acquired the Wasioto and Black Mountain Railroad, then being built through Harlan County, Ky. The line was completed to Harlan Courthouse in July, 1911, and to Benham, some 30 miles farther up Poor Fork Branch, in September, 1911. The first carloads of coal left Harlan County on August 25, 1911, from the Aldrian Mine of the old Wallins Creek Coal Company.

The years just before America's entrance into World War I, were featured by the dedication of a new Union Station at Memphis, Tenn., in 1913, and by a terrific hurricane which struck the Gulf Coast on September 29, 1915.

At first the War which raged abroad had an adverse effect upon rail traffic, but by the end of 1914 business had begun to pick up and thereafter boomed, with America's railroads annually being called upon to handle an ever-increasing tonnage. The L. & N.'s gross earnings in 1916, just prior to America's entrance into the war, totaled approximately $65,000,000, an increase of several million dollars over the previous year. The emergency found the Louisville & Nashville prepared, for it had been gradually expanding its equipment and facilities during the previous decade.

Prior to the inception of the National Defense effort the Old Reliable annually spent millions of dollars for new equipment and to otherwise improve its physical plant. The present Emergency has caused a redoubled effort, and outstanding authorities for improvement work on this railroad now total more than $15,000,000.

Defense Comes First in Auto Industry

In a "visual report," staged at its Proving Ground at Milford, Mich., General Motors gives visiting editors a demonstration of the Corporation's national defense production activities, dramatizing the theme "Defense Comes First."

Above, a field maneuver is simulated with GMC and Chevrolet army trucks and a Canadian-built tank with G. M. Diesel power, while flying overhead are Lockheed Interceptors, propelled by twin G.M. liquid-cooled Allison engines.

Lower left, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman of General Motors, and Charles F. Kettering, Vice President, inspect a machine gun, one of thousands being turned out by four General Motors plants in Michigan, Ohio and New York.

Lower right, Charles E. Wilson, President of General Motors, looks through the sighting device of an Oerlikon anti-aircraft gun, still another G. M. defense product.

At present every G. M. manufacturing division is engaged in turning out one or more defense items, which are being produced in about 60 plants in 35 different cities. The Corporation reports that its production and delivery of essential defense materials in 1941 will exceed $400,000,000.

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth,
And the world must wait to see;
For every man in an honored place
Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2:21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with other humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 36) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unbelief (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

The scene changes—the little family is back in Nazareth in the humble home—and there we see

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: He grew!" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from babyhood to maturity; for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

MORGANSVILLE

"Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God." Heartiest New Year greetings to staff and readers.

As we enter the New Year may each of us strive to be the kind of a Christian God wants us to be. "I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown' and he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God, that shall be to you better than a light and safer than a known way'."

Deepest appreciation on Christmas Day was a delicious turkey dinner with trimmings from Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Ballinger, who were pleasant callers.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary Steely and Mr. James Trimble was quietly performed by Rev. W. A. M. Wood of Erlanger, Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steely of near Atwood. Enjoying the wedding supper were Mr. and Mrs. Ancil Steely and children Mary, Patsy and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill Elsteen, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Steely, Mrs. Katherine Middleton, Mr. Roy Edwards, all of Covington, Mrs. W. H. Wright and Miss Anna Ray Steely of near Independence. Their many friends extend heartiest congratulations.

"PERFECT SHOPPING CENTER" FOR WOMEN IS PROUD BOAST OF JOHN R. COPPIN COMPANY

Their intent of creating a perfect shopping center for women has been accomplished by the executives of the John R. Coppin Co. on the remodeled second floor of the store.

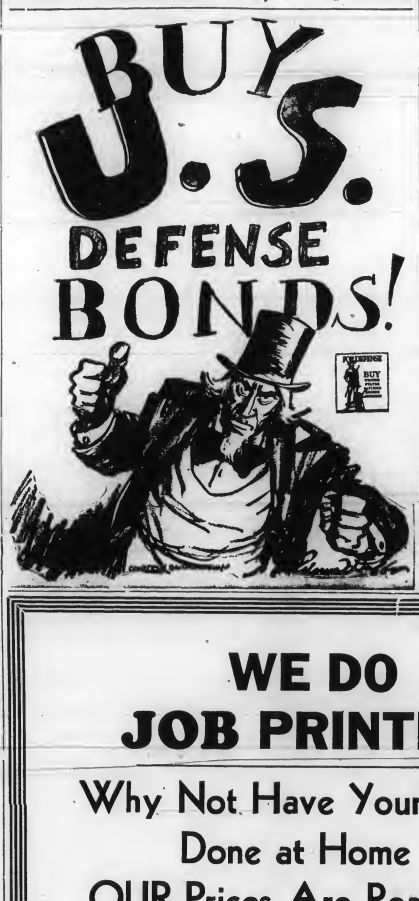
Modern art has had its way in the streamlining and broadening of the aisles, installation of the new wall shadow boxes and the resurfacing of the display tables with light maple wood.

For the shopper whose time is rationed, the tall, metal lettering which designates the various ready-to-wear departments, including coats and dresses, lingerie, corsets, infant, children, millinery and yarn will prove a particular boon. On the other hand, comfortable chairs have been installed for shoppers who have time to spare.

The enlarged infants' department is equipped with scales so that mothers may keep close tab on baby's weight.

Privacy if offered the knitter who visits the yarn department, which has been enlarged and partially partitioned from the surrounding departments. Two instructors are on duty to help unravel problems that beset the novice knitter.

All lighting is in the approved indirect manner.



A convenient powder bar dominates the new and enlarged sanitary rest and washrooms, which have ultra-violet ray protection.

Three tones of blue are blended skillfully, are combined with plaid wallpaper in Chinese red in this section of the second floor.

In dedicating the second floor to fastidious women shoppers, the remaining floors have not been overlooked in the new grooming process.

One of the most modern improvements is the fur storage vault of 3000 coat capacity, which is kept at a constant temperature of 50 degrees. No detail has been neglected by the management in insuring the life of the furs stored which are first placed in a lethal gas chamber for killing all germs, for a period of 24 hours, before being removed to the vault.

"Meet at Coppin's" is fast becoming the by-word among northern Kentucky shoppers of the feminine sex.

COLORED HOMEMAKERS HOLD DECEMBER MEETING

The Colored Homemakers of Walton met on December 17th at the home of Mrs. Joe Howlett on the Walton-Nicholson Highway.

Mrs. George Crutcherfield had a very nice Xmas program, which was enjoyed by everyone. The roll call was answered by each member telling what kind of a Xmas they would like. Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn gave the lesson, "Meals For Special Occasions." Mrs. Curtis Moore also gave some useful ideas and points on the lesson. A delicious menu was enjoyed by Mrs. J. Ingram, Mrs. Robert Sleet, Jr., Mrs. Elmer Ross, Mrs. Walter Sleet, Mrs. Curtis Moore, Mrs. Geo. Crutcherfield, Mrs. Estill Sleet, Mrs. James Riddell, Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. Clint Riley, Miss Anna Pearl Ross, one visitor, Miss Doris Johnson, and the hostess, Mrs. Joe Howlett. After supper, presents were exchanged. We were disappointed because our other leader, Mrs. R. P. Hughes, was unable to be with us.

The next meeting will be on Jan. 14, 1942 at the home of Mrs. Clint Riley. Since there is no lesson for January, the club will probably do some Red Cross work.—Reporter.

Annual Kenton County Poultry School Thursday, Jan. 8, 1942

The Sixteenth annual poultry school will be held at the Independence Court House, Thursday, January 8, 1942.

Mr. Fred J. Lowe, President of the Kenton County poultry association will preside at the meeting. Robert W. Scott is vice chairman and D. C. McDannold is secretary.

The school is sponsored by the County Poultry Association, in cooperation with the Agricultural Extension Service and the Poultry Department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Ky., for the purpose of bringing the poultrymen together to study and discuss their poultry problems and to have the Specialists in poultry husbandry from the University bring the latest improved practices to the poultrymen in the county.

The school will begin at 10:00 a. m., Eastern Standard Time and continues until 4:00 p. m.

It is important for poultrymen to attend both the morning and the afternoon session, because the afternoon discussion will be based on the Fundamental Problems presented at the morning session.

Poultry and The National Defense Program

This will be the theme for the Leaders Training meeting at the Poultry school at Independence on January 8th.

Mr. J. E. Humphrey and W. M. Insko from the Poultry Department will outline the goal of the Kenton County and Kentucky poultry producers in the National Defense Program.

All Poultrymen Invited .

All poultry producers should make every effort to attend the poultry meeting and learn what they can do to help in the Defense Program.

The Present Situation and the Long Time Objective will be presented at the meeting.

BRACHT STATION

(Delayed)

Here is to each and everyone, a 1942 New Year's Wish from your Bracht Station correspondent.

Dear Friends

I can not find a truer word,
Nor better, to address you,
No song or poem that I've heard
Is sweeter than "God Bless You."
God bless you! This I've wished you,
All that Christian joy possesses,
For their can truly be no joy,
Unless, indeed, God blesses.
God bless you! So I breathe a charm,
Lest grief's dark night oppress you,
For how can sorrow bring you harm,
If it is God's way to bless you?

And so through all your earthly days,
May shadows touch you never,
But if they should, God's blessing
Will keep you safe forever.

It seems that almost everyone enjoyed Christmas very much, amid all the darkness which has been placed upon we Americans.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton spent the holiday season with home folk in Maysville.

Cecil Sebree and family have moved to their new home recently purchased near Sherman. We regret losing these good friends and neighbors from our midst.

Sorry to report Grandad Sebree not so well at this writing. He is confined to his bed again.

Miss Janet Huff is visiting in Cincinnati this week.

The death angel has again visited our community and claimed as its victim Mr. Thomas Powers. He had been in bad health for several years, having been confined to his bed and room for the past several months. Mr. Powers was a widely known man, who had many frends and possessed many good qualities. He never complained or grumbled, but as long as he was able, went about his farm duties on his crutches. Everyone with whom you came in contact, spoke well of Mr. Powers. One of his good neighbors, while standing by his death bed watching the last ray of life ebb away, was heard to remark, "a good man passing to the other shore without an enemy in the world—he always had a good word for his neighbor." O friends, what a wonderful life to live, what a joy it would be to know that all of us could have these kind of remarks made about us when it is time for our passing from life into death. The sorrowing friends have our sympathy.

A Week Of The War

Twenty-six nations, including the U. S., Britian, Russia and China, signed an agreement pledging their military and economic resources in a finish fight against the Axis and banning and separate peace. The nations also subscribed to "a common program of purposes and principles" embodied in the Roosevelt-Churchill "Atlantic Charter."

The signatories of the declaration include Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, the Dominican Republic Salvador, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, India, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Poland, South Africa and Jugoslavia. The declaration may it said, be "adhered to by other nations which are, or which may be, rendering material assistance and contributions to the struggle for victory over Hitlerism."

The War Front

The Navy said it had evacuated Cavite and the Army announced Japanese troops entered Manila which earlier in the week had been declared an open city by General MacArthur, commanding the U. S. Forces in the Far East. Before entry of the Japanese, American and Philippine troops were withdrawn and all defense installations removed or destroyed.

General MacArthur earlier reported the enemy had "mercilessly bombed" churches, hospitals, convents, schools and other civilian installations in Manila after it was declared an open city, whereas they had only attempted bombing military installations previously. The President sent a message to the Philippine Islands pledging that their "freedom shall be redeemed and their independence established and protected—" During the week, the Navy reported sinking two additional enemy ships and said three U. S. destroyers were attacked, but only slightly damaged.

Production For War

OPM reported $78,212,000,000 has been authorized for war purposes. The President told a press conference that although present spending is at the rate of 27 percent of the estimated 1942 national income of $100,000,000,000 production will be stepped up so that by next July 1 the nation will be spending at the rate of $50,000,000,000 a year—or half the national income.

Asked about reports that Canadian, British and U. S. production would be pooled, resulting virtually in the end of the Lend-Lease program as such, the President said that military resources have been pooled since the Japanese attack. The matter of repayment would be adjusted, he said, and would largely depend on where the articles sent other nations were used.

Ships

The Maritime Commission said the ship-a-day goal in launchings of new ships has been reached and by the second quarter of 1942 delivery should reach two ships a day. The Commission took over 16 Finnish ships that have been tied up in U. S. ports. The Navy announced launching of a destroyer, a floating workshop and a minesweeper, and said keels were laid for two more destroyers. The Navy also said it is converting the French liner Normandie into an auxiliary.

Labor Supply and Training

President Roosevelt denounced as "stupid" and "unjust" the increasing discharges of loyal, efficient workers in American industries "simply because they were born abroad or because they have foreign-sounding names." He said such unfair discharges engender "the very distrusts and disunity on which our enemies are counting."

OPM Associate Director Hillman announced almost 2,500,000 persons have been enrolled for training for war industry work since July 1, 1940. He asked public vocational schools to expand their courses to permit use of all their facilities on a "round-the-clock" basis. Some war contractors are planning to employ as many new men in the next six months as they have in the last eighteen, he said.

Autos and Tires

The OPM banned all sales of new passenger automobiles and the SPAB approved an OPM plan to halt production of these vehicles "within a few weeks." The temporary ban on the retail sale, delivery, purchase, or lease of new passenger cars and of new light and heavy trucks will remain in effect until January 15 at which time a permanent rationing program will be put in effect.

OPM delegated to the Office of Price Administration authority to withhold all new tires except for essential health, safety and industrial services. OPA set up tire-rationing boards in each county of the nation and issued regulations providing no tire can be obtained even for "essential" users unless a local garageman appointed as inspector has certified the need, the local board has approved the application and the number of tires sold in each county is within the county quota. New tires were defined as those used less than 1,000 miles. No new restrictions were placed on the sale of retreaded or recapped tires.

Prices

Price Administrator Henderson set maximum manufacturers' prices for household cooking and heating stoves and for cigarettes, and issued a temporary schedule for rugs and carpets. He sent a letter to all wholesalers and retailers of sugar stating the responsibility for keeping stable the price of sugar now rests with the nation's retailers. He set top prices for 39 grades of imported green coffee, and revised previous schedules for some 1,800 fats and oils as well as for Douglas fir doors, paperboard and cotton goods.

Opportunities for War Service

The War Department announced it will employ American-born civilian pilots between 21 and 46 to ferry aircraft from U. S. factories to nations receiving Lend-Lease aid. The Air Corps will train a limited number of men 20 to 27 years old in meteorology. Both groups may receive Reserve commissions. Third and fourth-year medical students and first-year internes may obtain Reserve commissions in the Army and Navy, and will be permitted to complete their medical training before being ordered to active duty. Between 200 and 300 additional commissions in the Naval Reserve Civil Engineers Corps are available for college graduates with limited practical engineering experience. Former non-commissioned Marine Regular and Reserve officers may re-enlist in the rank held when last discharged, if they have not been out of the Corps more than four years.

The Maritime Commission lowered admission requirements for maritime cadets and cut their training time in half. The Civil Service Commission issued a call for thousands of stenographers needed urgently for national defense work in positions paying $1,440 a year to start. Application forms may be obtained at any first or second-class postoffice.

Army

The War Department authorized return to active duty by February 1 of all inactive enlisted Reservists—the majority former trainees and National Guardsmen recently released from active duty. The Department said it will continue voluntary enlistment of men from 18 to 35. The Department adopted a uniform system for temporary promotion of all officers on the basis of merit.

Aliens

Attorney General Biddle ordered all Japanese, German and Italian aliens to surrender to local police authorities by 11 p. m., Jan. 5 all radio transmitters, short-wave radio sets, cameras, and firearms of any description. Mr. Biddle amended regulations governing travel of an alien enemy to permit limited movement in certain cases where special permission is granted.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture reported supplies of agricultural commodities are at a high level with record production of many items. The general level of prices received by farmers during the month ended December 15 was 42 points above the corresponding period last year. OPM granted farm equipment manufacturers 83 percent of materials used in 1940 for new machinery and 150 percent of 1940 materials to produce spare parts.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!
A CALL IN THE NIGHT
We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs, then suddenly, a scream! We hurried upstairs and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.
In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.
I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour? We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.
Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets this may be just what you need!

Can We Do Less?

Word has been received that during the recent "High Seas American Red Cross Roll Call," the splendid men on the six U. S. warships sunk at Pearl Harbor, contributed $816 to the Red Cross. These men—many of whom died on Dec. 7th—joined the Red Cross to give a helping hand to their fellow men. Can we do less than honor their generosity, in memoriam, by giving generously to the Red Cross War Fund campaign? Our contributions will directly help their comrades at arms, for the Red Cross will draw heavily upon its $50.000.000 War Fund to increase the scope of its traditional service to the men of the armed forces.

Keep Your Maid Spick and Span

IS there some one in your town, a Mrs. Thoughtful perhaps, who seems to have amazing luck with household help? But if you look more closely, you'll find that it's system, not luck that has made her maid a Priceless Pearl.

The system, as explained by Esther Allen in the January Good Housekeeping, is simply that the wise housewife took her new employe on a tour of the house, showed her the prettily furnished maid's room and spotless bath with a supply of soap, towels and all the necessaries. And then she gave the girl a paper on which was typed:

"In this household, everyone expects everyone else to be neat and attractive. We feel that it is just as important to bathe at least once a day and be spick-and-span as it is for the house to be kept clean and orderly.

"You'll find a hand brush in the bathroom, for a good scrub, and manicure tools in the dresser drawer. Clean, well-kept hands and nails are half the battle in neatness. There's a clothesbrush, too, for that final brush-off after you're dressed and hair-combed.

"In the dresser drawer there is a jar of the deodorant used every day by all the members of the household. When you need more, just ask for it.

"Please wear a hairnet when cooking and serving. You may dislike them; but they keep your hair tidy — and no stray hairs will be blamed on you!

"Use rouge, lipstick, nail polish if you wish; but on duty, please use them in moderation."

Yes, It's Mincemeat

When it's holiday time, mincemeat lovers—of which there are many—are "all out" for mince pie. And that brings to mind the fact that if mincemeat has such a popular flavor you ought to serve it in other ways as well. It makes delicious cakes and cookies. And puddings! Mm! Here is a recipe for Mincemeat Pineapple Pudding, using the prepared mincemeat which comes in one and two-pound cans, just to give you an idea of what this excellent food does for puddings:

Mincemeat Pineapple Pudding

Mix together—
3 cups soft bread crumbs (packed in)
¾ cup mincemeat
1 cup shredded pineapple
1 cup pineapple juice.

Pour mixture into buttered casserole. Dot with—
2 tablespoons butter.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 45 minutes or until browned. Serve with a hard sauce or a fluffy sauce.

Hard Sauce

Cream until very soft—
½ cup butter.
Add gradually creaming until smooth—
1 cup confectioners' sugar.
Add—
1½ teaspoons vanilla.
Keep in cool place until served.

Fluffy Sauce

Beat until quite stiff—
1 egg white.
Add—
6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar (a tablespoon at a time). Beat with rotary egg beater after each addition.
Mix together—
1 egg yolk, beaten
Pinch of salt
¼ teaspoon vanilla.
Fold beaten egg yolk into the white, then fold in—
¼ cup whipping cream, whipped after measuring.
If not used at once, keep cool and mix well just before serving.

Quick Combination

You cut down on both time and cost when you combine the meat in your meal with prepared cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Furthermore, you find the tangy sauce is a "natural" with the meats, serving as an accent for their savoriness. Hence the value of the following recipe for prepared spaghetti with frankfurters as your choice for an informal holiday supper. Give it credit for being inexpensive enough for everyday—but grand for parties, too.

Spaghetti with Pigs in Blankets

Prepare by making a long lengthwise slit in each—
6 frankfurters.
Spread on the inside of each—
India relish
Prepared yellow mustard.
Wrap around frankfurters—
6 slices bacon. Fasten the ends of the bacon with toothpicks, then place them on a rack under the broiler flame. Broil for 10 minutes or until bacon is cooked.
In the meantime, heat—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese.
Turn spaghetti onto platter and top with the broiled frankfurters. Serves 6.

Farm Machinery School Planned

Boone County is planning to have a farm machinery school in the near future, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The purpose of this school will be to discuss problems relating to new machinery purchases and to assist farmers in repairing and making greater possible use of old machinery.

It is understood there will be a market shortage of new machinery available, and war needs will require all possible materials. Farmers are urged NOW to

(1) Go over all old machinery and to put it in first class working condition.

(2) Check all new parts that will be needed and order them from your machinery dealer and order NOW. DON'T WAIT. Increase production of needed food products demands use of all available machinery. New parts may not be available later in the year.

(3) If you have surplus machinery, make a list of kinds, state of repair, price, etc., and mail this report to the county agent's office or to your machinery dealer. Some one before the year is over will probably need this machinery badly.

We, as farm people, have a big job in the present war. Our job—the job assigned to us is to produce an abundance of food for freedom. "Food for Freedom" is the slogan of agriculture. We will do this job better if we balance up, organize and develop our agricultural program with the understanding of present work in preparation for future needs.

Urged To Attend Farm, Home Conv.

All farmers and farm women are urged to attend the State Farm and Home Convention at the College of Agriculture, Lexington on January 27, 28, 29 and 30, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. A splendid program on various farm and home problems has been planned

The Farm and Home Convention represents the Annual State meeting in which outstanding authorities on various farm problems are brought to farm people to discuss those problems expected to have greatest future effect on rural people.

There is usually a large number of Boone County people who attend this meeting. It is usually possible for groups to go together and save on transportation expenses. Those who find they do not have a way to go should contact the county agent's office. Phone Burlington 412.

TO SPEAK AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING

Dr. Geo. V. Moore of Lexington will preach at the Walton Christian Church, Sunday morning, at the regular worship hour.

Carroll Man Held On Forgery Charges

James Webber, 22, alias James Duncan, of near Carrollton, was arrested Saturday at Sparta, on a forgery charge. He was taken to Warsaw, where he had given two forged checks and in lieu of a $1.000 bond, was placed in the Gallatin County jail. His case will be tried at the next session of the Circuit Court at Warsaw.

Sunday, Town Marshal, R. E. Brugh, Tom Percival, Clinton F. Cleek, and the editor went to Warsaw, and Webber was identified as the same man who gave Mr. Percival a forged check for $8 on December 20th. This check was made out payable to James Duncan, with the name, Robert Chambers, as the signature.

Webber obtained the blank check at the Walton Post Office. Later, he entered the Percival store and purchased a pair of sox and a pair of shoes. The check for $8 was given Mr. Percival, and Webber received the change and hurriedly departed. Mr. Percival soon discovered the check was a forgery, but the man could not be found, and nothing had been heard of him until Saturday, with his arrest at Sparta. A prominent scar on the face was the clue that led to Webber's arrest.

RAISE FUNDS FOR WAR RELIEF FUND

Mrs. Mattie Griffith, the Citizenship Chairman of the New Haven Homemakers Club, started the ball rolling by having her club the first in the county to make an effort to raise funds for the $2,000 War Relief Fund Boone County is asked to raise. On the evening of Dec. 30, the club had an oyster soup at the Richwood Community House.

A steady stream of guests arrived, declaring the soup, sandwiches and pie, the very best. Everyone worked hard and seemed to feel she was beginning to do "her bit!"

The final total of the money raised was $51.00. Homemakers' Clubs of every other community, here is your challenge.

Plan for Fair Grounds Improvement

Earl Welch, Agricultural Engineer, and Prof. N. R. Elliott, Landscape Architect, College of Agriculture, will assist the Boone County Fair Grounds Committee in blue printing long time plans for grounds improvement, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Plans are being developed for landscaping the grounds, construction of a large lake and location of permanent buildings. It is understood that it may be many years before some of the blue printed plans can be developed. The plans will be developed part by part, as fast as sufficient funds are available.

Pledges for the purchase of the grounds are being paid in daily. However, John Conner, Hebron Treasure of the 4-H and Utopia Council and Fair Grounds Purchasing Committee, reports several hundred dollars in pledges must be paid in immediately, if the final payment on the grounds is to be made by Thursday of this week. All pledgees who have not paid are urged to do so immediately. The committee is also glad to accept new pledges that will be used to erect permanent buildings.

LOCAL FARM PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED AT COMMUNITY MEETINGS

Boone County farmers in ten community centers are planning their local community farm improvement programs for 1942, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The programs are planned with the understanding that farmers know their local problems better than any other group and that many of these problems can best be solved through the friendly and cooperatively planning by farmers themselves as to the goals to be accomplished.

Much agricultural progress has been made through the sound improvement programs planned and carried out in the past. The schedule of community meetings held and to be held is as follows:

S. K. and Dixie H. Fall Before Bearcats

The local Bearcat basketballers were really put to the test the past week, but were able to come through with a clean slate. Their fourth and fifth straight wins, and nineth and tenth of the season, were at the expense of the two Kenton County High Schools—Simon Kenton and Dixie Heights.

Last Friday night the Cats went to the Simon Kenton floor where the Pioneers furnished the opposition—and we mean opposition. This game was a "natural" and both players and fans were near "nervous wrecks" by the time the "battle" was over. The teams battled each other to a "standstill," and it was just before the end of the contest that Pennington tossed in a fielder to give the locals the win.

At the end of each period, except the final, the score was tied. 12-12 at the end of the first quarter, 17-17 at the half, and 26-26 at the third period. The teams each scored 12 field goals, and it was in the free throws that W.-V. held a 2-point margin. The greatest margin held by one team during the fray was a 5-point edge by Walton in the final quarter.

High scorer of the evening was Casey, lanky Pioneer center, with 13 points. For the winners, "Cotton" Groger was tops with 12 markers. Pennington was next in line, for the Cats, with 7, and DeMoisey was third with 6.

The preliminary game was won by the Walton-Verona reserves by a 34 to 22 score.

Tuesday night on the home floor the Cats revenged themselves for their only defeat of the season by "slapping down" the Dixie Heights Little Colonels 38 to 27. Earlier in the season the Little Colonels hung a 29-26 defeat on "our" boys.

In Tuesday's tussle the Bearcats led throughout, being in front 5-4 at the end of the first quarter, 13-10 at the half, and 27-19 at the close of the third period. The Cats had some difficulty in finding the basket, but is was an interesting contest, nevertheless.

Walton's scoring parade was led by Pennington, with 10 points, and then came DeMoisey, Simpson and Groger, with 8, 7, and 6 tallies each, respectively. Doster was high man for Dixie, with 9 points and [illegible] all was second with 7.

The "battle" of the evening was put on by the second teams. The Walton-Verona boys turned, what seemed to be certain defeat at the half, into a thrilling 39 to 35 win by staging an unexpected rally in the final quarter. At the half Dixie was leading 21 to 11.

Florence Here Friday

On Friday night, Jan. 16, the Bearcats will be hosts to the Florence Knights, in a Boone County Conference game; and on Tuesday night, Jan. 20 the locals will go to Ludlow.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The swirl and tumult of wartime Washington have pushed 12 non-defense agencies, or parts of agencies, out of the city. Following a Presidential order, over 10,000 Government employees will have moved out of the Capitol within two months. With the influx of defense workers at the rate of 1,500 a week, Washington has all the appearances of a boom-town.

The additional space is welcomed by administrators who are hard pressed to find living quarters for incoming Federal workers and office space for new defense agencies.

Among the larger agencies moving out of Washington are the Patent Office and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Patent Office with 1200 of its employees makes its new home in Richmond, Va. The SEC, with its 1400 employees, will operate from Philadelphia.

What effect, if any, this mass exodus will have as a decentralizing factor in executive control over the agencies affected is a subject of speculation here.

No stone is being left unturned in an effort to vest the President with enough power to meet every emergency with speed. Not only has Congress granted him the powers which President Wilson had during the first World War, but it also went its predecessor one better and extended those powers.

By unanimous action of both the House and the Senate, the President was given authority to:

1. Censor all forms of foreign news.

2. Redistribute Government administrative functions. This, the writers of the Act hoped, would permit the President to cut red tape when there was possibility of its becoming tangled and slowing up the victory effort.

3. Control financial transactions of enemy corporations and administer other alien property. This allows the President to use almost $7,000,000,000 of alien property in the country for the best national interest.

4. Permit agencies to enter into defense contracts without competitive bidding, without performance bonds and to modify or amend contracts. The added power over contracts was needed, according to the Senate Judiciary Committee, to speed up the purchase of war materials. Congressmen pointed out that under this power the President could bring small businessmen into the victory program by removing existing restrictions on Government contracts.

An amendment requires the President to make a public record of all acts taken under the contract power. If he thinks that such publicity would be against the public interest he need not reveal the act in question.

Now that the President has the power to streamline the complicated defense set-up Washington businessmen are expecting a new realignment of defense agencies.

Plans for "After Pearl Harbor" are being kept secret by high military and civilian planners. Only one thing is certain—that the job is collosal. Already Administration men are discarding old estimates of 30 to 45 percent of the national income for armaments in 1942.

OPM's internal setup has been revised in the interest of speed. The shake-up brought all industrial branches dealing with civilian matters under the supervision of Director General Knudsen and Associate Director Hillman.

This leaves Leon Henderson, Civilian Supply Administrator, and Douglas C. McKeachie, Director of Purchases, who formerly controlled civilian branches, and Floyd Odlum, Director of OPM Contract Distribution Division, as idea men—OPM sources predicted. It also leaves the responsibility of dealing with non-essential civilian production up to OPM's two top men, Knudsen and Hillman. It is anticipated here that future curtailment or cessation orders will come from them.

OPM statement of policy declared that one reason for the change was an increased emphasis on cooperation with industry and labor.

"What Shall We Eat?"

In the years since I left Fidelity there have been many inroads made on many customs, but somehow eating habits have changed in the country least of all. As I have said before, superstitions are rarely universal in our generation, but some social customs are rigid to the nth degree. One of these is the nature of the meals eaten in most country homes.

Very prepersely I have always wanted to vary from the standards of eating and have often been able to eat what I pleased and when I pleased, though in older times it was prophesied in a whisper that some horrible thing would happen to me. Maybe it has, and I am too dumb to see it. Anyway, I have always liked to be perverse about sweet things. Why should they be kept until the last of the meal? Why should so many housewives rail against sweets for breakfast—pie, for instance? Probably the fact that I, as well as most of my generation, was raised on sorghum for breakfast makes me have this feeling. If molasses is good, why not pie and cake? Southerners often sneer at the Northerner's doughnuts and coffee, but I can see the sense in this type of meal quite as much as in the bacon-and-eggs type. Frankly, I like both kinds, single or mixed.

Another cranky notion is that certain things do not go together as do such pairs as turkey and cranberries, ham and eggs, backbone and sauerkraut. For instance I have known children to be punished for wanting sorghum poured over vegetables. Again I am a traitor to my rearing, for I like molasses with most anything. One of our neighbor boys, whose mother had died and left a houseful of boys to be reared by the father, used to eat in a fashion that made the mothers of other sons shiver. He would cut up his meat into small scraps, mix up all his vegetables, and then douse the whole mess with sorghum. That was my very type of boy, if I only had had the nerve to follow suit. Many a decorus person has failed to know how good some things can be because he has feared to violate the neighborhood custom. This very rigid system of eating their right to overtime, under the terms of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the ruling declared, "they may agree with their employers to accept their overtime compensation in defense bonds or similar Government securities."

This ruling applies, of course, only to those businesses over which the Federal Government has supervisory control. It is not unlikely, however, that many local businesses will adopt a similar policy in an effort to cooperate with the Government.

Yesterday I was out on a walk to study birds. A dove flew over me but did not get far, for a Negro brought it down with a shotgun. Rather oddly, there were dozens of fat tame pigeons flying within gunshot range, but the Negro would not have brought one down for love or money. The same Negro would have enjoyed an opossum but would have turned sick if any one had suggested eating a house cat or a dog. We laugh sometimes at the clean and unclean classifications of the Hebrews. But our own classifications are equally rigid and sometimes laughable. It will be a long time before we will be daring to eat any flesh and almost any vegetable. If ever scientists devise a way to make bluegrass or cockleburs edible and digestible, I promise to be one of the first to embrace the new fad, for I have always wanted to break a few rules for eating.

Money Talks

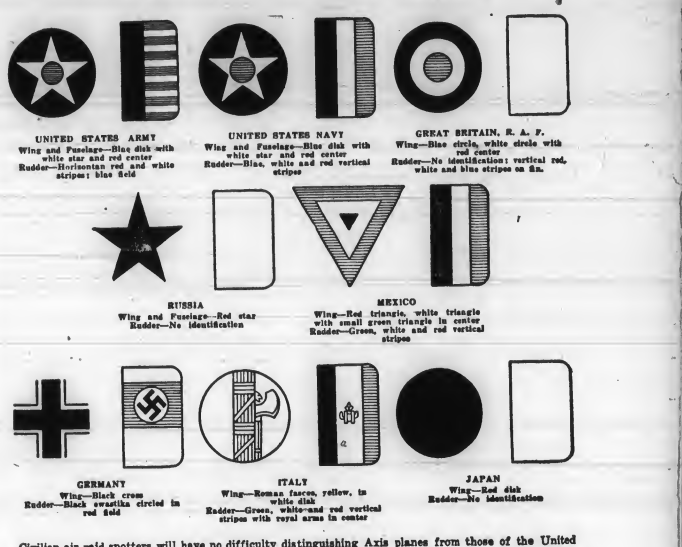
Great as are the natural resources of the United States, we do not possess all the essential raw materials necessary to wage a modern war.

These essential raw materials may be divided into three classes: namely, (1) those we do not have to import; (2) those we must import in large amounts; and (3) those we have to import entirely.

First, let us consider the important products we do not have to import. Fortunately we have the largest reserves of iron ore in the world, and consequently we are, at present, not only supplying all our own needs, but shipping iron and steel products to our Allies. We are also self-sufficient in cotton, chemicals, lumber, and food. It is true we import large quantities of sugar and coffee, but these commodities come from the nearby West Indies and Brazil.

Second, what do we import in large quantities? We are now importing about 90% of our manganese and 50% of our tungsten (essential in steel and munitions industry), 60% of our wool (fortunately a large part of this is imported from South America), 25% of our copper, 30% of our zinc, and nearly 50% of bauxite, the ore from which aluminum is made.



And third, what about the essential products which we have to import entirely? This list includes rubber (from the East Indies and Malaya), tin (from South America and Malaya), nickle (from Canada), antimony (from China), hemp (from the Philippines), and silk (from Japan).

Fortunately we have accumulated large reserves of rubber, silk, tin and antimony in anticipation of war. But our present reserves cannot last forever.

The United States is the most self-sufficient industrial nation in the world; yet in spite of all of our new products we must still look to lands beyond the seas for many of our essential war materials. We can now understand why our Government has restricted the civilian use of silk and rubber and has asked us to conserve all material whenever possible.

How to Distinguish Nationality of Aircraft

Civilian air raid spotters will have no difficulty distinguishing Axis planes from those of the United Nations if they memorize the markings illustrated above. American and British planes have designs of red, white and blue, and Russia has a red star. Watchers on the southern border occasionally may see the red triangle of Mexico. Axis raiders are easily spotted through the familiar black cross and swastika of Germany, the round red rising sun emblem of Japan and the Roman fasces insignia borne by Italian planes.

It will bring out gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been causing you many days of misery, with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruption and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for $5°,090 000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting 'up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Poultry School Held

Professor W. M. Insko and Mr. J. E. Humphrey, specialists from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, discussed poultry and the National Defense program at the annual poultry school held at Independence, January 8th.

The egg production goal set for Kenton County in 1942 is 111,000 dozens. This is an average production of over 100 eggs for each hen in the county.

The present strong demand for eggs make the price favorable to the poultry producers. Indications are that this demand will continue strong and that prices will remain favorable, allowing, of course, for variations in price due to seasonal production.

Points to Consider in Buying Chicks — (1). Be sure the chicks come from hatcheries that test the breeding flock for disease and remove all reactors at once.

(2). Be sure that any custom hatching done by the hatchery consists of eggs from flocks treated as supply flocks.

(3). Purchase chicks as near home as possible to get good quality. Shipping chicks long distances doesn't improve them.

(4). Three chicks should be bought for each mature pullet needed.

(5). Orders should be booked for enough in advance to secure delivery of chicks when wanted.

(6). March is the best month for chicks of the general purpose breeds to be started for pullets in the fall. A month later is suitable for leghorns.

Dairy Notes

Water Supply — When one realizes that milk is eighty-seven per cent water, and that a cow needs at least three pounds of water for each pound of milk produced, the matter of providing enough water becomes extremely important. Cows should be allowed free access to water if at all possible. Regular watering twice daily is essential in cases where free access to water cannot be provided. Ice-water does a splendid job in cooling milk, but it has no place in making milk. Anything that can be done to make water readily available for dairy cows, in a place and at a temperature that will encourage liberal consumption, will be well paid for by increased production.

Exercise — Dairymen frequently wonder how much exercise is desirable for their cows in winter. Cows maintained in stanchions or box stalls have been found to suffer no ill effects from the confinement. The lactating cow performs a large amount of work in the mastication and metabolism of the feed that she necessarily must handle. This activity seems to furnish more exercise than is usually believed. Young cows, cows carrying calf, and dry stock, however, seem to benefit from moderate exercise.

Every farm produce in which the federal government is calling for increases will be greatly increased by Larue county farmers.

LUCKY BREAKS

By Dorothy Thomas
(From January Cosmopolitan Magazine)

Howard Johnson: Howard Johnson, who puts tidy white roadside restaurants where hot-dog stands used to grow, got his Lucky Break because he lost $100,000 in his restaurant in the business district of Quincy, Massachusetts. This might have driven some men out of the restaurant business entirely. But Johnson was determined to make money to pay his debts. So he opened a different type of restaurant, catering to motorists on a highway near Boston. In a few years, his formula of good food, attractive surroundings and moderate prices expanded his business to 200 glorified roadstands. But if the Quincy enterprise had been a money maker, Johnson would probably be only moderately successful today.

Mainbocher: Mainbocher, the famous American-born dress designer, was studying in Paris to be an opera singer when he overtrained and ruined his voice. This turned out to be his Lucky Break. He switched to the study of art, did fashion drawing, and got a job on the art staff of the Paris branch of Harper's Bazaar, which eventually led to a job as fashion editor. In 1929 he opened a dressmaking establishment in Paris. His name was Main Rousseau Bocher, which was too long, so he coined the name Mainbocher. He has the distinction of being the only American who ever became a leader of the French fashion world. Back in this country, he now has a swank dressmaking shop in New York.

Helen Jepson: Persistent effort couldn't get Helen Jepson an audition with the Metropolitan Opera Company. However, when she took a job with Paul Whiteman's band, she insisted upon singing at least one operatic aria on each program. One night Gatti-Casazza, then impresario of the Met, happened to tune in on the Whiteman program when Helen was singing "O Patria Mia." He was so intrigued by her voice that he phoned the studio and gave her an appointment that led to fame.

Sheep brought Washington county farmers about $300,000 last year, and the industry has doubled in value in 10 years.

Six commercial plantings and 32 home plantings of strawberries were made in Wayne county last year.

Hitler's Women Spies Called Cleverest Secret Agents

HITLER'S New Order calls for blitzkrieg technique in spies as well as warfare. To accomplish this end the women who have served as der Führer's cleverest secret agents no longer conform to the Mata Hari pattern.

Gone is the category of spies whose activity was based on their "social graces". The women who helped effect Hitler's entrance into the now occupied territories of Europe are the very opposite of the Hollywood spy with long eyelashes, long cigaret holder and elegant gowns. How Hitler's women spies have changed, how they go about their treacherous work is disclosed by foreign journalist Hans Habe in the February issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Best trained of all Hitler's women spies, Habe writes, is Countess Henriette Kessler. Before engaging in military espionage she made her living as a school teacher, dress designer, salesgirl and writer. Her appearance is that of typical forty-year-old working woman, yet through clever forgery she was able to get full assistance of the French navy to go about her work.

Even more typical of the new type of political spy is twenty-seven-year old Countess Maria Roedern. In outward appearance, Habe reports, she belies the popular idea of a Mata Hari. Blond, with tow-colored, almost invisible eyebrows, this woman agent was stout and homely even at twenty, but her work was vital to the downfall of France. Through French relations she gained entrance to a meeting of "Cagoulards," a secret band of conspirators. At the clandestine session she learned that prominent generals, among them Petain and Weygand, were ready at any time to negotiate with Germany.

When Hitler once asked one of his aids the name of a woman who was capable of anything, Emilie Buehner was the name he received in reply. Fraulein Buehner, now the Countess La Motte, is sixty years old, yet Habe says she is the most recent addition to the German espionage system. Descended from a family of petty civil servants, this well-mannered lady is the incarnation of the traditional English spinster visiting the continent. Her appearance gives little evidence of her underground work. It was through her efforts in Italy that the French declaration of war against Germany followed the British announcement by six hours—an interval of the greatest strategic significance.

Publisher Extols Literary Life And Traditions

TO have George Palmer Putnam tell it, publishing is a romantic business. Writing, exploring, politics are all part of the game as this notable publisher has played it.

But he came by it naturally. Not only his father, but his grandfather as well, Putnam reveals in the January Cosmopolitan magazine, were publishers, and he was not one to discontinue the tradition. In fact, he carried it on in the grand literary fashion, and his Cosmopolitan autobiography is replete with anecdotes of celebrities he has encountered and of the feats he has accomplished.

Putnam talks glibly of his experiences with such varied personalities as Ethel Barrymore, President Coolidge, Leopold Stokowski, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., Professor Auguste Piccard, and Dr. William Beebe. But of his late wife, the renowned aviatrix Amelia Earhart, he speaks with reverence. She possessed the qualities of which hero-stuff is made, he says. Chief of these besides courage are modesty and reasonableness. She furthermore had cool wisdom and a rare power of appraisal.

In 1928, Putnam relates, Miss Earhart became the first woman to fly the Atlantic, but she gave credit where it belonged—to the pilot. But being, as she herself expressed it, merely excess baggage, she determined to make it alone, and four years later she did. But Miss Earhart's best known flight was her most tragic.

After months of preparation she was ready, on June 1, 1937, to start a round-the-world hop. Her plane, the Electra, was already warming up when Putnam and his wife arrived at the airport. They retired into the hangar and on the chill concrete steps held hands. "There is very little one says at such times," writes Putnam. "As she walked out she seemed very small and feminine—a little girl seeking to do with a very large world what had not been done before. A month later, Amelia Earhart and her plane disappeared somewhere near Howland Island in the Pacific."

Science Develops Substitutes To Battle Serious Shortages

MANY average Americans are jumpy about the shortages of raw materials used in the manufacture of civilian products. The famed American standard of living, they feel, is about to be wrecked by the all-out defense effort.

Just how bad are shortages? Unless you are close to Washington, you will never dream how many things are threatened, answers Gretta Palmer in the January Cosmopolitan magazine. But the crisis has given rise to an immense development of substitutes, Miss Palmer says. The watchdogs of your personal welfare—the chemists, engineers and manufacturers of private industry—refuse to be licked by priorities denying them the usual materials out of which they make their products. Defense has proved the mother of invention. Men, under pressure, think fast, and they have telescoped the originality and inventiveness of fifty years into ten months.

Miss Palmer cites as a typical example, the case of cooking utensils. When aluminum was withdrawn from the makers of pots and pans, they turned to the consideration of enamelware. Today, she says, there is a strong incentive to turn out the very excellent enamelware that could have been sold for several years past, for its wearing qualities have been greatly improved.

The aluminum shortage also stimulated glass manufacturers to see what they could do in developing a glass that would bear up under the considerable heat required for a frying pan or a broiler. Just such a superior glass has now been brought out. These are only two of a vast number of substitutes growing each day through intensive research. Scientists, Miss Palmer says, have used the presence of scarcities as their greatest inspiration since the Industrial Revolution.

NEWS OF NEW YORK

By Dorothy Kilgallen
(From February Cosmopolitan Magazine)

NEW YORK is everybody's town. Yours if you sit in a penthouse and drink champagne; yours also if you sit on a front porch in Idaho and drink lemonade.

Unrivaled Number One Glamour Girl of this New York theatrical season is Leonora Corbett, a long-limbed impertinent beauty with tip-tilted eyes, a tinkling London voice, silver curls, and a grace of movement inevitably identified with the ballet. Hers is the title rôle of Noel Coward's wartime hit, "Blithe Spirit".

It's probably news to you that the phrase "Powers model" is no longer the only popular term for the long-stemmed American Beauties who pose for the nation's advertisements. There's a new phrase: "Conover model." And the man behind it—tall, soft-voiced, handsome Harry Conover—is the first real threat to the supremacy of John Powers in the model agency business.

Conover is twenty-eight years old, dark, quiet and businesslike. Three years ago he was a Powers model. Today Conover has an office with five rooms, twenty-two telephones, and nine assistants (all female, young and pretty).

I made for you?
'Twas such a complicated thing to bake,
Yet fun to do!
You said so? Yes—but quite as if by rote.
Please! One small lie
Would make the bit that's sticking in my throat
Not half so dry.

Mrs. Barnett Franks is ill at her home in South Walton.

My Pet Peeve!

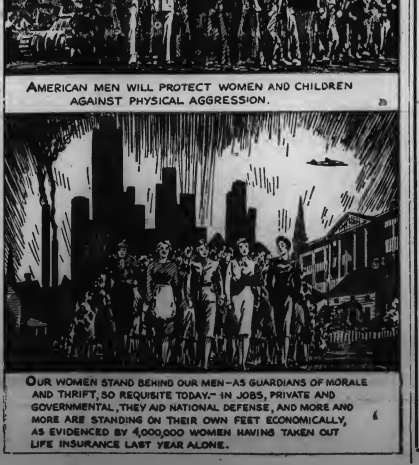
By Robert Benchley
(From December Cosmopolitan Magazine)

BEING a mild-mannered man, I am not peeved more than once every two minutes during the day, but, year in and year out, I think my blood pressure rises pretiest to the behavior of the high-powered businessman who says to his secretary, "Get me Mr. Benchley on the phone!" and then goes and hides in the broom closet.

His secretary gets my secretary and says, "Mr. Gavin Gormley calling Mr. Benchley." And my secretary says to me, "Mr. Gavin Gormley on the phone!" That's where the first flaw shows up in the routine. Mr.

Robert Benchley

Gavin Gormley is not on the phone.



I take over and say, as I was taught to say by my French governess, "Allo?" And Mr. Gormley's secretary says, "Just a minute, Mr. Benchley, Mr. Gormley wants to speak to you." My reply to that is, "So I have just been informed." Then begins the hunt for Mr. Gormley, with occasional crumbs of hope thrown me by his secretary, like "Just a minute, please!" or "Mr. Gormley is busy on another wire now. Will you hold on, please?" At this point, when I am in form, I hang up.

If, however, I am in a sissy mood, I hang on like a dope. I hum hymns, or hymn hums, and draw little airplanes on the blotter, waiting for Mr. Gormley to finish on the other wire. Don't forget it was Mr. Gormley who called me.)

And then comes the crowning insult. Mr. Gormley is finally put on the line with me and says, in a very brusque voice, "Hello, who's this?" as if I were trespassing on his time.

Then, sissy or no sissy, I pull my telephone cord out of the wall so hard that it pulls Mr. Gormley's receiver right out of his hand, even if he is blocks away, and I hope it smashes his inkwell and knocks his paper cutter so that it flies up and gives him a nasty cut right under the eye. If it doesn't, I'll go over and do it myself.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 3:1-6, 15-17, 21, 22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.—Luke 3:22.

"A reed shaken with the wind?" No. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. "A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face. . . . Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Such was the testimony of Jesus (Matt. 11:7-11) about the man who in our lesson of today bears his testimony concerning Jesus.

I. John: the Preacher of Repentance (vv. 1-3).

The times in which a man lives will often make or break him. If times are dark and difficult most men submit to the burden of the day without protest or effort. But not so with John. The period in which he lived is graphically brought before us as we consider the names of civil and religious leaders mentioned in verses 1 and 2. Tiberius Caesar, the emperor, was virtual dictator, "talented, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman" (Van Doren). Pilate was the governor of Judea, who later condemned Jesus to the cross. Herod was a seducer and murderer. Annas and Caiaphas shared the infamy into which the priesthood had fallen.

God needed a man with a flaming message of judgment, and He had him ready out in the wilderness, far from decadent Rome and spiritually dead Jerusalem. Upon this man John came the message, a word from God—"Repent"—which stirred the whole countryside. But he had even a greater mission.

II. John—the Forerunner of Jesus (vv. 4-6).

He humbly identifies himself as the voice in the wilderness prophesied by Isaiah. His was the important duty of preparing the way for the coming of the Lord Jesus.

The picture is that of the preparation for the coming of an oriental monarch. When he was about to make a journey, a servant was sent before him to prepare the highway. Valleys needed to be filled, hills lowered, crooked places made straight, rough ways made smooth. Thus, before men would be ready to receive Christ, moral obstacles must be removed, men must repent of their sins and turn from them" (Erdman).

Isaiah says that "all flesh shall see the salvation of God," something which God has made possible, but which we have not even yet fully carried out. The gospel is universal in its character—for all mankind. This prophetic word will, of course, have its complete fulfillment when the King comes to reign. Then "they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them" (Jer. 31:34).

III. John—the Follower of Jesus (vv. 15-17).

The humility of the man, his recognition of true greatness in Christ, his willingness to efface self, is seen in the words of these verses and in such other passages as John 1:29-30, where he directed his disciples to Jesus, whom they followed, and John 3:26-30, where in response to the effort to make him jealous of Jesus because his (John's) disciples followed Him, John replied, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He was glad to be the friend of the Bridegroom who rejoiced when the bridegroom came (John 3:29). He declared himself unworthy to loose the latchet of Christ's shoe (Luke 3:16).

The Christian virtue of humility is evil spoken of by a world of force and hatred, but it is still precious in the sight of God, and the ornament par excellence of Christian character. "Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble" (I Pet. 5:5).

As he put himself in the background, John put Christ forward as the one whose baptism would not be a material element, water, indicating the inward change of repentance, but would be with Holy Ghost fire, cleansing and transforming life.

However, the Christ who comes as a Saviour to the repentant one, comes also as the flaming fire of judgment upon the impenitent. There is wheat and chaff in the world of men, and the fan of Christ will soon separate the wheat which goes into His eternal garner from the chaff which He will burn with unquenchable fire.

Our God is a God of unfathomable grace, but He is also a God of severest judgment upon those "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." Read the solemn words of II Thessalonians 1:7-9. It is an awful thing to reject the Saviour, and thus to make Him our Judge.

A Week Of The War

The President, in a message to Congress, said he had directed Federal agencies to arrange a new schedule of war production calling for 60,000 planes in 1942, including 45,000 combat craft, and 125,000 in 1943, including 100,000 combat units; 45,000 tanks in 1942 and 75,000 in 1943; 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 in 1943; 8,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships in 1942 and 10,000,000 in 1943.

The President told Congress he would order the U. S. armed forces to a world-wide front to find the enemy and "hit him an hit him again whenever and wherever we can reach him." He said U. S. forces would take up positions if necessary in the British Isles, the Far East and on all oceans and bases within and without the New World necessary to protect the Western Hemisphere.

The President proposed total expenditures in the fiscal year 1943 of $77,000,000,000. Of this $56,000,000,000 would be for the war. He said total war expenditures are now at the rate of approximately $2,000,000,000 a month and may surpass $5,000,000,000 a month during fiscal 1943. The President said he could not predict ultimate costs "because I cannot predict the changing fortunes of war," but he proposed an increase in tax collections to $27,000,000,000. He asked careful Congressional consideration of income taxes collected at the source, payroll taxes, excise taxes and taxes on State and local government bonds.

Mr. Roosevelt said expenditures for farm aid, work relief and youth aid would be reduced by the end of the 1942 fiscal year $600,000,000 from last year and will be reduced another $860,000,000 next fiscal year when the total cost will be $1,400,000,000 or about half of the sum for the present year.

Production Progress

The Office for Emergency Management reported increased pooling of aircraft production facilities within the industry and with the auto industry, and concentration on superior types of planes. The OEM said in almost every month of 1942 additional plants will begin production of planes with parts supplied by industrial pools.

The War Department reported at least one plant of each of the 13 types required for the munitions program was completed in 1941, making a total of 28 now in operation. The announcement said 28 more will begin production soon.

OPM Director Knudsen announced the auto industry must double its schedule war output to handle $5,000,000,000 additional war contracts. OPM formed a 10-member industry-labor committee to study conversion of the industry to war products.

Employment

Labor Secretary Perkins reported 15,000,000 workers will be engaged in war production by the end of 1942—three times as many as were so employed in the fourth quarter of 1941. There will be only a relatively small increase in total employment, however, Miss Perkins said, because many persons now working in civilian-goods industry will be shifted to war work. WPA announced 3,800,000 persons were unemployed in December, 100,000 less than the previous month.

Conservation of Materials

OPM announced industrial conservation programs will be set up in more than 30 industrial centers to wreck old machinery and equipment to salvage needed materials; to minimize waste and spoilage, to handle scrap an dspeed its return to users.

OPM also recommended elimination of special deliveries of milk and substitution of every-other-day delivery for daily delivery to conserve tires. The agency recommended manufacturers simplify the types of bottles and other containers and eliminate those not necessary; ordered all tin and lead scrap under rationing control, restricted use of ethyl alcohol in ticlet soaps, mouth washes, rubbing alcohol, candy glazes; cut use of certain materials in manufacture of vending macrines dispensing cigarettes, food, candy and other items; cut the amount of wool for civilian use to 80 percent of last year; and restricted the use of copper in certain radio parts.

OPM granted permission to auto manufacturers to make 204,848 cars in January in order to use up parts already made before the plants are converted to war production. Congress passed a law permitting the President to order daylight saving time to save electric power.

Prices

The President sent a message to Congress asking for provision for a single price administrator for all prices in the price control legislation now under consideration. The OPM issued a pamphlet, "How to Stop Inflation," explaining in non-technical language the causes of inflation, measures taken in other countries and what can be done here to keep prices down. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported wholesale prices are now at the highest level since 1939—17.6 percent above this time last year.

Civilian Defense

The President appointed James M. Landis, Dean of the Harvard Law School, as Executive of the Office of Civilian Defense to direct the civilian defense program under the general supervsion of Director LaGuardia, who is also Mayor of New York City. The House and Senate passed and sent to conference a bill appropriating $100,000,000 for civilian defense. OCD asked its regional directors to obtain from State and city governments all possible equipment needed by the auxiliary firement, policemen, air raid wardens and other volunteers. Director McNutt of the Defense Health and Welfare Services set up in each of the 48 states a State Nursing Council on Defense to promote recruiting of student nurses and enrollment of 50,000 young women in nursing schools in 1942.

Agriculture

The Oklahoma Agriculture Agriculture Defense Board established an experimental "machinery bank" to provide a reservoir of spare parts for farm equipment. All idle farming equipment on Oklahoma's 32,000 farms will be conerally located, repaired and made available to farmers as they need it.

Pan-American Relations

OEM announced that for the first time in recent history, U. S. imports from Latin America have been larger than exports. U. S. trade in Latin America, the agency said, was one-third larger than in the corresponding period of 1940 and about 75 percent larger than in the first three quarters of 1939. The State Department elevated the U. S. legations in Paraguay, Ecuador and Bolivia to the rank of embassies in "formal recognition of the importance of developments" leading to Pan-American solidarity. Under Secretary of State Welles left Washington to attend the Pan-American conference of foreign ministers at Rio de Janeiro January 15.

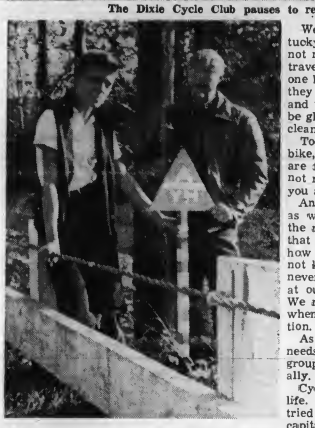
The War Front

The White House announced the U. S., Britain, the Netherlands and the Dominion governments agreed to a unified command in the Southwest Pacific area with all sea, land and air forces under Gen. Wavell of the British Army, with Lt. Gen. Brett, of the U. S. Army Air Forces, as next in command. Gen. MacArthur, commander in the Philippines, reported his lines holding against renewed Japanese attacks. The Army and Navy reported sinking of three enemy cargo ships of 10,000 tons each, one enemy transport and more than a score of Japanese bombing and fighting planes. The Marine Corps announced that new reports showed that the defenders of Wake Island had sunk one cruiser, four destroyers, one submarine and one gunboat before succumbing. The President cited the entire Wake garrison for heroism.

The White House announced the RAF dropped more than 2,000,000 American pamphlets on Nazi-occupied France stressing the historic ties between the American and French people. The pamphlets included pictures of the Statue of Liberty and quotations from the President's speeches.

The President set February 16 for selective service registration of men from 20 to 44 who have not previously registered.

Fluorescent lighting for their tobacco stripping room was used by C. B. and Joe McCord, Clark county.



G. J. Giles and other Harlan county farmers have transplanted boysenberry plants, covering them for winter with straw and leaves.

A sub-committee has been appointed in Hickman county to find added ways of cooperating in the "food for defense" program.

Dixie Cycle Club

We once knew a man who traveled from Kentucky to California on a touring trip, but who could not name the states he passed through, because he traveled so fast. Cyclists may travel only fifty to one hundred miles a day, but every place they go they make friends. Peoples are interested in them, and they are interested in people. Parents should be glad to see their children participating in such a clean Christian sport.

To be a member of our fraternity all it takes is a bike, and arm yourself wit hfriendship until you are fairly bristling with fun and health. It does not really matter where you are going as long as you are sincerely making for some definite goal.

And this not only applies to cycling, but to life as well. Philosophers and historians tell us that the main curse of existence to so many people is that life is dull and meaningless. Peoples know how to work, but strange as it may seem, many do not know how to play — how to relax. Cyclists never find life dull and meaningless. Our bike is at our command. We are the captain and crew. We make it take us where we want to go and when. That is accomplishment. That is satisfaction. That is life. That is cycling.

As one of the hobbies of mankind, cycling still needs to be developed to the point where whole groups of people will benefit physically and mentally.

Cycling is a big answer to the monotony of daily life. It is the liberator to that expression we have tried so long to liberate. It is health spelled with a capital "H." If you want to be patriotic, then be a cyclist and be healthy.

"I am the New Year, and I come to you pure and unstained. Fresh from the hand of God. Each day a precious pearl to you is given, that you must string upon the silver thread of life. Once strung, can never be unthreaded, but stays on unlying record of your faith and skill. Each golden minute link you then must weld into the chain of hours that is no stronger than its weakest link. Into your hands is given all the wealth and power to make your life just what you will. I give to you, free and unstained, twelve glorious months of soothing rain and sunshine golden. The days for work and rest, the nights for peaceful slumber. All that I have I give with love unspoken. All that I ask you, keep the faith unbroken."

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets this may be just what you need!

With The Reds

While some ball clubs have been busy feeling sorry for their opponents, and some others have been feeling sorry for themselves, the off season has been expending itself and now everybody in baseball finds it's almost time for the start of the 1942 spring training activities.

Spring training always changes a lot of attitudes, for during that period there always blossoms new hopes from all quarters, while those who go to their camps optimistic in advance become doubly so, and the self determined sympathetic understanding of their opponents' problems, pseudo or real, becomes more pronounced.

To those who have directed some of their sympathies in the direction of Cincinnati, there is no desire to refrain from accepting anything that is offered, notwithstanding that the motives might not be philanthropic.

And, so, the Reds are going to listen to those with suggestions about other clubs' business, always having in mind that their sympathizers have an ulterior motive while they go along whistling in the graveyard. Whistlers have been known to be made to change their tunes by the process of men who were pictured as corpses continuing to live and haunt those who did the whistling.

If one could look into a crystal ball and see the future, all would be well. But there are no crystal balls. If there were, the Reds could have looked into one a year ago and foreseen that men who normally were good hitters would not hit, and that as a result, the team would drop to third place.

On the roster of the Reds today are three outfielders who batted .300 or better in 1940, and another who blasted far above that figure in 1939. Mike McCormick, Jimmy Gleeson, and Ernie Koy are the men who slumped in their averages in 1941, and inasmuch as they are still young, it is reasonable to assume that there is a strong possibility that one, two or maybe all three of them will return to their 1940 form in 1942. The Reds also have Harry Craft, and three very promising rookies in Hank Sauer, Frank Searoy and Eddie Lukon. They also have Ival Goodman, who was a whiz-bang until last year.

Nobody will deny that the Reds have a great pitching staff and a fine infield. Their sympathizers concentrate on the outfield. They fail to realize that notwithstanding the series of slumps that overtook all of the gardeners last season, that the Reds still managed to play as well as any team in the league, champion included, from Memorial Day on.

More hitting from the Reds' outfield next year is a safe bet, and this prediction does not come from the spring approach. It comes from a close survey of the records of the players involved, and the law of percentages, which most surely favor the men of the Cincinnati outfield.

Talk is cheap. The Reds have discovered base hits are not. But conditions change, and, perhaps 1942 will see the loose talk of the winter developing into an expensive liability.

—o—

Eddie Lukon, who was 21 last August 5, will register for the draft on February 16. Lukon came to the Reds from Knoxville, where he was an outfield sensation. He made a favorable impression in his 24 games with the Reds.

—o—

Ival Goodman, who has been a righthanded thrower all his life, says he will attempt to throw lefthanded this year.

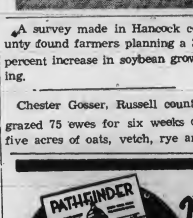
STRAIGHT FROM NEW YORK

PRINTS ARE PRETTIER



Prints are everywhere on the fashion horizon, prettier and softer-looking than ever before. The New York creation shown is one of the new blossom prints, with slimming stripes of dogwood flowers in beige tone, on a moss green ground, the many-gored skirt having flat box pleats inlaid at the seams. Some of the other new color combinations are lime green with raspberry, pale blue with Parma violet, pink with dark green, "tortoise tan" with a deeper brown shade.

A survey made in Hancock county found farmers planning a 34 percent increase in soybean growing.

Chester Gosser, Russell county, grazed 75 ewes for six weeks on five acres of oats, vetch, rye and crimson clover.

Two new cream stations have been opened in Jackson county, where dairying is on the increase.

T.V.A. Committeemen Are Elected

T. V. A. Demonstrators, who each year endeavor to show comparative results from the use of lime and phosphate, elected a committee to assist in administering this work at a meeting in Burlington, Friday afternoon, according to Franklin Frazier, Assistant County Agent. Those elected were Frank Rouse, Burlington, chairman; John Klopp, Petersburg, vice chairman; Wilton Stephens, Burlington, secretary-treasurer; Lillard Scott, Grant, committeeman, and Ira Tanner, Florence committeeman.

Ralph Kenney, Field Agent in Agronomy, from the College, discussed methods that may be used in improving T. V. A. demonstrations in 1942.

Demonstrations conducted last year show the pasture grazing capacity of pasture fields totaled 625 acres, required 3.5 acres to carry 1.000 pounds of livestock on untreated land, while on land treated with a standard application of limestone and phosphate only 2.3 acres were required to carry an animal unit; therefore, these fields produced 52% more pasture after a treatment with limestone and phosphate than previously.

Records of hay fields totaling more than 400 acres, indicated an increased yield of 42% from the use of limestone; 44% from phosphate alone, and 115% from limestone and phosphate, when used together.

Farmers who desire sufficient hay and pasture for producing livestock required under the "Food for Victory Program" have been studying successful results from lime and phosphate demonstrations at community program planning meetings held in the county during January.

FARMERS SHOULD CHECK SCRAP IRON

The Boone County A. C. Committee recommends that all farmers make a careful checkup of their supply of old scrap iron on the farm. Any scrap iron that will not be used to any advantage in the near future should be sold as the Government is in need of this material. A standard price is guaranteed by the Government, and the Cincinnati area is one of the better markets for selling it. This is one of the ways you can help the country in this present emergency.

by JAMES PRESTON

There is little rejoicing here at the outcome of the management-labor conference. It's more than the fact that labor has scored another potential victory on the closed shop issue. The general feeling is that little progress has been made toward the formulation of a definite war labor policy for the country.

The so-called "agreement" reached by the conferees was, in fact, no agreement at all. It was announced by the White House, not the conference, and represented the program of the labor delegates without offering any concessions to the representatives of industry. It was, observers pointed out, an effort by the administration to give the semblance of unity on basic labor issues.

The program announced by the President consists of the following points: For the duration of the war, industry and labor have agreed that there shall be no strikes or lockouts; that all disputes shall be settled by peaceful means; and that the President shall set up a War Labor Board to handle whatever disputes come up.

Almost from the beginning of the conference, industrial representatives were prepared to accept this program proposed by the labor delegates, on condition that a fourth point specifically excluding the closed shop as an issue for arbitration was added.

In spite of the fact that there was no agreement on this fourth point, industrial spokesmen have announced their readiness to cooperate in the maintenance of industrial peace. They feel that the National War Labor Board has possibilities—that is, on two conditions—that the members of the Board, when selected, are truly representative of the various interests concerned; and that the Board adopt, immediately after its creation, definite and constructive policies to govern its operations.

The latter point is made time and again by informed observers, who are predicting that the new Board is doomed to the same failure as the Defense Mediation Board, unless it adopts a set of guiding principles at the outset, and repudiates any policy that smacks of equivocation.

Businessmen here feel that the Defense Mediation Board muffed completely the solution to the closed shop question. They agree with the industrial members of the President's conference that the new Board, as a cardinal principle, "should not accept for arbitration or consideration the issue of the closed shop, requiring a person to become or remain a member of a labor organization if he is to get or hold a job." The right to belong or not to belong to a union is an individual right, management has insisted, and neither employers nor the Government should exercise any compulsion.

Every business in the country is prepared to do its bit in defeating the Axis. It is recognized here that industry is not merely paying lip service to the need for cooperation in the war effort, but has actually rolled up both sleeves as a demonstration with appropriate action of its willingness to cooperate.

The aviation industry, which in the peacetime year of 1937 made a little more than $100 million worth of airplanes, expanded to an output of about $1.5 billion last year. In 1942, aviation will join the industrial giants with a production of more than $3 billion.

The Army and Navy have called for 4,000 planes a month by next November. That means almost doubling the current rate of production. OPM experts are hopeful that, with the aviation and automobile industries cooperating the desired rate can be reached.

Another illustration is the aluminum industry. In 1937, this industry was concentrating on needs for pots and pans, railroad trains and automobiles. From a production of less than 300 million lbs. that year, its output jumped to 600 million pounds in 1941, with airplane producers the big customer. This year, it is expected that production will top 800 million pounds.

It makes us feel not-so-bad that: The Library of Congress has already removed to a place of greater security its four most-prized original documents: The Magna Carta, the Gutenberg Bible, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the U. S.

Plans are afoot to triple America's synthetic rubber production program. This will be undertaken if enough materials can be provided for the construction and operation of the new plants.

More than $200 million worth of strategic war materials owned by foreigners was uncovered by the Treasury's census of alien-owned property. This property has been turned over to the SPAB, which plans to use it in the Allied war effort. Some of the property had been hidden in warehouses and factories by Axis agents, and consisted of aluminum, brass, automobile parts, tools and machinery . . . all of which, Treasury officials point out, can be used by the United States to good advantage.

Burning The Wind

When something went fast in the good old days, we said it "burned the wind." In our slow world that did not mean, necessarily, that the something was going at terrific speed, either. But the very slowness of our lives made speed exciting.

In our play we often burned the wind. When an occasional ice storm coated the ground over, we slid down hills on slides or chairs or planks and felt that we were literally setting records for speed. On one such occasion I went so fast that my overcoat, handed down as a relic from several older brothers, was left hanging in tatters on the ice. I was afraid to rejoice, but I know now that I did not grieve much over such a tragedy, for it meant that I might get a new one all for myself. Sometimes we would stand up in the swing and "pump" until we fairly went up into the limbs of the trees and would burn the wind as we made a huge arc across the yard. On the see-saw we went up rather slowly but often came down with a rush. To this day a similar motion, such as going down a small hill too fast in a car, makes me think of the nausea I suffered when the see-saw broke or else descended a bit too fast. One of the best ways to burn the wind was to get the running gear of an old buggy, take off the bed and shafts, and guide the clumsy old thing with a plowline or a piece of baling wire as we whizzed down hill. Skiing and tobogganing were never my experience, but I know that the wildest dare-devil of the White Mountains never felt any bigger than we youngsters did with our crude ways of making speed.

People older and more sophisticated than we could burn the wind in another spectacular way. Our older brothers might own fine horses, fine for our part of the world. These same horses ridden or driven might excite the wonder and covetousness of the whole neighborhood. On Sunday morning, when people were supposed to be in a pious frame of mind, the sight of a dapper young fellow dashing up to the doors of the country church on his steed or, better still, driving up equally fast with the pretty girl from up the creek by his side provoked violations of the tenth commandment among the younger set and caused the bearded old fellows to recall vividly some of their own escapades at burning the wind. When people gathered at the country store for elections or Saturday afternoon or just gathered, how great it was to come driving by as if you were oblivious of all the world, though we all knew that you were showing off the gaits of your horse!

Even the old people could burn the wind occasionally by purchas-

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The other day I was asked, "To what extent will our standard of living be reduced by an all-out war economy?"

It seems to me there are valid reasons to believe our standard will be reduced. This has always been the case in times of war. Why should we expect any different pattern this time?

Civilians, regardless of the amount of money they have, are going to have to get along without (or with reduced supplies of) many of the things to which they have been accustomed. This is especially true of all things which are made of metals and rubber. In many instances, notably personal durable goods, such as automobiles, tires, washing machines, radios, refrigerators, and vacuum cleaners, it will mean postponing purchases of new models or doing without them entirely.

So far as the entire country is concerned, the greatest impact of our all-out war efforts on our standard of living will come from higher taxes and rising prices rather than shortages of essential consumer goods. The taxes paid by the average wage earner in 1942 will be two or three times those paid in 1941. Rising prices for rent, clothing, fuel, food and other necessary services will also add to the squeeze on the purchasing power of the consumer's dollar. And we must remember that in many cases the wage earner will have no offsetting salary increases.

It seems obvious that we are caught between rising prices and increasing taxes on the one hand and reduced supplies of many goods and a relatively stable wage level on the other. Consequently, our over-all living standards are headed for a considerable decline as our war efforts are intensified.

SOCIAL SECURITY NOTES

It is not necessary to go to the office from which an original social security account number was obtained to obtain a duplicate if the card is lost or destroyed.

This is the information given today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Covington, Ky., field office of the Social Security Board

"Duplicate account numbers can be obtained from any field office of the Board in the country, regardless of the fact that the original card was obtained elsewhere," Mr. Decker said.

"It will save time and trouble if the applicant for a duplicate will call at the office which is most convenient for him. There is no necessity for calling at or writing to the office from which the original was obtained, when a duplicate is desired. Such action delays the issuance of the duplicate."

SWEETS—FROM THE SWEET!

If he's generous, she'll be voted "Queen of Hearts" by all his shipmates or barrack pals—there's not a doubt about it! But, generous or otherwise, she's queen of his heart! Preparing such packages is great fun and a sure-fire success, too, when accurate, well-tested recipes are available. Today's recipes, starring a highly successful candy ingredient, oven-popped rice cereal, are dependable and delicious. This favorite breakfast cereal, used in a new glamor role, gives a crisp, crunchy texture to toffee and chocolate clusters, ranking candy favorites of men everywhere.

These two delicious sweets are made according to the following recipes:

CEREAL TOFFEE

2¾ cups light brown sugar
1 cup corn syrup
½ cup butter
1 cup evaporated milk

RYLAND HOMEMAKERS ENTERTAINED JAN. 13th

Ryland Homemakers club members were pleasantly entertained Tuesday, Jan. 13th by Mrs. Clarence Armstrong at Ryland Heights.

After the opening prayer and song, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, president, conducted the business session and then gave an account of the Advisory Council meeting in Covington.

At this meeting, as we hear and see on all sides, the main topic was nutrition and its place in the defense program.

Each member was asked to keep in mind the importance of nutrition and to plan to produce some food no matter how limited a space. If only a fence row, plant something. Also each one was asked to promote greater interest in home and community activities and try to stimulate an interest in community recreation.

Mrs. Rubbe asked her members to cooperate as much as possible in helping her organize the club for Red Cross work one day a month.

Mrs. J. C. Brown read an article on Thiamin and Mrs. Clarence Armstrong had the lesson on planning menus.

Miss Byerly reviewed the highlights of the food program of '41. The enactment of the lease-lend bill, making it possible for us to send food, such as eggs and dairy products to the Allies. The National Nutrition Conference held in Washington, at which time all leading nutritionists were called to Washington to be advised as to the work to be done during the present emergency. Food for Freedom. This mean sa greater amount of food must be produced to prevent a possible shortage.

Miss Byerly then gave as an example of lack of correct foods, an excerip from Wm. L. Shirer's dairy. While in Germany he was watching a group of weary British soldiers who had been taken prisoners by the Germans. Not only were they weary, but pale and hollow-chested. The German soldiers, despite their limited diets were strong, square-shouldered men.

This, again, made this small group of American women see plainly their important task in helping Civilian Defense.

Those present were Mrs. John Belew, Mrs. William Dickman, Mrs. Oliver Gee, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. William Damon, Mrs. Harry Caldwell, Mrs. Wm. Mendenhall, Mrs. Wm. Deitz, Mrs. John Murchison, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Jos. Lawson, Mrs. Clarence Armstrong, Miss Marcella Armstrong, Miss Zelma Byerly.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue we stated that a Mr. Clemons of Erlanger was occupying the John L. Vest property in South Walton, formerly owned by V. P. Kerns. This statement was incorrect. The property in question is now owned by Mr. Kerns and has been in his possession for a number of years. The property formerly owned by Mr. Kerns and now owned by Mr. Vest, is located three doors south of the home where Mr. Clemons moved, and is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayhugh.

Extra Flavor for Meats

Tomato ketchup is a condiment that is used a great deal at the table because it is a complete blend of tomato and spice. But don't forget to use it for cooking meats—for example, when a barbecue roast is on the menu. It adds an exquisite harmony of flavor to meats when poured over them as they cook. This recipe shows you how to work such magic with pork shoulder:

Barbecued Boned Pork Shoulder

Combine—
3 tablespoons butter, melted
3 tablespoons pure cider vinegar
1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon prepared brown mustard
½ cup tomato ketchup
½ cup water.
Place in baking pan—
4 pounds boned pork shoulder.

Bake uncovered in moderate oven (350° F.) for 2 hours, basting occasionally. Slice and serve hot with sauce.

Spaghetti Party Ideas

Even if it's a spaghetti dinner for which you've invited your friends, the spaghetti part of your meal can be different. Instead of making it up with ground meat or with meat balls, for example, you can serve it as Spaghetti with Pigs in Blankets, and save yourself some preparation time in the bargain. The cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese which comes in cans has delicious flavor and makes any variety of quick dishes for both everyday and party fare.

Spaghetti with Pigs in Blankets

Make a long slit in each of—
6 frankfurters.
Spread on the inside of each—
Prepared yellow mustard
India relish.
Using—
6 slices bacon.
Wrap slice around each one, fastening the ends with toothpicks. Broil for 10 minutes or until bacon is thoroughly cooked. Heat—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese.

Turn onto heated platter, then top the spaghetti with the pigs in blankets. Serves 6.

Individual Casserole of Spaghetti with Sizzled Beef

Melt in skillet—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add—
1 small jar (4-oz.) dried beef.
Fry until crisp. Turn into 6 individual casseroles one-half of—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese.
Top with sizzled dried beef, then add the remaining spaghetti. Sprinkle over the casseroles—
Grated cheese.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 20 minutes. Serves 4.

Green Beans Dressed Up

Here's something new to do with that popular vegetable, green beans. Serve them in a nippy sauce such as the one whose recipe is given below. Tomato ketchup spices it up and sour cream gives it a rich mellowness.

Green Beans in Ketchup and Sour Cream Sauce

Heat—
1 No. 2 can green beans, drained.
Season with salt and pepper. Combine—
¼ cup sour cream
3 tablespoons tomato ketchup
2 tablespoons flour.

Add this sauce to beans and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. If desired, ¼ cup diced bacon which has been fried crisp may be added to the beans. Serves 4 to 6.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. Christ is coming again, be ye ready. And let not your hearts be troubled, for the son of man shall send forth his angels and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: and there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.—Matt. XIII, 41-42.

Mrs. Thomas Powers was called to Virginia last week on account of the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton were business visitors in Covington on Friday.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Riley has been real sick with the flu, but is much better at this writing.

Our rural schools were closed in this vicinity for several days last week on account of the snow and slippery highways.

The news was received in this vicinity of the death of Mrs. Ella Simpson of near Independence, a sister of A. Feirrock of Ludlow. The deceased leaves a husband, 2 brothers and a sister to mourn her passing. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved friends and relatives.

The death angel has again visited our community and claimed for his victim an old friend and neighbor, Thomas Sebree, better known as "Grandad" Sebree. Mr. Sebree had been in bad health for several years, but had been confined to his room and wheel chair for the past two years. While his passing from life unto death was not a shock to his family and friends, but indeed a sad passing, for he was a man that was well liked by all who knew him.. Mr. Sebree lived to a ripe old age, being in his 81st year. His last year was made up of constant pain and suffering, but he bore them patiently, without a murmur. For he said all is well, God knows best, life is race that must be finished and that race is not always so pleasant. But his last moments were peaceful and calm. We extend to the bereaved family of children, who are left to mourn his passing our greatest sympathy during the trying hours. Mr. Sebree departed this life on Tuesday, Jan. 12th and was buried Thursday, Jan. 15 at Williamstown cemetery amidst a bountiful array of beautiful flowers.

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For we have an high priest . . . (who) was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Hebrews 4:15.

"We have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb 4:15, R.V.). We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (see Matt. 4:3, 6) and as One who had no sin, and yet He was tempted in all points as we are; and we may learn from His temptation how to meet temptation and be victorious over it.

I. Temptation.

It is the common lot of all mankind to be tempted (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it; angels were tempted — yes, even Jesus was tempted. We need to know about temptation, so we note

1. What It Is (v. 1). Temptation is of the devil. It is, as Principal Fairbairn expressed it, "seduction to evil, solicitation to wrong. It stands distinguished from trial thus: trial tests, seeks to discover the man's moral qualities or character; but temptation persuades to evil, deludes that it may ruin. God tries. Satan tempts."

Note that temptation is not sin, but yielding to the temptation is sin.

We are told by James (Jas. 1:13-15) that man is tempted by his own lusts. He also tells us that God may permit temptations or trials to test our faith (Jas. 1:2, 3), but His purpose is only to prove us able to stand. God does not suffer us to be tempted beyond endurance, but provides a way of escape (I Cor. 10:13).

2. How It Works (vv. 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9). Satan has only three temptations, although he is a master at giving them different appearances. The temptation of Jesus followed the same threefold line as that of Adam and Eve (Gen. 3:6), which is described in I John 2:16 as the general temptation of all men, namely, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life." Observe how Satan worked on Jesus: (a) By appealing to the flesh (vv. 2, 3). Jesus had fasted 40 days, and Satan took advantage of that fast to suggest that He use His divine power of creation to satisfy His hunger. To do so would have been to deny His very mission on earth.

Satan observes in man the normal appetites of his body, excites them to a high degree, and then tempts him to satisfy them in an improper way. (b) By appealing to pride (vv. 5, 6). God had promised to keep Jesus "in all his ways" (Ps. 91: 11), but casting Himself from the temple was not one of God's "ways" for Him.

The devil wants us to be presumptuous and call it faith, and this is his pitfall for one who really wants to believe—cause him to become a fanatic and substitute foolish presumption for faith. (c) By appealing to the eyes (vv. 8, 9). By showing Christ the kingdoms of the earth in some kind of striking panorama, or moving picture, he offered a short cut to their rule by a brief act of worship of him, rather than by way of the cross. The devil showed his real purpose here. He wants worship—he wants us to bow to him instead of to God.

II. Our Lord Was Victorious Over Satan.

We, too, can triumph in His blessed name. To do so we need to study the way of victory.

1. How to Gain It (vv. 4, 7, 10). Three steps appear: (a) By the right use of Scripture. If our Lord needed and used that weapon, how can we possibly do without it? How can we use it if we do not study it, and hide it in our hearts (Ps. 119: 11)? (b) By complete dependence upon God. Every Scripture used by Jesus against Satan honored God the Father. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. Luther was right—"Bid we in our own strength confide, Our striving would be losing."

The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan to the foot of the cross. Christ defeated him completely there, and we may plead that victory. (c) By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same, in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to argue with Satan, or even to discuss matters with him. He is not divine, but he is a supernatural being with knowledge and cunning which are too much for us. Meet him with Scripture, honor God by your faith in Christ, then "resist the devil, and he will flee from you" (Jas. 4:7).

2. What It Brings (v. 11). When the defeated devil left Christ, angels came and ministered to Him. The overcoming of temptation brings victory, peace, and blessed rest. This is ever true in the life of the believer. Temptations victoriously met make one stronger in meeting the next temptation. There is always a next one, for we read (Luke 4:13) that the devil left Christ only "for a season."

KENTUCKY CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP COUNCIL ORGANIZED RECENTLY

On December 17, representatives of seven religious denominations met in Lexington and proceeded to set up the Kentucky Christian Citizenship Council. It was a statesman-like gathering. The principal address, a powerful presentation, was made by Hon. Henry M. Johnson, attorney of Louisville, President of the Kentucky Sunday School Association and President of the American Businessmen's Research Foundation. The morning meeting was held at Calvary Baptist church. Lunch and afternoon session were at the Phoenix Hotel. The delegates, both lay and ministerial, manifested a united purpose. There was little formality, no negative attitudes in evidence, no long speeches, nor the slightest indication of pessimism.

It was a large democratic round-table conference, specifically seeking the best methods of meeting and ultimately overthrowing the liquor traffic and other moral evils in Kentucky. There was no mincing of matters. Facts were frankly faced. Every man and woman seemed to believe the job could be done, and they unanimously adopted the entire program decided upon.

The Kentucky Christian Citizenship Council was organized for the declared purpose of intelligently, strategically and effectively dealing with the liquor traffic, gambling, salacious literature, lotteries, social sin, political corruption and other anti - Christian movements. And it declared a positive program, which is to promote everything for which the Churches stand, including Youth Welfare, Christian Education, Good Literature, Evangelism and Christian Solidarity.

It means that now the churches of Kentucky have a specific Citizenship body to effectively express to all and sundry their views, convictions and wishes in regard to existing moral and spiritual conditions.

The Convention unanimously urged the immediate undertaking by the churches of a great new Spiritual Awakening in all denominations.

A Finance Committee was provived with instructions to solicit an initial sum of $3,000 for immediate needs.

The slogan adopted for 1942 is "The Roadhouses Must GO!" It was urged that the slogan be written at the bottom of every personal letter possible.

The immediate objectives are four-fold: (1) Every religious denomination in the state represented on the Council, (2) A Militant Christian Citizenship Council in every county. (3) A new Spiritual Awakening in all our denominations, (4) The overthrow of the liquor traffic in Kentucky by 1946.

This Council, officially backed by the churches, offers a solution to Kentucky's distressing moral situation. It is no time to quibble or hesitate. It is time to act.—All to Act.—ALL TO ACT TOGETHER.

RECEIPE FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Take twelve fine, full grown months; see that they are thoroughly free from all old memories of bitterness, rancor, hate and jealousy.

Cleanse them completely from every cliinging spite; pick off all specks of pettiness and littleness; and in short, see that these months are freed from all the past—have them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of Time.

Cut each month into thirty (or thirty-one) equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time (so many persons spoil the whole lot in so doing), but prepare one day at a time as follows:

Into each day put faith, courage, work, (some persons omit this ingredient and so spoil the flavor of the rest) hope, fidelity, liberality, kindness, rest (leaving this out is like leaving the dressing out of the salad—don't do it), prayer, meditation and Bible reading.

Be sure to include a generous quantity of consideration, patience and longsuffering.

Don't forget a pinch of the salt of candor; season well with grace, not forgetting a sprinkling of good humor.

Pour into the whole love without measure, and mix with a vim. Cook thoroughly in a fervent heat. Garnish with smiles of thankfulness and sprigs of joy; then serve with quietness, unselfishness and cheerfulness— and a Happy New Year is yours.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO DRINK TO BE A SOLDIER ——

In past days soldiers in general have had an unhappy reputation relative to the use of intoxicants. But as in many other lines of endeavor, a bad name is often fastened on a group by a very small minority of that group, for one drunken soldier will attract much more attention than the rest of a company who are quietly carrying out their appointed duties.

In the early history of our army when the soldier's pay reached the magnificent sum of three dollars a month, and one dollar of that was deducted for medical and other expenses, it is obvious that he could not go to many excesses. And in recent years there is no record of such extravagance in the matter of his pay that he could "splurge" very often. On payday, if a few did indulge, it was always a very small percentage of the group, and these as a rule were soon disposed of.

Today our development is so largely mechanical and our equipment moves at such speed that even the most ordinary routine of daily life requires the clearest brain and most accurate and rapid muscular action possible. This is demonstrated daily by the number of traffic injuries, and as traffic is now mostly automobile, the injuries and deaths from this cause are appalling. A large percentage of them are the direct result of the use of alcoholic drinks. Why? We have just mentioned that life now depends largely upon the quick action of the mind and a rapid response of the muscles to the needs of the body. The first action of alcohol is to break up the connection between the mind and body, to confuse the mind, and to slow muscular action. Hence even if the mind notes that the body is in danger and orders the muscles to act, the order is badly mixed up in reaching the muscles, an dthe response may be directly opposite from what it should be. The worst of it is that the owner of the mind does not realize the difficulty and proceeds serenely on his destructive way until he is either killed, injured, or taken out of circulation in some other way.

These reactions to alcohol operate as surely in the army as in civil life. In our present defense needs, the protective armament is very largely mechacnial and often exceedingly complicated, requiring the finest training and muscular response (co-ordination) possible. As a man's life—and the lives of others—in an airplane depends upon the accurate judgment and co-ordination of the pilot, and both judgment and coordination are badly disturbed by alcohol, it stands to reason that a man who indulges in alcohol is not going to be trusted with such an important assignment.

Temperance Essential

The same is true in practically every other part of the modern army, and if our country is to survive in a crisis depending upon defense, we must have a trained defense force that is relatively free from the disturbances of alcohol. By this I do not mean that no one will ever touch beer or wine, though that would be highly desirable, but that the amount will be greatly lessened and the time in which they are used very much restricted.

An air pilot who has alcoholic inclinations is not going to last long on his job, for not only is there danger to the lives of others besides himself, but he is in charge of a very expensive machine, which takes months to replace if damaged or destroyed, and one on which the safety of our country may largely depend. He would promptly be "grounded," and if his course were not immediately and radically altered, he would be removed entirely from his assignment. Not only does he not have to drink to be a soldier, but if he does drink he cannot occupy any responsible position.

Even in the olden days when everyone in the army was supposed to be drunk on payday, it was comparatively few who caused this idea to spread. I have seen the army at a time when morale was very low, when most of us were in small frontier garrisons, with little to do except wait for something to happen, with slow promotion and small pay, and yet the number who resorted to alcoholic forgetfulness was small. Some of the men did use moderate amounts of beer and wines. Some of us never touched any alcoholic drink, and there were many more of the latter class than we have ever been credited with. As time has gone on and our duties have become more complex, the number using alcoholic drinks and the amount used has greatly lessened.

Industry has done much to limit the use of alcoholics, for accuracy of eye and hand are of the utmost importance, and industry cannot afford to have men injured and machines damaged by alcoholic in-co-ordination. In many industries if a man is even seen or known to visit places where liquor is dispensed, he is summarily dismissed. In others he is warned, and a repetition is not tolerated. These stern measures have been found necessary to protect industry from destruction, for industry is now responsible for injuries to its employees, and injuries are greatly multiplied when men drink any form of booze. It does not matter in what form alcohol enters the body. Its action is always the same, though the conveyers may differ in amount and taste. But however disguised, it is still alcohol, and alcohol is always destructive to human bodies.

Strength for Leadership

The days when soldiers were regarded as merely something in human form that had little or no brain (or if they had it, it was not necessary to use it) have gone for good. It is truer than ever that soldiers need to work together, and for team play, whether on a university football squad, or in an army drill squad, discipline is necessary. Discipline is only another name for good team play, for in teamwork it is the work of the mass, rather than of the individual, that counts. And for that reason it is necessary for the mass to act as one. This requires leadership, and at the same time subordination of the individual to the group. This need not imply loss of initiative, but rather the reverse, for good team play develops leadership, and in practically any well-trained team any one of the men can immediately assume leadership if necessary. This form of training is precisely what is developed in the army, and it was effectively demonstrated on many occasions in the World War by the leadership of junior officers, sergeants, corporals, and privates. If the regular leaders were incapacitated, the next man in rank took over the command, and there were many instances where very young lads, through this training, showed surprising and very effective leadership. But leadership of this character is not found in the man who is trying to forget his troubles in drinking liquor. Moral and physical stamina do not result from the use of alcohol.

In the army, as in industry, the man at the top is constantly looking for young men that are worthy of promotion to better jobs. It is absolutely necessary in every organization to provide for understudies, i. e., someone to take over responsibility in case the leader is disabled or sick. This means a constant training of new material in higher duties. Any man at the head of an organization that can keep up this supply is doing one of the biggest things possible for the organization. It means constant observation of the possible candidates. Any man that demonstrates unusual ability, stamina or character is at once "spotted" and often given a tryout to determine whether he is worth training. And it is not among the "boozers" that this promising material is sought or found. My biggest task when heading a large hospital center in France was picking suitable men for special tasks, and I assure you that the young men are most carefully observed for possible advancement.

In our present army you not only do not have to drink to be a soldier, but if you do drink, your chances of advancement are greatly lessened. Moreover, you are opening the way for rapid physical and mental deterioration, and reducing the opportunities for reaching the highest capabilities for which your physical, mental, and spiritual endowments intended you. — by Colonel George A. Skinner, M. D., Medical Corps, U. S. Army, Ret., and from Sign of the Times.

A Week Of The War

The President established a War Production Board headed by Donald M. Nelson, former mail-order firm executive and more recently Executive Director of SPAB and Priorities Director. The President directed Mr. Nelson to "exercise general irection over the war procurement and production program," to supervise the OPM and issue production and procurement directives where necessary to all other Government agencies. The President said Mr. Nelson's decisions shall be final. Vice President Wallace and other members of the SPAB, now abolished, were made members of the War Production Board.

In letters to OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman and other production officials, Mr. Nelson said "we must enlarge all our previous activities—all our facilities—must produce 24 hours a day, 168 hours a week." OPM Director Hillman, speaking in Washington, said the nation's force of workers in war industries must be doubled or tripled, more women must be trained and brought into the labor force to take the place of men going into the armed services. He asked employers not to bar aliens in war industries except in plants turning out secret weapons.

Director Odlum of the OPM Contract Distribution Division said a plan has been prepared to set aside one percent of all available materials to assist small manufacturers in keeping their plants going until they can be converted to war use. He said the nation's entire production facilities—all of those "hidden away in thousands of cities and towns and villages"—must join in the total war effort. He asked all mayors to have every manufacturer in their cities register at the nearest OPM Contract Distribution Division field office and to "go after war contracts with every ounce of ingenuity and energy they possess."

The War Front

The Navy Department reported the sinking of five enemy vessels in Far Eastern waters — three transports and two large cargo ships. The announcement brought to 25 the total of Japanese vessels reported definitely sunk by the Navy and Marine Corps in the Pacific. The Navy also announced two allied merchant vessels were attacked by Axis submarines off Long Island. Throughout the week Gen. MacArthur reported heavy land and air fighting in the Philippines but said American and Philippine troops were putting up effective resistance and U. S. losses were low.

Army

War Secretary Stimson announced the Army will be increased from the present total of 1,700,000 men to 3,600,000 men this year. Combat air units and armored units will be doubled; 32 motorized divisions will be added, and at least 50 more military police units for guarding production facilities will be created. Instead of the originally scheduled 10,000, more than 90,000 privates will be selected to attend officer-training schools. All training centers and posts will be enlarged and five temporary tent camps will be set up. To make 2,000,000 more men eligible, the Army will lower age limits for aviation cadets from 20 to 18 years, make married men eligible, and change educational qualifications by eliminating college credit requirements.

Selective Service Director Hershey said the Army increase could be accomplished without calling up men with dependents. He said there are now 1,000,000 men in class 1-a but not yet called, and 900,000 more men can be obtained by reclassification of other men and from those men who will register February 16. He said deferment cases would be reexamined but deferments will continue to be given where possible to avoid undue disruption of family life. He said married men with one or more children probably will not be called until an Army of 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 has been built. He estimated 10,000,000 is the top number of men the U. S. could mobilize for service even with lowered physical standards.

Labor Disputes

The President abolished the National Defense Mediation Board and established a National War Labor Board with NDMB Chairman Davis as Chairman. Four commissioners will represent the public, four will represent employees and four, industry. The new Board has wider authority than the old Board and can arbitrate or mediate disputes as it sees fit except that it cannot disregard existing labor legislation.

The Maritime War Emergency Board established war bonuses for sailors on merchant ships.

Autos

The OPA announced auto rationing would begin February 2 in the same manner as tire rationing. Of the 202,000 cars in the industry quota for January, about 150,000 cars will be stored with dealers who promise not to sell without permission — probably not to be granted before January, 1943 — and then only at OPA-established prices.

OPA issued a schedule of prices for "retreadable" tire carcasses and "retreads" and forecast a ceiling over all used tires "in the very near future." Federal Loan Administrator Jones announced plans to increase synthetic rubber production capacity to 400,000 tons by pooling of resources and skills of the rubber and oil industries if priorities can be obtained on steel needed to erect plants. OPA Administrator Henderson said tire rationing would probably not be affected because of increasing military needs for rubber.

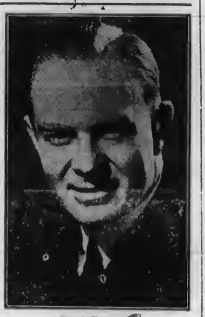
Censorship

Censorship Director Price, after consultation with newspaper, magazine and periodical editors, announced a code of conduct which publications were asked to follow in handling information in order to prevent information of a military nature reaching the enemy. Prohibited, unless officially released, are most details of military naval or industrial establishments casualty lists, damages to war facilities, movements of troops and ships, weather reports except of certain types, and movements of the President or of official military or diplomatic missions.

Agriculture

Agricultural Secretary Wickard said goals have been revised to call for the greatest agricultural production in U. S. history, with particular emphasis on the production of oil-bearing crops such as peanuts and soybeans. The corn goal was stepped up by five million acres in order that there be feed supplies to continue expansion of meat, dairy and poultry production. Dry edible bean and dry pea production increases were called for. An additional five million bushels of rice was asked and provision made for an increase over 1941 of more than 18 million cases of canned fruits and vegetables.

Civilian Defense



The OCD announced 3,516,600 volunteers have enrolled in the various civilian defense services, including 1,423,755 assigned to training or duty in the protective services. The Office also announced a Victory Garden Program under which all families in any community can jointly till community gardens, use the produce themselves and give the surplus to schools and institutions.

Surgeon General Parran told the U. S. Conference of Mayors in Washington "the enemy has planned and in my opinion will use bacteriological warfare whenever possible." He asked the mayors to begin at once to take every possible precaution.

Conservation

The OPM Bureau of Industrial Conservation opened a program to mobilize the nation's 1,700,000 retail stores in a continuous drive to salvage materials — wastepaper, scrap metal, old rags, rubber — needed to produce weapons for the fighting forces. Signers will display window emblems signifying their part in the "Salvage for Victory" program. The shopping public was asked to help conserve tires, trucks, and paper by carrying home bundles instead of depending on delivery service. Consumers of natural gas in nine States, mostly in the Midlewest, were asked to cut consumption as much as possible.

Assembly Lines on Way to Win War

Paul Garrett

DETROIT—American assembly lines are on their way to win the war, since victory by the fighting forces stems not only from the courage of the people but also from the superiority of machines, Paul Garrett, Vice President and Director of Public Relations, General Motors Corporation, declared recently.

Citing the "thought on the heart of every patriot that we as a people put aside all selfish differences for the duration of this war and unselfishly unite our efforts for the victory of our armed forces," Mr Garrett proposed "an American primer on how to help further the victory we all seek." Among others, he listed these suggestions:

1.—Let us work for victory through a better understanding in America that never was industry more united than now on winning this war at any cost;

2.—Let us work for victory through a better understanding in America of what it is we are fighting for;

3.—Let us work for victory through a better understanding in America that differences between management and employes should be submerged in getting the war job done;

4.—Let us work for victory through a better understanding in America that there is hope for a world of 1960 that transcends anything yet known if we will but imagine and build it.

The machine has become, Mr. Garrett said, "at this grave hour the protector of people's right to work and live in a free America. Nothing so has captured the imagination of the public as our new military machines. With them comes a new realization that back of the mechanized equipment for the war front must in turn be other giant machines—machines for production in factories and shops, and still further back still more machines and skills to make this production equipment.

"The assembly line is now on its way to win the war. Our basic knowledge in producing for civilian wants has given us the know-how in producing for war wants. I mean the know-how to design and build great new plants and new equipment to make intricate new weapons of war. Supplementing the new facilities, this know-how has enabled us frequently to adapt precision tools, designed to build the world's best industrial products, to building the world's best war machines.

"The task devolving upon industry is to focus on production of war items urgently needed all the energy and vigor and skill that can be gathered. It will tax resources, it will tax manpower, it will tax temperaments. But it is a job industry must and will do."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom up [illegible] suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour? We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets ; this may be just what you need!

She was born March 17, 1929, being at the time of her death 12 years, 9 months and 27 days. She had been ill with diabetes for the past two years. Everything that human hands and medical science could do was done but God took her home.

She was Secretary of Junior Training Union and Junior Girls Auxiliary, and a member of Girl Scout Troop, No. 8, of Latonia Baptist church.

She leaves to mourn her passing her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hudson and sister Owenita, her grandparents, Mrs. Joe Eskridge of Latonia, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Hudson of Verona; 4 aunts, Mrs. William Whitson of Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Roy Smith of Cleves, Ohio, Miss Mary Eskridge of Latonia and Mrs. Thos. Fanthrop of Covington, and one uncle, Lloyd Hudson of Hollywood, Calif.; two cousins, Betty and Marjorie Smith of Cleves, Ohio, besides a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted at 1:30, Friday, by her devoted pastor, Rev. John E. Huss and concluded at the Hamilton Funeral Home, Verona, with burial in the New Bethel Cemetery. J. L. Hamilton & Son were in charge of funeral arrangements.

Her sun has gone down, while all was fair and bright.

But it shines today in the far away hills, in the land that knows no night.

Some day when the sunset sky is gold, we'll follow thee into the west.

And join thee in the heavenly fold on the happy hills and rest.

Loveda was appropriately named for the first four letters of her name spell one of the greatest words in existence— love — God himself is love. Paul said "And here abideth faith, hope, love and the greatest of these is love. And in her Christian life Loveda exemplified the Christian spirit of love. She loved Jesus, home, parents, sister; her church and her pastor.

Such a beautiful life of love has gone into the presence of God, not ours to know the reason why, unanswered is our prayer, but ours to wait for God's own time to lift the cross we bear. Not ours to know the reason why from loved ones we must part, but ours to live in faith and hope through bleeding in the heart.

Not ours to know the reasons why this anguish, strife and pain, but ours to know a crown of thorns, sweet graces for us gain.

A cross, a bleeding heart, and crown, what greater gifts are given?

Be still my heart and murmur not, these are the Keys of Heaven.

Fair Gronnds Deeded To Boone County

Boone County received the deed for a permanent Fair Grounds on Friday, Jan. 16, according to Charles Riley, Chairman of the County Fair Grounds Committee. A perpetual lease was given by the county to the 4-H and Utopia Club Council to use the ground for educational and recreational purposes.

The lake will be constructed this spring. The 4-H and Utopia Club Council advises that the building program may progress slowly and will cover a period of several years. A blue print plan of the to be completed grounds will be made and each tree planted or building constructed will be located according to this plan. No big developments or showing on the grounds can be expected this year, but steady and continued progress will be made.

330 Boone County citizens and friends pledged financial support for the grounds, and these names will be made a part of the deed and permanent record in the County Clerk's office.

Bearcats Best Dry Ridge and Crittenden

The Bearcats of Walton-Verona High school took the measure of two Penogran Conference teams during the past week, and neither of the contests were especially exciting, or close. The Cats bowled over Crittenden, last Friday night 61 to 33, and Tuesday night of this week trounced Dry Ridge by a 51 to 31 count, giving the locals a 56-point average for the two contests. Both games were played on the Walton floor.

The Cats were in front throughout in the Crittenden game, showing the way 17-7 at the end of the first quarter; 27-15 at the half, and 47-22 at the close of the third period, with the final count being 61-33.

High scorer for the winners was DeMoisey, with 15. Groger was next with 12 and Welsh was third with 11. For Crittenden, May was tops, with 15 points.

Walton's second team won the opening contest by a 31 to 17 score.

Tuesday night's game with Dry Ridge was a bit closer, the Cardinals showing apt ability at hitting the hoop from well out in the floor. However, they trailed all during the fray. Walton-Verona leading 19-9 at the end of the first quarter, 31-21 at the intermission, 40-23 at the close of the third frame, and 51-31 at the close of activities.

Machinery Survey Conducted by Schools

The Boone County Agricultural Defense Board met with the County Superintendent of Schools, farm machinery dealers and farm engineering specialist from the College of Agriculture, in a meeting at Burlington last Tuesday, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The Board submitted the National Defense Farm Machinery Repair program, which calls for immediate action on the repair of all machinery in preparation for the coming crop season. Immediate ordering of new parts and the overhauling and repairing of all machinery is important. Production quotas allow for only 83% of the new machinery to be sold in 1942, as was in 1940. Increased production and shortage of labor will call for more power equipment this year and there is a possibility of a shortage of repair parts when the cropping season gets under way.

The Board urged that all farmers repair their machinery and order direct from their dealers, needed new parts. ORDER NOW!!

Prof. D. H. Norris pledged the support of the schools in making a county survey of farm machinery needs. Each school will arrange to contact farmers in its district. All farmers are urged to cooperate fully in this movement, in order that agriculture may be fully prepared to do its biggest defense job; "Produce sufficient food for the Nation and the Victory fighting forces."

BOONE COUNTY STUDENTS AT U. C. EVENING COLLEGE

University of Cincinnati Evening College officials have a high opinion of Boone County residents, Prof. G. W. Kingsbury, assistant to the dean, has indicated in a dispatch to this paper.

Five Boone County towns, although among the smaller towns in Northern Kentucky, send a greater percentage of their residents to the Evening College than does any other Blue Grass community.

Florence is represented by seven students, Union and Burlington by three each, Petersburg by two and Constance by one.

"The fact that residents of these towns take the time and trouble to travel great distances each week, stamps the county and the community as forward looking," Prof. Kingsbury said.

At present the Evening College has an enrollment of 5,888, the largest in its history and the fourth largest Evening College in the country.

by JAMES PRESTON

The opinion is unanimous here that, throughout the war, the unionization cause will make gains.

From present indications, labor is asking a return for its all-out cooperation in war production. It seeks, as consideration to bind the bargain, a voice in management.

Industrialists and industry men in the OPM view this development with alarm. They feel that this country is today facing a labor problem of far greater significance than it did when it had defense strike after defense strike to contend with. The fight over giving labor a share in management is waged bitterly behind the scenes here.

Labor's demand stems back to last fall, when Philip Murray, president of the CIO, presented his "industry council plan."

The Murray plan contemplates the establishment of councils for every industry. These councils would be composed of an equal number of labor and management representatives, with a chairman to represent the public appointed by the President. The industry would then be run from top to bottom by its council.

The Murray plan was widely criticized at the time of its proposal. It was pointed out by economists, both friendly and unfriendly to labor, that the management of an industrial enterprise requires a specialized type of skill. The fact that a man makes a good labor leader does not, of itself, qualify him to share in the direction of industry. There is, it was pointed out, no correlation between the two.

The public was let in on this controversy by press reports of the fight over the conversion of the automobile industry to armament production.

During the negotiations about the automobile industry, labor leaders consistently called for the adoption of the Reuther plan, which is an adaptation of the Murray plan to the automobile industry, worked out by one of Philip Murray's proteges.

Nor have CIO leaders been content merely to cheer while the automobile industry fight was on. They have plans already prepared for industry-labor committee operation of the steel industry, the aluminum industry and the copper and all other non-ferrous metal industries. All these plans provide that labor shall have an equal voice with management in the operation of the industry in question.

The President's budget for the next fiscal year, like all governmental finances, at least since the defense effort began, cites figures which, to Mr. Average Citizen, are astronomical in size.

It was, therefore, with a sigh of relief that Congressmen received the translation of the President's production schedule into terms which they and their constituents can understand. It is felt here that the National Association of Manufacturers' picture of the proposed program in the practical terminology of labor supply, floor space and machinery is a comprehensive one.

To meet President Roosevelt's schedule of 125,000 planes by 1943 it will be necessary to turn out one plane every four minutes, the NAM disclosed. In order to meet the President's estimate of production of 8,000,000 dead-weight tons of merchant shipping during 1942, it will be necessary to sustain a rate of approximately two ships a day, it was pointed out.

Candid shots: Not only is the radio industry giving full aid to Uncle Sam, but the support of amateur raido operators has also been enlisted. The FCC, at the request of the Defense Communications Board, ordered all amateur radio operators to stop sending. It is felt that cessation of amateur transmissions will give the FCC, the Army and other government agencies an opportunity to police the situation. The Government is aware that amateur operators are valuable in the war effort, and is working out plans for the use of "hams" in its wide program.

Businessmen here are encouraged by the pledge of the Selective Service Director, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, to consider the needs of industry in granting deferments to draftees.

TIME TO STOP RAIDING THE COOKIE JAR

Special taxes on Kentucky motorists during the last five years, July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1941, amounted to $8,300,000. The annual $1 drivers' license fee produced $2,180,000 and the 3% sales tax on automobiles brought in $6,120,000. None of this money was used for road purposes but was diverted to the state general fund for non-highway uses. An amendment to the state Constitution to stop the practice of diversion is being urged by Kentucky motorists.

Snappy Sandwiches

If there is any member of your family who has to carry a lunch to work or school, he will be mighty glad if you try some new sandwich fillings frequently. His "daily bread" could become very monotonous unless you do. Here are some words to the wise sandwich-maker: Be sure you use fillings that are moist enough and spread them out to the very edges—also cut with a sharp knife so they are not crushed; and for the carry-along lunch it is best to use very fresh bread because the sandwiches have to stand awhile before they are eaten anyway.

Salmon Sandwich Filling

Drain, clean and flake with fork—
1 pound red canned salmon.
Mix with—
¼ cup India relish
¼ cup mayonnaise

For the Cooky Jar

Cookies are a great convenience when they are kept on hand at all times—this is one truth our grandmothers knew and depended upon. If you have cookies in the jar, you have something to accompany a fruit dessert as well as a sweet to serve with tea or fruit juice if guests drop in of an afternoon.

Be sure to have a great number of cooky recipes in your file so you can please your family and friends with the variety of cookies you serve them. Here is a grand new recipe made with crispy rice flakes cereal.

Rice Flakes Drop Cookies

Sift together—
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda.
Cream—
¾ cup butter.
Add gradually, creaming well—
1 cup sugar.
Add, one at a time—
2 eggs.
Beat until fluffy after addition of each. Add—
1½ cups rice flakes
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped nuts.
Add sifted dry ingredients, then stir in, to blend well—
4 tablespoons milk.

Drop by teaspoons on a slightly greased cooky sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

The Monthly Story Magazine

In this essay I am not attempting to advertise any pulp magazine now in existence; hence I shall not call names, though I am sure that many of the readers of this column can supply them instantly, for pulp magazines had a great vogue thirty years ago. I sometimes wonder whether the general reader has advanced as much as we like to think; when I see the trashy things exposed for sale in any news stand, I believe that many people would be better off with the cheap little harmless magazine, fifty cents a year or less, which brought the outside world to many a rural home.

Continued stories were their stock in trade. We readers thrived on this sort. When we had got our hero into a very tight place, we discovered that it would be a whole month before we could find out what happened. We discussed the possibilities with the neighbodrs and watched the days go by until the next issue appeared. Sometimes we got so interested in the story that we could not wait until our turn came to read silently but got some member of the family to read aloud the thrilling adventures of the sentimental characters. Fortunately, most of us had colds practically all the time and were not obvious when we blew our noses fiercely during the reading of the story.

We regularly took two of these Augusta, Maine, pulp magazines, which came, accommodatingly, with a small interval between the two. In this fashion we could all get our reading done up in time for the next magazine. Sometimes we were carrying on a good dozen exciting stories that ran indefinitely. I recall that I read St. Elmo in this fashion, in twenty-two monthly installments. I nearly wore my nervous system thread bare with the monthly tension. One installment left us right in the midst of a "waiting-at-the-church" episode; a month later we discovered that the girl left rudely by her betrayer had a hemmorhage and died in the next installment.

Not all the stories were serials, but most of them were tearful and pious. Such villians as they contained! And such heroes and heroines! We would get positively wrathful (we probably excused ourselves by calling it "righteously indignant") at the villian and wish we could kill him. We shed many a furtive tear at the plight of the sweet, helpless little heroine; some of the pages of the pulp magazine were rather puckery after a whole family had cried over the same sad story.

But there were other things besides fiction, though that was the most important. One magazine ran a column for young people, presided over by a cripple of some pretentions to being a poet. His advice to the rather wooden correspondents was practically always sensible and straight-forward. Many of country home held as a treasure the autographed volume of his verse. And some of us saw our names in print first when we sent in our artless and painfully written letters to dis department.

Women and girls got ideas for clothes from the patterns advertised, but, of course, these were useless pages to us boys. There were recipes, but again they seemed silly; pies and cakes and such-like truck just grew. Our mothers did not need a lot of foolish directions about taking a spoonful of this or that; quantity was what we wanted, whether it was teacakes or hot biscuits.

I wonder what the farm woman is reading today.

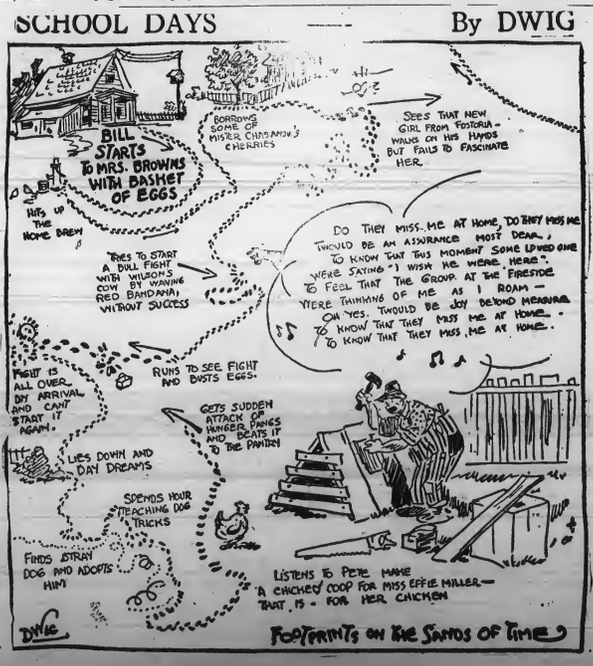
Every Patriotic American Salutes His Nation's Flag

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag, or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute.

Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute.

Those men not in uniform should remove their headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart.



Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart.

The salute to the Flag in a moving column is rendered as the Flag approaches the spectator and is held until it has passed.

Money Talks

Frederick Stamm, Economist

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Many times within the last month I have been asked if prices were going much higher and if it were advisable to put in a large supply of groceries, linens, woolens, clothing and other household necessities. Right now it seems advisable to buy ahead wherever possible and in this way to get set for tax and price increases that are sure to come in the weeks and months ahead.

Several factors lead me to believe prices are headed upward. First, Congress does not seem inclined to place a ceiling on farm prices. The price control bill now before Congress, if passed in its present form, will permit an increase in the price of farm products of from 15% to 25%. This would be passed on to the consumer immediately. Second, a federal sales tax of some type seems inevitable. For many months President Roosevelt has opposed a sales tax, but recently he has hinted that he will accept such a tax. This tax will produce several billion dollars each year and Congress knows it. It is also a fairly easy tax to collect and it will be added to the price of the article you buy.

We are already paying much higher prices than we did a year ago. In addition we cannot buy many things such as automobiles and tires. Refrigerator manufacturers believe that very soon there will be a further drastic cut in the number they can produce and their products will be rationed. Manufacturers of woolen goods predict that there will be a curb on civilian use of woolens by fall. All indications point to higher prices. I do not advocate hoarding, but it seems to me advisable to buy prudently and save some money. This applies both to individuals and to business firms.

This American Tire Made From This American Bush

O'Neil Jones Kloesner

Proving that manufacture of tires from the American grown guayule shrub is practical, William O'Neil, president of The General Tire & Rubber Co., has turned over to Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, a specimen of the mature plant and a tire made entirely of guayule rubber. The tire was made in the same General Tire plant and in the same machines used in making tires from far eastern rubber. O'Neil has urged the development of guayule as an emergency rubber supply for years. A bill now before Congress calls for the immediate planting of all available guayule seed in the states of Texas, California, New Mexico and Arizona. Because it thus far is impossible to make a tire from synthetic rubber alone, O'Neil is urging the growth of guayule to supplement the 400,000 ton production of synthetic already announced by Jones. American Legion Posts in all parts of the country are supporting the O'Neil guayule program, which O'Neil discussed this week with Secretary Jones and H. J. Kloesner, president of the Rubber Reserve Corporation.

Order Your Farm Machinery Repair Parts NOW

The war program will increase the difficulty of obtaining new farm machinery and repair parts for old ones. The wise farmer will inspect his machines and order the necessary parts NOW.

When ordering new parts you need to furnish your implement dealer with the offlowing information:

1. Kind of machine, name of manufacturer, model or year purchased.
2. Name or description of parts needed.
3. Number of parts. (The number is usually stamped on steel parts or cast into the casting.)
4. In case of doubt, take the damaged part to your implement dealer.

With the labor shortage it is more important that farmers put their farm machinery into good working condition during the war period.

Its a good time to make an inventory of your needs and visit your implement dealer and order the repair parts you need to operate your farm machinery.

If you have usable farm machinery for sale, contact your local county agent. If you desire to attend a farm machinery repair school be sure to register so that you can receive notice of meetings.

WHAT HAPPENS TO BEER TAX MONEY?

A—State taxes and license fees paid by Kentucky's legal brewing industry go into the State's General Fund.

Q—Where does the money go from there?

A—Revenue from beer in 1941 was used for education in public schools, colleges, normal schools, etc.; for public welfare, including old age assistance, aid to dependent children, confederate pensions, health service, and penal and eleemosynary institutions; and for expenses of State government.

Q—What would happen if this revenue from beer were not available to the State?

A—Kentuckians would have to dig down deeper into their own pockets to provide the money.

YOU CAN HELP preserve these benefits from legal beer in two ways—(1) Buy your beer only in wholesome, law-abiding places; (2) Report any law violations you may see to the authorities or to this Committee.

GIRL RECERVE NEWS

The work of the Girl Reserve of Walton-Verona High school for the first semester is as follows:

At the first meeting of the Girl Reserves. the following officers were elected: President, Geraldine Elliott; Vice President, Jane Alderson; Secretary. Helen Hancock; Treasurer, Cordelia Leathers; Pianist. Thelma Moore; Choirister, Ellen Miskell.

Mrs. Brugh. the sponsor of the Girl Reserve, has been ill but we have her back with us again. We missed her greatly but were favored by Mrs. Stephenson's assistance and cooperation.

A question arose on what kind of work we should do for the Red Cross. It was decided that we should make booties.

Our most important work of the year was our gifts and entertainment for the men and women of the County Farm.

We are proud to mention that Ella Mae Chambers, a member of the Walton-Verona Girl Reserve Club, was chosen as Vice President of the Conference of Northern Kentucky. We are hoping to do more this semester.

During the year we sold pencils to earn money. We were very successful, as we sold everyone.

We also took part in a bakery sale. which was also very successful.

The Girl Reserves are proud to announce that we have $16.80 in the treasury. This is more than the Girl Reserve Club has had in its account for a number of years.

Our Vice President, Jane Alderson. left our community, so at our meeting on January 22 we elected Jean Farris as our new Vice President.—Reporter.

Varied Treatment Recommended For "Common Colds"

ON February first of this year 400,000,000 Americans will be inflicted with colds.

But the victim who announces that he has a "common cold" is rendering a diagnosis which few competent physicians would dare to support—at least in the first few days. For, as Gretta Palmer explains in the February Cosmopolitan magazine, just half of all disabling diseases start with the same symptoms as a cold, and the list includes measles, diphtheria, tuberculosis and scarlet fever.

Assuming, however that you belong to the majority of today's sufferers who are actually suffering from a cold, what you may ask, has medical science to offer you? There are some definite recommendations, but Miss Palmer points out that doctors frankly disagree about the cause and cure of the cold. The findings of laboratory workers have frequently been in conflict even on such elementary matters as whether a cold is caused by a germ, or by temperature changes in the atmosphere, or by errors in the diet.

A recently published medical report, Miss Palmer states, emphasized the fact that there are many varieties of cold and the treatment for one variety, however good it may be, is not the best treatment for some other type of cold. But in any cold, self-medication is always a dangerous thing unless it has been properly diagnosed—and Miss Palmer adds that no cold has been diagnosed until a doctor has observed its symptoms and made a number of tests.

But there are a few things you should do no matter what kind of cold you have. As Miss Palmer has outlined them they are:

Go to bed and stay there. Forget the old adage "Stuff a cold and starve a fever. All doctors agree that a diet made up largely of fruit juices, soups and other liquids is best for the sufferer. Drink at least six glasses of water a day. Stay in a warm room, away from drafts. But, if possible, avoid air that is too dry.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

The year is far too new for golfing,
I think I'll do some futile resoling.
I'll never back another horse—
Unless I'm sure he'll win, of course.
I'll munch no more on starchy food,
I'll pay my bills before I'm sued.
Schubert I'll not confuse with Schumann
And I'll never, never argue with a wumann.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

CORN PRINCE SAYS SOIL IMPROVEMENT HELPED WIN CROWN

MILFORD, ILL.—Take it from 17-year-old Everett Smiley, winning the crown of Corn Prince of North America is a man-sized job.

Everett ought to know, for his 10-ear sample of hybrid corn had to be well-nigh perfect to beat the entries of thousands of other junior farmers at the recent International Livestock Exposition in Chicago.

The new Corn Prince is a veteran exhibitor at the International. He began entering corn at the age of

EVERETT SMILEY

12 and has been back ever since. Last year he almost won the regional prize. His older brother, Curtis, beat him out, but Everett took second.

Then and there he resolved to be a champion. Last spring he obtained some Hybrid U. S. 13 seed: He gave special attention to fertilizing, tilling and cultivating. He spent five hours a day hoeing corn many times during the growing season.

His hard work was rewarded when the judges at the show pronounced his corn one of the finest entries ever exhibited.

Everett has learned the value of soil improvement from his father. Mr. Smiley realizes that fertility is his greatest asset. So, on his 80-acre farm near Milford, he follows a rotation of corn, oats and alfalfa. And he believes in putting back into the soil plant food elements needed to meet the demands of heavy-yielding crops. This year he limed his soil at the rate of 2½ tons per acre and made a heavy application of superphosphate.

The methods used on the Smiley farm have proved effective on millions of other corn belt farms. Farmers realize that fertilized corn is better corn.

Better Farm Methods Plus Fertilizer Boost Yield

CHICAGO.—A two-fold recipe for stepping up the production of foods and fibers needed specially in the defense program was given midwestern farmers in a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The two ingredients," says the statement, "are improved farming methods and the judicious use of fertilizer. By improved farming methods is meant taking advantage of the ever-accumulating store of information resulting from tests and research of various fertilizers by the state agricultural colleges and experiment stations as well as by the Department of Agriculture."

'PADLOCK' DEFENSE CROPS IN KENTUCKY WITH SOIL CARE

CHICAGO.—Soil conservation as a "padlock" to safeguard Kentucky farm fertility for the production of bumper crops for Uncle Sam's war effort was recommended in a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The matter of preventing fertility 'leaks' is becoming increasingly important," says the statement, "in view of growing demands for emergency crops for the Food for Freedom program.

"Essentially, soil conservation means putting back into the farmer's land the plant food elements that have been drained away by generations of harvests.

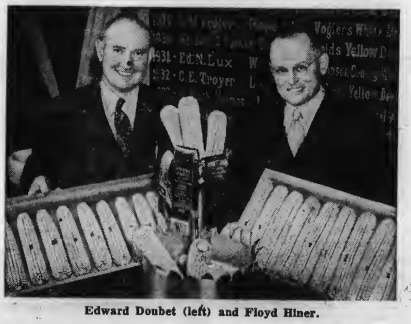
"Soil vigor has been exhausted on hundreds of thousands of midwestern farms due to lack of attention to management methods.

"The result is that today when farmers everywhere are being urged to make real the slogan 'Food Will Win the War,' wornout fields on thousands of farms are unable to produce high-yielding, profitable crops needed in this vital effort.

"Only by sound soil practices including a steady program of fertility replacement through the application of plant foods can the continuous productivity of a farm be assured. The soil wears out the same as implements wear out unless constant care is exercised and important parts replaced. Soil repair through the use of fertilizer returns about a 3-to-1 dividend."

KENTUCKY FARMERS BOOST CROP YIELDS WITH PLANT FOOD

LEXINGTON, KY. — How soil improvement promoted increased yields of tobacco, hybrid corn and pasture crops on Kentucky farms this year was described in a bulletin made public here by the Extension Division of the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture.



"Gail Creamer of Fleming County increased his tobacco yield more than 30 per cent as the result of a program of fertilization," says the bulletin. "He cut an average of 1,466 sticks to the acre this season, compared with 1,100 sticks—his highest previous average.

"Creamer broadcast 375 pounds of 20 per cent superphosphate to the acre, according to County Agent Crem LaMaster. Then he drilled into the row a mixture of 125 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds each of ammonium sulphate and sulphate of potash.

"Jim Hester of Logan County tried a four-fold test with identical plots planted to hybrid corn. One area of unfertilized land produced 29 bushels to the acre. A plot treated with limestone alone yielded 36 bushels. Superphosphate alone produced 40 bushels; while superphosphate and limestone together produced 48 bushels of corn per acre.

"The value of soil improvement in boosting the yield of bluegrass, timothy, redtop, Korean lespedeza and red clover was illustrated by tests conducted by John Worthington, of Boone County."

Corn Champs Give Success Recipe

CHICAGO.—"You've got to feed the soil if you expect the soil to feed you!"

That's what Ed Doubet and Floyd Hiner will tell you. And they'll prove to you that soil improvement not only helped them produce bumper crops, but put them in the front rank of farm folks in the United States.

For Doubet and Hiner are the Corn Kings of North America. They won that honor jointly at the recent International Grain and Hay Show in Chicago—the first time the championship had ever been split. Their 10-ear exhibits of hybrid corn were so nearly perfect, the judges broke the deadlock only by awarding a co-crown.

Doubet, who farms 340 acres near Hanna City, Ill., keeps up his soil's productivity by being eternally vigilant about its fertility level. He puts back into the land plant food elements removed by crops. He limes regularly and uses a generous application of 0-20-20 fertilizer every year. He follows a regular rotation of soybeans, oats and corn. Manure from livestock provides an additional soil builder.

The corn that won him national honors is a yellow dent hybrid Doubet developed himself. The plot on which it was grown produced an average of 106 bushels to the acre.

Over near Lewisville, in Rush County, Floyd Hiner farms 160 acres with his father. His prize-winning corn was an Indiana hybrid 844-D developed by Purdue University agronomists.

The key to Hiner's success is soil conservation. He and his father are firm believers in crop rotation, the use of legumes, lime and fertilizers to build up and maintain the soil's fertility. They believe, likewise, in livestock, feed 250 hogs and numerous cattle and return the manure to the land.

An essential feature of the Hiners' program is the use of fertilizer. On all the corn land a heavy application of a fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash is made.

"YOUR AMERICAN DUTY—

A $500 scholarship is offered to the winner of a patriotic public speaking contest to be conducted by the Kentucky Bankers Association. Twenty-seven other prizes are also to be awarded.

"Your American Duty—To Buy Defense Bonds," is the timely subject chosen for discussion. The bankers of the state hope to bring home to every community, not only the attractiveness of these defense bonds as an investment but that the purchase of these savings bonds and stamps is our American duty.

Each county will have a contest of its own, to be held on or before April 15th. The group contest for this section will be held at Newport on April 24th.

Any bona fide High School Senior or Junior under 20 years of age on Feb. 1 is eligible to participate in this contest.

Enrollment must be made with the office of the Secretary of the Ky. Bankers Assn., 400 Hilliard Bldg., Louisville, specifying the school's desire to participate in the contest and such enrollment must be made on or before March 20, 1942.

STRAIGHT FROM NEW YORK

EVENING GLITTER

Here's that "glitter" so smart for formal evening dresses for gala occasions, high points of the holiday season. Often the bodice, or bodice and peplum, are a mass of gleaming sequins, while the skirt is in plain fabric. Or the entire dress may be sprinkled over with sequins, as in this New York creation made of gold taffeta. Here the glitter follows a delicate spider-web design, spreads all over the bouffant skirt and tight fitting, low-cut bodice.

JESUS CALLS FOUR DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 5:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17.

Followers of Christ are those who have not counted their goods nor their persons their own, but have willingly yielded all to Him. Obviously many who profess to follow Him have only done so in that measure which will not interfere with their own plans and interests. They need to study this lesson with care.

The call of Christ is one which demands willing and wholehearted obedience.

I. Yielded Possessions (vv. 1-3).

These disciples had already responded to the ministry of Jesus and had followed Him for a time (see John 1:35-4:54), but they did not yet know the fullness of surrender to Christ and had now gone back to their old work of fishing. May they not be typical of many in our day who know the Lord and have for a time followed Him closely, but have again become engrossed in their daily vocation, perhaps just making money?

Jesus was now ready to call them out into a lifetime of service, and the first thing He did was to ask the use of their chief possession, their boat. That was first yielded to Him.

It was not by chance that it was Peter's boat which was just at hand when the Master needed it. Such things do not "just happen." The destinies of men are in the hands of God, and with His children the simplest happening is known to and controlled by Him. He who numbers the hairs on our heads, He who observes the fall of the sparrow, knows about everything that happens to us.

II. Yielded Service (vv. 4-7).

Having completed His teaching by word, Jesus had a special object lesson for Peter and the others concerning the fruitlessness of service apart from His guidance and control, and the blessed results which come from obedience to Him.

Taking them where he found them, He showed the disciples that He was the Master even of their secular vocation of fishing. He is the One who knows more about your business than you do, who can give or withhold His blessing. All that we have has come to us from His hand, and it is all within His control.

This Almighty One was ready to call these fishermen out into the greater business of fishing for men by revealing to them His mighty power to bless and prosper the fisherman—who becomes a fisher of men.

III. Yielded Lives (vv. 8-11).

The giving of their possessions, the yielding of their work into His hands in obedience, led up to His call for the yielding of their lives.

Often we speak of God's claims upon the life of the Christian as though it were the fiat of an autocrat, one who demands his rights. God might well do so, for He has full authority and power over all of us, but He is a gracious God and gently leads His children along to the place where they make their own decision to leave all and follow Him.

The work of God in the world is carried on by men. The joy of proclaiming the gospel was not given to the angels, but to redeemed men and women. Knowing the regenerating grace of God in their own lives, they have been called during all this Christian era to go out to tell others.

In preparation for that ministry our Lord needed yielded lives, which He sought and found in these humble fishermen. They were not visionaries or dreamers, but were practical men with common sense. They had been disciplined in the school of common toil . . . Though unlearned so far as formal theological training was concerned, these men were teachable. Under the tutelage of the Son of God Himself they received matchless informal training . . . leading to a record of service which the world will never forget. It is that sort of teaching that counts. We, too, may learn in the school of Christ, through a study of His Word, assisted by His Spirit, and through the yielding of our lives to His control" (B. L. Olmstead).

Christ no longer walks this earth to seek and call out disciples as He did these men, but the blessed succession of those of whom it may be said, "They forsook all and followed Him" (v. 11), continues to this day.

We repeat what we have said before, that one of the thrilling things about teaching Sunday school is that somewhere, in some class this next Sunday, God is going to touch the heart of some boy or girl who will be a leader for Him for the next generation.

Kentucky Farms 'Food Arsenal' in U. S. War Effort

CHICAGO. — Stocking Kentucky's "food arsenal" so it can adequately help Uncle Sam meet defense and domestic needs is largely a matter of helping the soil do a better crop-producing job, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"In this task," says the statement, "the question of soil nourishment is of No. 1 importance. Only well fed soils can produce bumper crops and thriving beef and dairy cattle. If the soil has been drained of life-giving nitrogen, phosphorus and potash through years of cropping, a program of replacement must be undertaken.

"Farmers can determine the fertility of their soil by enlisting the cooperation of their county agent or the agronomists at the state college or experiment station. These experts will make tests and will gladly give farmers advice on the selection of plant foods best suited for their purposes and the quantity to apply.

"One of the most effective aids in making a fertilizer selection are the so-called 'Recommended Grades.' These grades have been tested by agronomists under practical growing conditions. They have proved their value in meeting various soil and crop requirements and have received the recommendation of numerous state agricultural colleges.

"These recommended grades have likewise established their value in practical tests by farmers themselves. The result of their use has been increased crop yields, lowered production costs and a building up of the soil's fertility for future crop production."

MORGANSVILLE

"Love thy neighbor as thyself." The mark of the christian is his love for Christ and love for his fellowman.

"The soul that loves does noble deeds, pleading the cause of those misfortune smites, lifting their hearts to blissful heights. By soothing every one that needs, love serves the needy, thinking not of creeds, nor counting the cost. In service it delights and sings while turning ugly wrongs to rights. Flying on golden wings where anguisr pleads, love makes the soul a fragrant paradise and from its heart unsullied pleasure flows. Stirring the songless tongue to sing with zest, true glory flames each time love can entice a weary soul to go the way it shows. For then its breaking heart will find true rest."

"New Year's morn you bring to us from Time's unending store of lives lived in days and hours, one more step onward into new, untrodden ways. We stand upon the threshold of your dawn and turn our eyes from past and fleeting years. From sad defeat, smiles and tears. Unto the rising of yon roseate morn and as each gleam of light spreads hope's bright rays of pastel glory over sea and land. We trust He, the King of manger stall, will clasp within His own our eager hand and, whether few or many untried days be ours, will stay close by and lead us all."

The cheery radiance of the Christmas tree at the Kenton church, Dec. 23, beautifully lighted with their new electric lights, dispelled the darkness of the inclement evening.

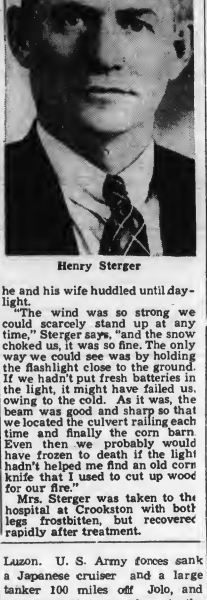
Farm Couple Caught in Blizzard Nearly Die Ten Feet From Home



STRUGGLING in darkness, paralyzing cold, and choking snow that stalled their car, blotted out all objects, and blew them off a country road into the fields, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sterger, of Fisher, Minnesota, are survivors today of an extraordinary blizzard experience.

The Stergers were not more than half a mile from their home when the blizzard caught them. It struck so suddenly that within a minute they could not keep the car on the road. When they pulled up to consider what to do, the car at once started to fill with powdered snow which the terrific wind forced in around doors and windows.

They knew they would freeze to death there, so they got out to walk the rest of the way. At once the wind seized them, blowing them off the roadway a hundred feet into a field. There Sterger got out his flashlight and, holding it close to the ground, discovered traces of plowed furrows. Clinging to each other, guided by the furrows and the direction of the wind, the two worked their way back to the road.

They used the flashlight continuously to check whether they were still on the roadway or in fields. Their progress was so slow that it was more than an hour later when their light fell on something solid at the edge of the road. They recognized this as the railing of a culvert near their home. Mrs. Sterger was now badly frostbitten and becoming exhausted.

Three times the Stergers made the turn up toward their house. Each time they failed to find it, retracing their steps to the culvert railing to take new bearings. Once, as they discovered afterward, they missed the corner of their home by less than ten feet. On their fourth trip from the railing their light disclosed a building. This turned out to be a corn barn. Sterger broke into it, found some wood and made a small fire over which he and his wife huddled until daylight.

"The wind was so strong we could scarcely stand up at any time," Sterger says, "and the snow choked us, it was so fine. The only way we could see was by holding the flashlight close to the ground. If we hadn't put fresh batteries in the light, it might have failed us, owing to the cold. As it was, the beam was good and sharp so that we located the culvert railing each time and finally the corn barn. Even then we probably would have frozen to death if the light hadn't helped me find an old corn knife that I used to cut up wood for our fire."

Mrs. Sterger was taken to the hospital at Crookston with both legs frostbitten, but recovered rapidly after treatment.

A Week Of The War

Chairman Nelson of the War Production Board abolished the OPM and transferred its functions regarding production, purchasing, priorities, materials, civilian supply and subcontracting to a new streamlined organization under the Board. In addition, Mr. Nelson created under the new Board a progress reporting and a planning unit to suggest improvements from time to time.

Mr. Nelson stressed two fundamental differences between the old and new organization; an increased amount of authority and a more definite delegation of responsibility to promote speed. He said the main objective of the new organization was the full mobilization in the war effort of every national resource, large and small.

Mr. Nelson named Ernest Kanzler to convert auto industry facilities to war use. Mr. Kanzler will have complete authority to do whatever is necessary, Mr. Nelson said. He said that he expected to appoint as many other men with similar authority for other industries as are necessary.

The War Front

President Roosevelt told his press conference an inter-allied supply council and similar joint commands are in existence, and excellent progress is being made to strengthen the position of the United Nations in the Southwest Pacific.

The Army announced Gen. MacArthur's forces have repulsed continuous heavy attacks by reinforced Japanese units on Bataan Peninsula, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy with comparatively low losses to the defenders. The entire Japanese 14th Army, together with other units, landed on Luzon. U. S. Army forces sank a Japanese cruiser and a large tanker 100 miles off Jolo, and shot down 16 enemy planes in the Philippines.

The Navy announced the freighter SS Brazos was sunk in a collision 120 miles southwest of Cape Hatteras, and during the past week U-boats sank the City of Atlanta, the Latvian freighter Cilvaria, the tankers Coimbra and Allan Jackson, and torpedoed the tanker Malay. The Navy did not announce number of U-boats sunk or captured but said "some of the recent visitors to our territorial waters will never enjoy the return trip portion of their voyage." The U. S. Navy sank three enemy merchant ships off Tokyo Bay and torpedoed a 5,000-ton enemy vessel in Binango Bay.

Report To The Nation

The Office of Facts and Figures, coordinating the information activities of all Federal agencies to keep the public informed of the war effort, issued a 62-page booklet, "Report to the Nation," outlining the defense and war programs from the beginning to the present. In separate chapters the report discusses price control activities, alien control, economic warfare, production of all necessary war items, civilian defense, war financing and all other phases of the national effort.

Autos, Trucks and Tires

The WPBordered all production of passenger cars and light trucks for any purpose halted February 1. The announcement of the order said all military demands can be filled from the stockpile of autos that will be on hand by that date and which cannot be sold without Government permission.

OPA announced that there is no prospect of rationing for used cars or of commandeering of private cars. OPA amended the auto freezing order to permit transfer of title to any vehicle under the terms of installment contracts drawn up before January 1 and repossession of any vehicle involved in a breach of such contract. The agency also amended its tire freezing rules to allow clergymen to purchase new tires and tubes. OPA put a ceiling price on materials used in retreading used tires.

Transportation

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted railroads permission to increase passenger fares 10 percent. Exempt from the increase are special fares granted to military or naval men on furlough. Permission was also granted to the Railway Express Agency, Inc., to make an emergency additional charge of 10 cents per package sent at first, second or third-class rates.

Army

The President said the United Nations are collaborating with the U. S. to effect transfers to the American armed service of the Americans who had enlisted before the war under foreign flags. War Secretary Stimson announced completion of plans for the formation of a 6th Armored Division and two additional all-Negro units; an infantry division and an air pursuit squadron. The House passed and sent to the Senate legislation appropriating $12,500,000,000 to provide 33.000 new Army planes and equipment for them.

Navy

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $15.960,000,000 for the Navy and signed a bill authorizing establishment of a special limited-service Marine Corps composed of World War veterans and older men to be used in patrolling and guarding vital facilities. The Navy announced that students in school or college who have not yet reached their 20th birthday may enlist in the Naval Reserve with permission to complete the current school year before reporting for duty.

Civilian Defense

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $100,000,000 to be used by the OCD for air raid protection of civilians. Congress authorized the appropriation and formally placed the responsibility for civilian protection with the OCD. The FBI announced it will conduct special war traffic schools for police of 120 strategically located cities. The War Department announced that in cooperation with the OCD it will establish six more schools to teach civilian defense workers protection against chemical weapons such as incendiary bombs.

Labor

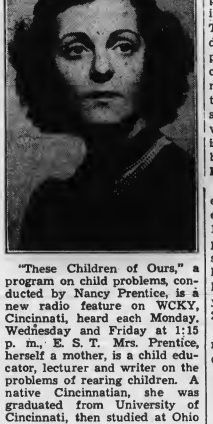
Labor Secretary Perkins reported hourly earnings of wage earners in manufacturing industries 1.5 percent to a new high of 78.1 percent — 15 percent above the same time last year. Average hours worked per week (40.3 hours) were 4 percent above last year and weekly earnings ($32.81) 2 percent higher.

Labor Director Hillman announced regional labor conferences will soon be held in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Columbus, Ohio "to bring labor organizations into the war effort on their own ground." Labor organization officials, Government officials and representatives of universities and colleges will attend the meetings.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture announced it will increase purchases of eggs to support market prices at a level at least 85 percent of parity. The Commodity Credit Corporation announced it will offer 100,000,000 bushels of wheat for sale to aid livestock producers to attain new production goals. Agricultural Marketing Administrator Henderson reported more than 2,650,000,000 pounds of agricultural commodities valued at $300,000,000 had been shipped to Britain under the Lend Lease porgram up to December 1. He said the war in the Pacific had not changed the basic program for agricultural operations—"we are continuing heavy purchases to make available the vital supply of foods for England and Russia."

Ships



The Maritime Commission awarded contracts for construction of 660 vessels. This brought the total of Liberty ships contracted for to 997. Labor Director Hillman proposed a plan to place shipyard workers on a six-day, 48-hour week in the Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lakes zones.

Priority Unemployment

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $300,000.000 to aid workers who lose their jobs temporarily because of conversion of civilian industry to war production, if the worker is willing to take special training to fit him for a war industry job. Under the program workers would receive a weekly benefit payment equal to 60 percent of regular earnings, but in no case more than $24 a week in benefits for 26 weeks. The Federal grant would make up the differece between unemployment compensation paid by the State and the 60 perment war dislocation benefit.

The WPA announced it is working on a program to shift to WPA rolls those workers dislocated by the war who do not fall within the scope of the program outlined by the President.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!
Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.
After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.
Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS

OUR RISING SUN

BROTHER OF LOCAL MAN LISTED IN 1940 EDITION OF ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

NOTE: The following article was taken from a Pueblo (Colo.) newspaper, and given to us for publication by Mrs. E. M. Hance. It concerns the late Walter K. Dudley, a brother of Dan Dudley of North Main street.—Editor.

THE REPORTER'S NOSEGAY

by Marian Buchanan

The 1940 edition of the Encyclopedia of American Biography, published under the direction of the American Historical Co., Inc., of New York, devotes most of two pages to the life of the late Walter K. Dudley, cashier of the Pueblo (Colo.) Savings & Trust Company, who passed away three years ago.

In part, the article reads: "To the people of Pueblo, Colo., Walter K. Dudley was one of its foremost citizens—beloved and honored. To the state at large and the intermountain section of the West, he was a banker who, for more than a third of a century had been an executive of an important financial institution.

"Less well known was the extent of his connection with varied affairs, or the versatility of his mentality and activities. He had pioneered in Kiowa county, served it in several capacities and had become an authority on law before he accepted a position as cashier in a bank without any previous experience. He also wielded a trenchant pen, might well have gone far in the writing of inspirational literature had he chosen, and throughout his career was introducing some new idea or thing which would make for betterment of the community and the state. He created for himself in the business, civil and social world a place attainable only by a man of unusual character, abilities and principles.

"He was the expert banker through it all, but, even more, the counselor and friend of men and women facing the dilemmas of financial distress. He helped make the institution with which he was identified a bulwark against adverse circumstances in the career of many a citizen. Because of his understanding, helpfulness and kindliness, he was one of the most esteemed men in Pueblo, as well as a person of influence among the leading bankers of Colorado."

The article closed with a quotation from "In Memoriam," published by the organ of Mr. Dudley's Masonic lodge, shortly after his passing:

"What has happened in history; our opportunity lies ahead. I wish to express to you this hope; that you may have faith—faith in the world working out its problems—faith in yourself, that begets self-reliance; courage, that you may face the future with confidence. As the curtain rises on the new year, I know that the sun will shine on the hills, the rain will come and the flowers will come and bloom again. We shall hear the laughter of children and the song of birds. We shall sow and we shall reap as we have sown."

Mr. Dudley's biography in the Encyclopedia of American Biography is among a bright galaxy of famous men. Among them are the Mayo brothers, Charles H., and William J., of the Mayo Brothers clinic, Rochester. Only one name is taken from each state for the annual edition.

He often said to friends and family, "I enjoy helping people more than anything else in the world."

And, as a prominent Puebloan said the other day, "he always had time." A few moments or a half hour or as much time as was needed could always be spared to listen to the problems of those about him. That ancient, tattered alibi, "I'd like to help you if I had time" never came from his lips. He walked in sympathy with his fellowmen and called them friends in all sincerity and proved it when he was needed.

Out in his garden today—that beloved garden to which he brought shrubs from everywhere for 35 years—there grows what he termed his "friendship trees," a type of coffee tree, from which he gave the sprouts which sprang up from year to year to his acquaintances and friends. These "friendship trees" are the treasured possessions of many Puebloans who will never forget the friendly man who sat behind the counter in the Pueblo Savings bank and gave them shrewd and unstinted advice.

A life like that of Walter K. Dudley never can be termed ended. He has gone on to some other kind of service, for service was the very fibre of his spirit for which there is no death.

MRS. SALLIE MILLER HONORED SUNDAY

The 26th being her birthday, Mrs. Sallie R. Miller was most pleasantly surprised upon returning home from church on Sunday morning to find her home filled with relatives and the air teeming with all sorts of tempting odors arising from the food which filled the table or tables, and stoves, and was scattered everywhere about. The cars had been secluded in an alley near by and not a hint was given until she heard the strains of "Happy Birthday to You," upon opening the front door. There were close to half a hundred who partook of the bountiful repast and all enjoyed the occasion greatly. With the exception of but eight, all were either sister, niece or nephew of Mrs. Miller, and of course her own family.

Those present were Mrs. Sophia Jones and Mrs. Maud Asbury of Florence; Mrs. Wate Scutter, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Milliams, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Jones and Donald Herring of Aurora, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Jones, Mrs. Georgia C. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Shearer of Erlanger; Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Stephens of Silverton, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Deer Park, Ohio; Miss Amelia B. Reib, Raymond McMillian of Cincinnati; Mrs. Anna Townsend, Mrs. Helen Herring of Covington; Mrs. Scott Jones of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Aylor, Duane Townsend, Wallace and Jane Aylor, Carra Lou and Wilma Huey of Petersburg; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, Jr., Mary Lou Jones, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Carroll, Kathryn, Bertha Mae and M. C., Jr. of Big Bone; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, Sara Kathryn, Fred Huey Miller and Betty Jean Jennings of Carrollton; Rev. and Mrs. James H. Talley and Jimmie, Mrs. Miller and Emma Jane.

Mrs. Miller was the recipient of a number of lovely gifts and a nice fat purse, besides. Thanks to her guests!—Communicated

INCREASE IN FARM BUSINESS

W. F. Gahm

A definite indication of the increased farm business in Boone, Campbell, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant Kenton, Owen and Pendleton Counties which are served by the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association is reflected by the greater amount of cash repayments made by farmer-members of the association during 1941 over 1940.

Figures just released by Leonard C. Taylor, Secretary-Treasurer of the association, show that members made each repayment on their short term loans totaling $302,900.00 in 1941, while the repayments during 1940 amounted to $254,838.00. For the centire state, the increase in the last year's cash repayments total over 1940 came to $1,202,745.00.

The 677 members of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association, a cooperative, short-term credit organization, obtained 636 loans amounting to $366,250 last year.

On February 13, the stockholders' annual meeting will be held in Williamstown and an interesting program has been arranged. One highlight of the program will be an adress by W. F. "Live at Home" Program Discussed

Plans for making more effective the 1942 "Live-at Home" program will be discussed at a District Conference at the County Agent's office, Federal Building, Covington, on Tuesday, Feb. 10th at 9:30 a. m., according to H. R. Forkner. All community and county garden and "Live at Home" program leaders are urged to attend.

The "Live at Home" program is a program designed to encourage our people to produce abundantly on the farm all needed foods possible and to so prepare these foods so that there is a maximum all year roud supply of these foods to cheaply and properly feed the family. The program thus involves not only food production but preserving this food through canning, curing, storing, etc., and the better feeding of our families through better balanced diets and better prepared foods.

The Boone County "Live at Home" program conducted during the past three years has been most successful. Our people are growing more and greater varieties of vegetables and small fruits in their gardens; producing more of their home meat supply, including pork, lamb, beef and poultry; using larger quantities of dairy and poultry products thru out the year; learning new and better methods of canning, cooking and preparin gthese food products and are better feeding our farm families.

This program is more important today than ever before. The war emergency makes it necessary that we do a better job this year.

Bearcats Hang Up Three More Wins

Cats Nip Tigers 37-19

Last Friday night Coach Lewis Shield's Bearcats met a Boone County Conference foe when they went over to New Haven for a tussle with Coach Maurer's Tigers. The home team threw a slight scare into local supporters, by taking a 9-6 lead in the first quarter. However, the Bearcats overcame this deficit in the next period and were leading 17-11 at the half. The locals maintained their advantage in the third quarter to lead 23-17 at the close of this period. In the final frame the Cats "turned on the heat" and as the game ended were holding a 37-19 advantage.

Simpson was the top scorer for the Bearcats, with 13 points. For New Haven, Stephenson was high man, with 6 points.

Led by Holder, who rang up 11 points, the Walton-Verona reserves had little difficulty in winning the opening tilt, 34-15.

Bearcats Beat Bulldogs 44-30

Saturday night on the home floor, the Cats encountered the Bulldog of Holmes High, Covington. The Blue and White rolled up a 10-0 lead in the initial period, and from then on the outcome was never doubt. The locals were in front 20-8 at the half; 28-17 at the end of the third quarter, and 44-30 was the final score.

DeMoisey, lanky Bearcat pivot man, went on a scoring spree and tossed in 18 points for the winners. Hungler, with 14 points, was high for Covington.

In the preliminary contest, the W.-V. reserves ran into some tuff opposition and were defeated 28-21 by the Bulldog second team—a team which, do doubt, gives the first-stringers many headaches in practice.

Beechies Bow 62-49

The Bearcats went to Ft. Mitchell on Tuesday night of this week where they played the Beechwood basketeers in the second of the year's two-game series. It was one of those high-scoring affairs, where each team tossed practically everything through the basket but the coaches. Walton-Verona took an early lead and were never headed by the Bechies. The Cats were in front 23-8 at the end of the first quarter; 38-23 at the half; 48-33 at the close of the third quarter, and the final count was 62-49.

Zeidler of Beechwood, was high scorer of the evening, with a total of 26 points. Running him a close second was DeMoisey, of the Bearcats, who dropped through a "mere" 20 points. Next in the scoring column, for the winners, were Pennington and Groger, who divided 21 points.

The Walton reserves won the opening battle by scoring a 33-18 win over the Beechwood second team. For the winners, Jimmy Pennington and Piner scored 10 points each.

Red Cross to Benefit Friday

Hebron comes to Walton for a Boone County Conference game on Friday night of this week, and the proceeds of this tilt will be donated to the Red Cross. You'll be there, won't you?

On Tuesday night, Feb. 10th the Bearcats will go to Williamstown for a game that will hold the interest of all basketball fans in this section. Led by Risen, a 6 ft., 8 in. lad, Williamstown has a clean slate thus far, while the locals have lost but one game. A "red hot" game is expected.

MARY BORDERS DIES OF DIABETES

Mary Borders, 63, of the Burlington-Gunpowder road, passed away last Thursday from diabetes after a six month's illness. She was born in Boone county.

Funeral services were conducted from the Hopeful Lutheran Church, near Florence, on Sunday Feb. 1st, with Rev. Roy Johnson in charge. Burial was in Hopeful cemetery.

Besides her husband, Edward Borders, she leaves three sons, two daughters, and three sisters.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Small Business: What to do about small business always ge's a rise at any gathering around town. There's sure to be someone present who is connected with the fifteen-odd Government agencies which have something more or less to do with small business. Floyd B. Odlum, small business' champion, pulls no punches when he sums up the situation by saying: "I think everybody's job is nobody's job."

The general consensus of opinion in administration and business circles is that small business has to have a guardian appointed for it. These same circles are looking to Production Chief Donald M. Nelson to tackle the problem. Sources close to Mr. Nelson anticipate that one of his first acts will be to coordinate the scattered efforts to aid small business and work out a plan to insure its survival.

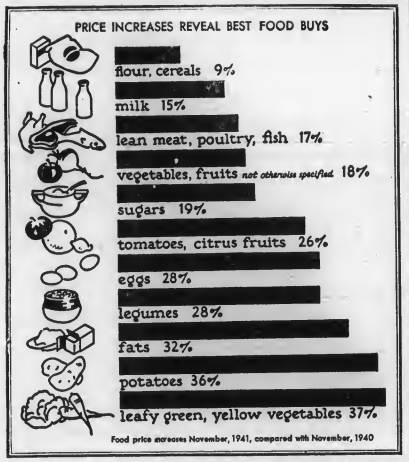
Mr. Odlum's proposal is a new and separate agency devoted exclusively to the care of small business. This plus a modified allotmeent plan, under which one per cent of available raw materials would be set aside for small manufacturers, make up his prescription for keeping small factories operating on a reduced basis.

Labor: "We'll wait and see" is the present reaction here to John L. Lewis' proposal for menger of the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O.

It is felt that the proposal should have come a long time ago. The fact that it came from the chief protagonist of the interunion warfare accounts for the wary reception, for it is clear that everyone here from high Government officials down to the taxi drivers on the streets welcome the idea in principle.

Businessmen are pointing out the irony of the situation. Faced with answering charges of conducting "business as usual in 1941," they have pointed out that a good deal of valuable time was lost in jurisdictional strikes between the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. in which business was the unwilling victim.

A nation-wide pole of public opinion indicates that a single national labor organization would be welcome to an overwhelming majority of the leaders and the rank and file of both unions.



Censorship: Byron Price, director of censorship, is putting the American public to the test by crackin gdown on a favorite evening's entertainment.

A national columnist recently suggested, in reply to statements that civilians were paying no attention to air raid instructions, that such instructions be broadcast on a quiz program which hands out cash prizes, in order to insure a maximum audience.

Much fun has been poked a broad at our interest in radio quiz programs. The Office of Censorship was quick to recognize the danger of having enemy agents take advattage of the situation. Accordingly, it issued an order designed to prevent enemy agents from broadcasting military information by sending in seemingly harmless quiz and musical request numbers. If filled, the censors think, they might be part of a code.

Government spokesmen point out that this is only one phase of the use of radio in the modern "war of nerves." They are disturbed by the propaganda value of stories about German weakness. Reports of Nazi army purges, inner-party conflicts, soldier and civilian discontent, shortages, etc are, many people here feel, originated by Axis agents in an effort to inspire overconfidence in America.

U. S. Diet Standards Studied

THE average price increase for a moderate cost adequate diet for a family of four, for one week, has increased 24 per cent in the past year, according to the National Dairy Council. The foods chosen were based on dietary standards set up by the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. The prices were from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

Average price increases of each group of foods were computed from the latest retail prices in 51 cities compared to the same period of the previous year. The smallest price increase, 9 per cent, was for flour and cereals. Milk was the next smallest with an increase of only 15 per cent. The price increase for fats varied from 16 to 63 per cent with an average of 32 per cent. Among all fats butter with 16 per cent showed the lowest increase.

Time To Talk

Interest in the fine arts may have been increased severalfold since my earliest recollections, but there is one fine art that has suffered sadly with the coming of standardized life. I refer to the fine art of conversation, which the old-time neighborhood knew and practiced. We seem to be in such a hurry now that talk is only what is necessary to keep our business going. The talk of other times was of all descriptions but especially of the informative, educative type.

Living rather lonely lives during the working hours or days and often without a newspaper of any sort, people traveled around on Sunday to learn the news, local and foreign. It is true that some of the news came in distorted form, but anything was better than remaining at home all the timee at hard labor, without knowing what was going on. Visiting was often as much for the information it brought as for the social features.

Every neighborhood had one or more men who had read more and thought out things a little better than the average. These people were sought out when there was some political or other stress on the minds of the sovereign voters. When current news ran out (news gleaned from the weekly paper), there was always the Civil War to fall back on. For the hundredth time each participant was asked to tell his version of the great conflict, for we believed that every person engaged must have known much of what was happening. What matter if we already knew the whole chronicle, with all the digressions? It was worth hearing again.

In spite of all that has been said on the subject about the cooperation of our time, I cannot help thinking that we are ever so much more selfish and individualistic now than formerly. Now when I want to learn the news, I do not seek some one out; instead I buy a paper or turn on the radio and want to murder anyone who talks while I am keeping myself informed about what the big world is doing.

If some fellow tries to get fresh and read aloud as we used to do, all of us give him a look that would burn him and the paper, too. After we have read or listened, we rarely discuss the news with our neighbors, for they have read or listened, too, and have the same opinions as we.

Talk became a means of transmission of most of the neighborhood culture; most of what we have learned came to us through the age-old methods of transmission, not through books. Mothers talked to their daughters and taught them the simple, humble arts of housekeeping and child care. Fathers at their work talked to their sons and instructed them in the work of the farm or the store, about the only institutions that we knew. Most of what they said could not be written down, because it would be nearly intangible. But from older to younger knowledge descended, hardly precious of itself but gathering strength as all traditional things do by their passing through minds and characters.

We are devoted to our books and to the means we now have to pass along information and education and culture, but I sometimes wonder whether we are saving any time by depending too much on books and by pushing mere talk into the background.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Congress is now worrying over the new budget for the next federal fiscal year which begins on July 1, 1942. And it has reason to worry. This new budget calls for a total expenditure of $58,928,000,000. Can you realize how much 58 billion dollars is? Very few Americans can.

This proposed budget is three times as large as the largest for World War I, and unlike any other budget we have ever had, 90% of it goes for war materials. Thus of the 58 billion, defense and war activities take over 52 billion, while non-defense activities account for only 6 billion.

We all know that the defense activities are, but let us look at the non-defense expenditures. Of this 6 billion, aids to agriculture will take 854 million, interest on the federal debt, 1,750 million, relief agencies (such as WPA, PWA, etc.), a little over one billion, while general expenditures will take about two and one-half billion.

Now where are we going to get this money? The Government now figures that it will secure 23 billion from taxes and a little over 35 billon by borrowing from its citizens. Of the 23 billion it will collect in taxes, corporation income tax will account for over 6 billion, individual income tax over 5 billion, excise taxes (such as those on cigarettes, whiskey, radios, furs, etc.), over 3 billion, and miscellaneous revenues for about one billion. That leaves about 7 billions unaccounted for. This means but one thing—increasing present taxes and adding a number of new ones. We can expect much higher income tax rates next year along with much lower exemptions. We can also expect a federal sales tax. Don't expect to get off lightly. There never has been a budget like this. It is the world's largest, and it will call for sacrifice on the part of every citizen.

JOHNSON BACKS MORATORIUM ON DRUNK DRIVING

Chicago, Jan. 31. — Gov. Keen Johnson has enlisted Kentucky in the nationwide proposal for a moratorium throughout 1942 against drunken driving. In endorsing the idea Governor Johnson said, "I am heartily in accord with efforts to declare a moratorium on drunken driving. If we can make the public conscious of the results of this type of driving, we can do much to lesson the number of deaths all over the country."

The proposal for a year's moratorium against drunken driving in the United States has been urged by the American Business Men's Research Foundation as a major step in bringing a reduction in automobile accidents. The Foundation's offices have received endorsements for the for the suggestion from governors, local and state traffic authorities and others high in public life. The Foundation made a similar proposal last summer for over the three-day July 4 holiday period which received nationwide acceptance and was said to have been an important factor in reducing the number of holiday deaths by 100 less than in 1940.

In the afternoon a round table discussion was held to study the problems of the farmer and his part in the National Defense and War Program. The following subjects were discussed by the group: Farm Machinery and Machinery repair program for 1942 and '43; The Labor Situation; Increasing Feed Costs; Transportation Problems; Taxes and Production Problems in Dairying, Poultry, Swine and the Live at Home and Garden Program.

Pete Blau Dawson McDannold L. J. Rapp and James Bristow were appointed on a committee to study plans and arrange for organizing group meetings in the various neighborhoods in cooperation with the various directors, in order to bring the program to the various communities.

SOCIAL SABOTAGE

by Samuel B. Wenger, A. B., M. A.
Chaplain of the State Prison of Southern Michigan

Screeching of brakes; a grinding of gears, and then—CRASH! The usual breathless and morbidly curious crowd collects. From somewhere the wailing cry of an ambulance siren is heard, as if already mourning the deceased. White-coated attendants pick up the child and rush it to the hospital. The doctor shakes his head and calmly says, with grim finality, "No hope."

"But I wasn't drunk; we had only a few beers." "I didn't see the woman." "The child must have run from behind a car." "I didn't see the light turn red." These are typical replies given in response to questions asked men sentenced to Jackson Prison for the crime of manslaughter by car in which alcohol was the contributing cause of the accident.

As chaplain at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, I interview each man shortly after his admission to determine the central cause of his offense, so a program of religious rehabilitation can be constructed upon the individual needs of the prisoner. These responses to private and personal questioning are freely given, for many so convicted are sincerely of the opinion they were falsely accused ano their blame for the death of the victim was greatly exaggerated.

No, it wasn't a faulty car, or bad weather, or a congested road. Everything was in order, except the driver. His senses and reflexes had been dulled because of the powerful influence of alcohol. The empty bottle on the floor of the car was clear evidence. He wasn't drunk; far from it, but the insidious disorganization of his faculties had been very effective, simply because of the one or two seemingly harmless drinks he had taken. "Impossible," it is said, but here is something that has been scientifically proved. It takes only one fifth of a second for a normal driver to apply the brakes when the light turns red. Should the same driver take two glasses or bottles of beer, scientists say he will take from three to five times as long to do the same thing. During this longer period, if he braked while traveling at sixty miles an hour, his car would travel the distance of a city block. In addition, he can see clearly ahead thirty feet less than formerly.

Over a three-year period I have interviewed some eight thousand men received at this prison, of all races and creeds, ranging in age from seventeen to more than eighty years of age. More than 90 percent of the men admit liquor drinking. Nearly 60 percent will admit on closer questioning, that they were heavily intoxicated when their crimes were committed. There are many who insist they have little or no knowledge of the offense for which they were convicted. Slowly and gently alcohol had performed its social sabotage in the control room of their brain, until they were sorry victims of its charms.

"I went out with a bunch of fellows and we got to drinking," is one of the most common admissions, usually followed by, "If I could have stayed away from drinking, and drinking associates, I would not be in prison." "We met in the beer garden," is repeated over and over by our men.

It has often been demonstrated by medical experts that alcohol is not a stimulant, does not increase courage, but removes caution and reverts the user to the primitive and lower levels of action. It burns out the brake bands of the mind and lets the organism run wild. Nature has seen fit to double some of our lesser organs. We have two hands, feet, eyes, ears, kidneys, and lungs, but only one brain. When the brain is thrown out of gear there is little control left. Passenger planes carry two pilots to protect human life. Should one pilot become ill the other carries on. When the brain of a driver is sabotaged by alcohol there is certainly no control behind the wheel. Self-respect goes first, then judgment, reason, co-ordination, and common sense.

IN MEMORY

A dark-winged angel of death entered our community and took from us a beloved neighbor, and friend, Mrs. Allie Utz—born Oct. 12, 1864, and died Jan. 5, 1942. She was married to E. E. Utz on May 25, 1887.

To this union was born six children: Franklin Utz, Union; Stanley Utz, Florence; Marren Utz, Union; Major Lee N. Utz, U. S. Marines, San Francisco, Calif.; Katherine Utz, Union; Mrs. Howard Clegg, Cincinnati, Ohio; eight grandchildren.

She was a member of the Big Bone Baptist church. Mrs. Utz was a most estimable christian hearted woman; was such a motherly woman, and her motherliness did not end with her own children. She was a lover of friends and children everywhere. Her grandchildren were her pride and joy, and they loved her in return. Yes, they loved her because she first loved them and they were conscious of it.

I am sure that some of her grandchildren will miss her most as much as will her own children. I have seen and know many great and good women; some of them possessed certain qualities of character and virtue for which I will forever remember them.

The one outstanding character of Mrs. Utz was her motherly spirit. I do not know why I call it the mother spirit. But I just cannot call it anything else. It was the one thing of her life that stayed with me always. It was native of her soul. She was a born mother.

Happy were the days we spent together in her home not long ago. That is why I miss her so.

All was done for her that kind and loving hands could do, by her children, for her recovery. So let us think of her as basking in the sunshine of an eternal home in Heaven.

Not dead, but gone before, waiting in the great beyond to mee us. May the great Heavenly Father be with us all and her children and help us to live a good life as she lived, and try to meet her in Heaven, where there is no trouble or sorrow. Oh Lord, help us to do thy will and live thy will.

Her cheerful and loving ways we pleasantly recall. She had a kind word and a smile for everyone, and died beloved by all.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES SAVE TIME FOR DEFENSE WORK

With our country engaged in its most gigantic war effort of all time, patriotic women everywhere are eager and anxious to do their bit. Busy as they are with the cares and responsibilities of their homes and families, they are devoting many hours to working for the Red Cross . . . training for civilian defense . . . cooperating in the food conservation program . . . knitting and sewing . . . and otherwise assisting in the national defense program. Electrical appliances are helping them meet the increasing demands upon their time by speeding up housework and releasing time and energy that would otherwise be spent in slow hand work. By using their appliances wisely, but not wastefully, they are able to make the most of each day and contribute a patriotic service to their country. In the home, as in industry, electricity is on the job, helping to pave the way to victory.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO MEET TODAY

The Missionary society of the Walton Christian church will meet at the home of Mrs. Ora Fry for an all day session, Thursday. Mrs. Robert Moore will be the leader.

LARGE CROWD HEARS MISSIONARY AT METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING

A large and appreciative crowd heard Miss Margaret Thompson at the Walton Methodist Church, Sunday evening, as she related her experiences in the sinking of the Zamzam last Spring.

She had waited sixteen years for the opportunity to go to Africa as a Missionary. After three months of excitement and worry that followed the sinking of her ship by a German raider and imprisonment in German hands, she was permitted to return to her home. After all of this, it was interesting to note her eagerness to accept her call to the Mission field when again she is permitted to sail.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service had charge of this program. with Mrs. Robert Conrad, president, presiding, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Talley, who knew Miss Thompson when she was a student at Asbury College.

Many of the ladies gathered in the basement of the church after the services to enjoy a social visit with Miss Thompson, where tea and wafers were served by the society.

Invulnerable Armament

A DICTIONARY defines "invulnerable" as "incapable of being wounded or of receiving injury." Invulnerable armament, then, is armament that is incapable of being penetrated; and only spiritual armament is actually invulnerable. Everyone desires to feel secure and serene, to feel that there is an invulnerable protection shielding him at all times.

To know that every righteous thought and act has divine, hence invulnerable, protection and immunity from evil is a great joy and comfort to spiritually enlightened men and women. In the factory, office, home, on the highway, in the air—yes, even at the battle's front, if need be—he whose thought dwells in God has found the one invulnerable armament. No matter how sorely he is tried, how severely he is tempted, if his faith in God remains steadfast, if his allegiance to Truth, Life, and Love is firm, he will find true Mary Baker Eddy's words on page 277 of "Miscellaneous Writings," where she says: "No evidence before the material senses can close my eyes to the scientific proof that God, good, is supreme. Though clouds are round about Him, the divine justice and judgment are enthroned. Love is especially near in times of hate, and never so near as when one can be just amid lawlessness, and render good for evil."

The Psalmist proclaimed invulnerable the spiritual armament of the righteous, when he sang (Psalms 91:1, 5, 7): "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. . . . Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day. . . . A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee."

Invulnerable spiritual armament is practical and concrete, available in human experience. . . . God, who is Life, Truth, and Love, is invulnerable, and man, His image and likeness, or reflection, is therefore invulnerable—invulnerable to sin, disease, disaster, lack, limitation, fear, ignorance, and superstition. . . . In his vision, the Revelator, John, saw "the holy city, new Jerusalem," that divine, heavenly state of consciousness in which is no evil, and he said (Revelation 21:27), "There shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." Mrs. Eddy has said (Science and Health, p. 228), "The transmission of disease or of certain idiosyncrasies of mortal mind would be impossible if this great fact of being were learned,—namely, that nothing inharmonious can enter being, for Life is God."

Does anyone doubt these inspired statements? Then let him read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews in the New Testament, which recounts many instances of divine protection and deliverance experienced by those whose faith in God never wavered in times of trouble and temptation. "God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34), and His love and tender care are as available to one as another. When understood, God's goodness is seen to be everywhere; when it is utilized, the sick are healed, the lame made whole, the dumb regain speech, the blind see, and happiness, peace, and joy reign supreme where discord formerly held sway.

Spiritual armament is invulnerable, because Spirit or God fills all space, and there is no other presence or power. The recognition of this divine fact excludes from one's consciousness the belief of another presence or power, shutting out of thought and experience the evils of belief and the belief in evil. . . . Christ Jesus said (Mark 12:30), "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength. This is invulnerable spiritual armament.—The Christian Science Monitor.

SPARTA

Jacobs-Sanders

The wedding of Miss Ann Elizabeth Jacobs, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Jacobs of Sparta, and William Golden Sanders of Cincinnati, Ohio, son of Mrs. Ira Sanders of Covington, was solemnized at 8 a. m., Saturday, Jan. 31 at St. Joseph church, Warsaw. Rev. Father Stier solemnized the solemn nuptial mass. The bridal party entered the church on the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March and knelt before the altar that had been beautifully decorated, where in a very impressive manner the marriage vows of the Catholic church were pronounced by the local priest. The bride was tastefully attired in a crepe suit of baby-blue, with brown accessories. Her corsage bouquet was tailsman roses. Miss Mary Angela Jacobs, sister of the bride, and Fred Jacobs, were matron of honor and best man, respectively. She wore a crepe suit of dusty rose. Her corsage was Killarny Roses.

Mrs. Sanders is a graduate of Villa Madonna Academy, Covington, and at present is an attache of the nursing staff of the Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati. Mr. Sanders is at present connected with the force at Wright Bros. aviation field in Cincinnati.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Moon River Inn, where 50 invited guests, consisting of the immediate family and close friends of the contracting parties partook of a wedding breakfast of country ham and fried chicken and all the trimmings. A large three-tier wedding cake, baked by the bride's mother, adorned the richly decorated table. The breakfast was one of the most elaborate affairs that Moon River has even given.

After a short honeymoon, they will return to Cincinnati, where they have a newly-furnished apartment, and will then be at home to their many friends.

What's In A Name? Ask the Movie Stars

ACTORS think names are important. They like them simple to pronounce, easy to remember, short and sweet for display purposes.

Greta Garbo's name, Mary Hamman reveals in the February Good Housekeeping magazine, was Greta Gustaffson. Robert Taylor's was Spangler Arlington Brugh. Barbara Stanwyck—Ruby Stevens before she went on the stage—says it was quite a jolt to realize, after she was married, that her real name was Ruby Brugh. Myrna Loy's name was Stevens, too—Myrna Stevens. She adopted Loy early in her career, when she was playing wily Oriental ladies.

Brenda Marshall's real name, Ardis Ankerson, was too stagy, so, Miss Humman explains, she chose another. The same is true of Brenda Joyce; her real name, Graftine Leabo, sounded phony, so she switched. Joan Leslie was Joan Brodel. The Lane girls are really all Mullicans. Claudette Colbert began life as Claudette Chauchoin. Carmen Miranda's name is Maria do Carmo da Cunha. And Anna Lee's is Joanna Boniface Winnifrith!

Baby Sets a Record

Your baby is one of the world's fastest learners, believe it or not. In a matter of a few months he develops certain habits of muscle control that enable him to eat with a spoon, chew his food properly and in general, change from a completely helpless individual to one self-sufficient in these matters.

Of course, individual babies vary somewhat in the exact speed with which they learn new activities; sometimes parents can influence the speed by merely making the new activities easier to start. For example, if children are given the coarser foods known as Junior foods when they have reached that in-between stage of needing something to chew but not yet being able to take foods from the family table, they do not have the difficulty of handling encountered by others. Junior foods help make the change more gradual—thus not permitting any sudden difference in food to upset a toddler's easy acceptance of things as they come.

These Junior foods—as well as the strained foods that precede their introduction into the baby's diet—offer the advantage, too, of helping a child learn to enjoy the foods he needs most throughout his life for healthy growth and ability to fight off disease. They are made up by special recipes using fruits, vegetables, meats and cereals in such a way that their original delicious flavors are retained.

Special canned foods for babies were originally developed because doctors discovered that the milk, orange or tomato juice and cod liver oil of which a baby's diet is made up almost from birth did not supply enough iron in his diet. Thus his store of iron which he has at birth eventually is depleted. Iron-rich foods in the strained form were introduced, and it was found that a baby can well handle them at a remarkably early age. Nowadays some babies are given strained foods at four months of age with the doctor's permission. A doctor should be consulted before they are introduced, because babies do vary considerably in their ability to handle new foods and also in their need for strained foods.

The starting age for the Junior foods varies from 10 to 18 months, depending also upon the doctor's advice. One must be sure the baby has sufficient tooth development and aptitude in his attempts to chew, of course.

Since the Junior foods are cut up in particles which encourage chewing but yet can do no harm if swallowed as they are, they actually aid the child in learning to feed himself. He has no chewing difficulties to overcome and thus can concentrate on the activity of manipulating his spoon. To start the baby on these foods which are new to him, all one has to do is combine a small amount of the Junior food with a similarly flavored strained food until he becomes accustomed to the feel of coarser particles. Gradually the proportion of Junior food is then increased—until the baby takes it by itself.

When it comes to teaching the toddler to like the different flavors of foods which are "good for him"—as we mentioned before—the Junior foods are again a great help. This is because they are supplied in such excellent variety. You have 12 different kinds of them from which to select—soups, chicken and meat products and plain and creamed vegetables and desserts. The lamb and liver, for example, teaches the child to enjoy the flavor of liver at a very early age. Thus this iron-rich food is one he will probably enjoy all his life. The creamed green vegetables teach him to like the vegetables that are rich in vitamin C. And chopped carrots help him enjoy a food rich in vitamin A. Each of the Junior foods has a special advantage for the child, and so it is a good idea to follow through from strained foods to Junior foods when he reaches the toddler stage.

A BUSY SABBATH IN CAPERNAUM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:21-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day.—Revelation 1:10.

The Sabbath of the Jew and the Lord's Day (Sunday) of the Christian were both intended to be days of rest. The ordinary activities of life were to cease and one was to be free to worship and to rest. The manner in which a man uses this God-given day of rest is a remarkably accurate indicator of his spiritual condition.

We have before us the account of a very busy Sabbath day which our Lord spent in Capernaum, the city in which most of His mighty works were done, but which ignored Him and His teaching to its own destruction (see Matt. 11:23, 24). As we look at our Lord's activity on that day we learn what we may do with our Sundays to make them bear fruit for eternity. We find Him in three places.

I. In the Church (vv. 21-28).

The Sabbath day found our Lord with His people in the synagogue, their place of worship. The service of worship was probably formal and lacking in spiritual vitality, but nonetheless He was there. What have we to say if we miss the opportunity for fellowship and service which church attendance brings us?

Observe that because He was there He (as a distinguished religious teacher) was called upon to teach the people. He taught them in the serene consciousness of His divine authority, and the people were delighted and astonished at His message. We may not serve exactly as He did, but if we present ourselves in God's house on His day we will find the way opening for us to share in the worship.

Jesus not only spoke, but He performed a miracle. Certain it is that we could not do what He did, but we can be ready to give ourselves in service as well as in worship, or in speaking. There is much work to be done in the church, and God's people should be ready and willing to do it.

II. In the Home (vv. 29-31).

From the synagogue Christ went into the home. How appropriate! We too should go from the church to the home, always bringing with us the strength and blessing of the worship service.

The daughter of a great preacher and Bible teacher said the thing she most loved in her father was that he did not give out the "cream" of his Christianity in his meetings and bring home the "skim milk." Too often we fail to bring into the home the power and beauty of the service in the church. We who have been very sweet and spiritual in the church should not come home to be sour and crabbed.

Jesus brought a blessing into Peter's home, miraculously healing his mother-in-law of a great fever, setting her free to serve. Here again we cannot do what He did, but we can, in His name, bring power and blessing into our homes.

III. In the City (vv. 32-34).

From the home the ministry of Jesus reached out to the entire city. As the strict laws forbidding travel on the Jewish Sabbath were set aside by the coming of sundown, not only the city but the entire countryside brought their sick and needy to Him.

The scene staggers the imagination as one attempts to conceive of this coming together of troubled humanity for the Master's touch. Mark tells us that He healed many; Matthew, that He healed all, and Luke, the physician, is emphatic in saying that He healed every one of them.

We may learn from this incident that our Christian faith, which has been developed and strengthened by our time of worship and service in the church, should not only reflect itself in the home, but should reach out into the life of the community in which we live. The primary interest of the Christian in his city or the place of his residence should be spiritual, a desire to bring to bear upon the people of the community the power of the gospel.

There is, however, a secondary responsibility which is of much importance and that is the extending of Christian influence into every phase of school, social, political, and business life. It is said that when D. L. Moody came into a barber shop the entire course of the conversation changed. The Christian should have an influence on problems of social welfare, the work of the public schools, the proper conduct of business in the community, and surely upon its political life. It is said that if every Christian in America would vote according to his professed convictions we could put the saloons out of business in a single election. Why not do it?

Make Every Meal A Company Meal!

IT'S easy to let your family meals get into a monotonous rut. That, on the surface, seems to be the easiest way to keep them simple and within your budget.

But with a little imagination, and no more time than you would ordinarily spend in your kitchen you can prepare meals that will delight your family. Dorothy March, writing in the February Good Housekeeping magazine, has some suggestions to make, and if you follow her advice she predicts you'll find a pleasant reward in seeing your family respond in enjoyment—and in good health too, if you'll choose menus that meet the needs of good nutrition. Here is one menu she has prepared that is a far cry from the run-of-the-mill family meal.

LEMON MILK SHERBET
1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin (1 tbsp.)
4 c. milk
½ tsp. salt
1½ c. granulated sugar
¾ c. lemon juice
1 tsp. grated lemon rind

Soak gelatin in ½ c. of the milk in a bowl for 5 min. Then set bowl over boiling water, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Combine rest of ingredients with remaining 3½ c. milk. Stir in gelatin. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, and with temperature control at coldest setting, freeze, until set, without stirring. Serves 5 or 6.

Serve with hot canned vegetable-juice cocktail, pan-fried flounders, boiled sweet potatoes, buttered onions, rye bread, and coffee, for dinner.

GOOD POSTURE VITAL TO HEALTH

ALL girls of the Junior High School at Port Washington, New York, belong to the Charm Club, under the direction of Adele G. Columbia. The aim of the club is to teach young girls clean living habits as well as to make the most of their personal appearance.

The work they have done attracted the attention of Good Housekeeping, and the magazine passes on the club's valuable hints to the readers of its February issue. Besides learning such practical things as sewing and cooking, they are taught the secrets of good manners, good make-up, good dress.

Commonest fault, the Charm Club has found, is poor posture. They turn thumbs down on the first picture at top, but clap hands when the position is changed with back straightened, chest pulled up. They learn quickly that posture is important for health as well as good looks. A good position for studying is likewise vital. Round shoulders and hollow chest result from persisting in the position at left below. The correct way at right—with feet on floor, back straight, bending forward from the waist—is less tiring and better looking.

A Week Of The War

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill created three Anglo-American boards to pool American and British munitions, shipping and raw materials. The boards will confer with representatives of the Soviet Union, China and others of the 26 United Nations as necessary "to attain common purposes." U. S. representatives are: Harry Hopkins, Munitions Board; Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Shipping Board, and William L. Batt, Raw Materials Board.

The President told his press conference great progress has been made in unification of American Army and Navy commands. He said such unification has been going on for the past two months and does not result from the Pearl Harbor inquiry board report. Mr. Roosevelt said he is still studying this report, which placed the blame for lack of American alertness at Hawaii on Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, but Presidential Secretary Early indicated further action in regard to the commanders will rest with Navy Secretary Knox and War Secretary Stimson.

Price Control Legislation Signed

President Roosevelt signed the Price Control Bill which provides for a license system to enforce price regulations, calls for a single administrator and contains provisions to permit farm prices to rise as high as 110 percent of parity. The President said, however, he may ask Congress to correct certain gaps in the bill, particularly the agriculture provisions. He said the prohibition against farm price ceilings at less than 110 percent of parity is a direct threat to the cost of living, although the licensing, rent control and other provisions are useful weapons against inflation. The Department of Agriculture reported the average of farm product prices on January 15 was 102 percent of parity.

The War Front

The Army reported the Japanese were making heavy reinforcements in the Philippines preparatory to resumption of a large scale offensive against Gen. MacArthur's forces which were continuing to hold strong positions in the Bataan Peninsula. In the Philippine area U. S. forces destroyed a 5,000-ton enemy vessel and at least five enemy planes, while in the Macassar Straits, Army and Navy forces sank three large enemy transports, set two more afire, torpedoed an aircraft carrier, blew up another large ship and scored hits which probably sank others. The Army announced United States Army forces arrived in Northern Ireland, and Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney took over command of all U. S. Army forces in the United Kingdom. President Roosevelt told his press conference this force is one of six, eight or 10 American expeditionary forces outside the U. S. in various parts of the world. U-boat activity resulted in the sinking off the Atlantic coast of two American ships and a Norwegian tanker. The U. S. garrison at Midway Island sank an enemy submarine attempting to attack the island.

Army

The President signed the Fourth Supplemental National Defense Bill carrying a $12,600,000,000 appropriation for 33,000 Army planes and equipment. War Secretary Stimson announced plans to speed training of 30,000 pilots, observers, navigators and other personnel to match airplane production. War Secretary Stimson announced 20,000 men have been released for duty with combat troops since the Army began replacement of enlisted men engaged in clerical and housekeeping activities by civilian employees, some of them women. He said entrance requirements for officer candidate schools have been changed to allow qualified enlisted men from 18 to 45 to win commissions within six months.

Navy

The House passed and sent to the Senate a record naval appropriation bill of $18 billion in cash and an additional $4 billion in contract authorizations to build the Navy to unprecedented strength. The Senate Appropriations Committee, at the request of President Roosevelt, added another $6 billion to the bill to strengthen the naval air arm. The Marine Corps announced regulations for enlistment of 6,000 men 30 to 50 for guard duty at naval shore stations. The Corps revised requirements to permit only college juniors and seniors and qualified enlisted men to enroll in its reserve officers' candidate class. The Navy waived minimum age requirement of 25 years for leaders, leadingmen and quartermen in Navy yards and plants under Navy jurisdiction. The Navy is recruiting skilled construction workers for work at naval bases outside continental United States.

Production

The Army Ordnance Department estimated it has been spending $21 million a day for the past five weeks for 1,200 various types of items including ammunition, small arms, artillery, tanks, etc. The Army announced its new 105 mm. howitzer is now in mass production. War Production Chairman Nelson told a meeting in New York City the job facing businessmen is to rush war contracts thru to completion "without stopping to count the cost."

The War Production Board announced a simplified production requirements plan to speed conversion of small manufacturers doing less than $100,000 business a year. The Board also set up a special section to collect information on all vacant industrial buildings so the Army and Navy procurement branches can award contracts in such a way as to utilize these buildings.

Conversion of Automobile Industry

Ernest Kanzler, WPB official in charge of converting the automobile industry to war production, said the industry up to January 16 had orders for $8 billion worth of guns, tanks, planes and other war material. He said the industry's present employment of 500,000 workers may be doubled when peak war production is reached late this year. He said lack of machine tools is the present bottleneck in the conversion effect, but labor supply may be the next big problem.

Aliens

Attorney General Biddle ordered all German, Japanese and Italian nationals to leave specified vital areas in San Francisco and Los Angeles by Feb. 24. Mr. Biddle said 27 additional prohibited areas recommended by the War Department would be published later.

Priorities and Allocations

The Senate passed and sent to the House a second War Powers Bill extending the Government's requisitioning power and carrying criminal penalties for voilations of the priorities system. The WPB cut radio production by 40 percent, prohibited use of aluminum except on war contracts, and restricted consumption of nickel, brass and copper for advertising and decorative purposes to 50% of last year. The Board also announced it will withhold a percentage of canned goods in 1942 to insure ample supplies of certain foods for the armed forces.

War Production Chairman Nelson placed full authority in the Office of Price Administration to ration all good and commodities sold on the retail market and for goods to satisfy personal needs. Price Administrator Henderson said initial sugar sales under the rationing plan to be inaugurated next month probably will be restricted to 12 ounces a week for each individual. The Department of Justice announced that Anti-trust Division is investigating the practice of requiring customers to purchase designated amounts of groceries in order to obtain limited amounts of sugar.

Labor

Labor Secretary Perkins said labor shortages require temporary "relation in accepted standards," and asked labor and management to place war production on a 24-hour, 7-day basis immediately. WPB Labor Director Hillman announced ratification by unions and owners of an agreement for continuous shipbuilding operations on the Pacific coast. The agreement will be extended to the Atlantic Gulf and Great Lakes zones, Mr. Hillman said. The National Resources Planning Board outlined in a 19-page pamphlet a plan for full employment following the war.

BALLET LENGTH FOR DANCING

So-called "ballet-length," or mid-calf length, skirts are seen at all the winter resorts and at hometown dances. Girls put velvet ribbons on their toeless dancing slippers, when wearing the new ballet-length evening dresses, winding the ribbon about their ankles for a true ballerina effect. This New York creation has a "ballet-length" skirt of lustrous black taffeta over a pink satin petticoat, and a simple jersey bodice.

MORGANSVILLE

"My grace is sufficient for thee."

Mrs. Bessie Trapp of Tiffin, O., was called to Kenton by the death of her father last week. The curtain of death which slowly had been drawn closed the life of Mr. Leslie C. Baker, 82, Kenton, Saturday evening, January 24, thereby marking the passing of an aged respected citizen. For an extended period he had been in ill health at the residence of his granddaughter, Mrs. Albert Richardson, and Mr. Richardson, where every comfort was given him, but despite kindly ministrations, he sank peacefully into that dreamless slumber, with the calm repose of eternal rest upon his brow. A little shadow passed over his placid face like that of a soft cloud upon the serene waters of the lake. American Beauty roses and other blossoms of rarest beauty which adorned his casket attested the esteem and affection in which he was held. The survivors include three daughters, Mrs. J. L. Pickett, Kenton; Mrs. Bessie Trapp of Tiffin, Ohio; and Mrs. James Gray of Covington; the following grandchildren: Mrs. C. O. Morgan, Mrs. A. P. Grizzle, Mrs. Albert Richardson, Mrs. Thomas McClure, Miss Dale Gray, Mrs. Henry Baker, Mrs. Gladys Williams, George and Nick Trapp, Blaine Trapp, James E. and Logan Gray, Max and Billy Gray, and great-grandchildren, Charles O. Morgan, little Miss Jackie Morgan, little Miss Bessie Morgan, Miss Dorothy Settle, George Grizzle, Joey and George Trapp and little Miss Carol Baker, to whom deepest sympathy is extended. Following the last rites at the Swindler funeral home, Covington on Tuesday afternoon at which Rev. Manners officiated, interment took place in the Independence cemetery, where his remains slumber in the quietude of the hills. Serving as pallbearers were James E. Gray, A. P. Grizzle, Max Gray, Mr. Deatherage, Billy Gray and Charles Baker.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes."

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medicine would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than is something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Johnson of Walton, he purchased a department store from Mr. Johnson, located on the site of the present B. F. Elliott Department store. Record Sale Of Xmas Seals Reported

According to the report just released by R. V. Lents, chairman of the tuberculosis seal sale organization in Boone County, all records for the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas seals in the county have been smashed. The report shows the sale amounted to $433.58, or an increase of $82.27 over last year's sales.

By having a full-time county nurse, 65% of the proceeds will be used in this county to help in carrying on the campaign against tuberculosis. However, the cost of stationery, stamps and prizes for the school children selling the seals must come out of the county's portion of the money. The remainder will be used to aid directly or indirectly those in the county that have tuberculosis.

Mr. Lents stated that you may still contribute to the sale of seals by mailing anything that you wish to him at Constance.

Mr. Lents expresses his appreciation to those who were responsible for the success of the campaign, in the following letter:

"I wish to thank all the school children in the county who sold any seals, the teachers for their hearty cooperation in directing the campaign, all the civic-minded citizens who bought any of the bright colored stamps, and the Walton Advertiser and Boone County Recorder for their numerous lines of publicity given to the sales campaign."

Statement of Sales by Communities:

Belleview, $13.75; Burlington, $52.90; Burlington (Colored), $6; Constance, $38.76; Beaver (Colored), $1; Walton, $52.19; New Haven, $36.40; Anonymous, $3.35; Florence, $83.86; Petersburg, $22.05; Florence (St. Paul), $9.16; Hebron, $72.39; Verona, $21.35; Hamilton, $20.42.

Fifty prizes were given to school children selling the most seals in their respective schools.

THUMBS UP FOR BONDS AND STAMPS! This war poster, illustrating how Americans can help the air forces to victory, is being displayed in the windows of 500,000 of the Nation's retail stores where Defense Stamps—in denominations from 10 cents to $5—are being sold. This is one of a series of human-interest posters being prepared to remind the public of its part in the war effort.

4-H CLUBS ARE REORGANIZED

Boone County 4-H Clubs were reorganized in January, when more than 60 officers in all community clubs were elected to advance 4-H work in their local clubs. In cooperation with their community leaders, these officers have immediately set out to secure the 1942 membership goal of 400 members, according to Franklin Frazier, Assistant County Agent.

Goals for community clubs are as follows: Burlington, 70; Constance, 25; Florence, 60; Grant, 25; Hamilton, 25; Hebron, 50; New Haven, 65; Petersburg, 25; Walton 20, and Verona, 25.

Popular projects with boys this year are gardens, poultry, dairy, swine and tobacco. These projects, with the exception of tobacco, offer basic training that should enable club members to more efficiently produce commodities now urgently requested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Girls have chosen such projects as clothing, canning, foods, school lunches and room improvement.

4-H Clubs in the county have laid plans for all possible cooperation in the Victory effort, an expansion of the enrollment, better project work among both boys and girls, and more efficient community organizations.

Soil Leaders To Meet Feb. 19th

Boone County Soils leaders and A.A.A. committeemen will meet at the County Agent's office in Burlington, Thursday, Feb. 19th at 10:00 a. m. (Eastern War Time). according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The purpose of the meeting will be to plan a 1942 Soils Improvement Program.

Goals set in the 1941 program included the following:

Phosphate — Use 1,200,000 lbs. The goal was exceeded by 252,000 pounds.

Limestone — Goal to use 13,000 tons. Eleven thousand and thirty-nine tons were used. The largest amount of any year on record and 16.8% larger than in 1940.

Records the past year from 26 soil demonstration farms in the county show that limestone increased yields 41.5% and phosphate 39.5%. Based on exremely low yield due to drought last year and hay valued at $12 per ton, limestone and phosphate used increased yields $43,672 in crops. This increased yield on this investment will be larger in 1942 and for several years to come. One good application of phosphate will last four years or more while an application of limestone will give results from ten to twenty or more years.

A large increase in better seedings and alfalfa acreage resulted from work included in this past year's program.

Time Discussion Comes Up Again

On Friday night of this week the local Town Board and any or all interested citizens of Walton will meet at the Town Hall to again discuss the time question in our town, according to R. C. Brakefield, a member of the Board.

Mr. Brakefield said it was not necessary for Walton to use the new Eastern War Time, because the use of Eastern Standard Time was merely a voluntary move, with no legal action involved.

It's a question to be settled by residents, so if you are interested in any way, attend this meeting on Friday night, Feb. 13.

Still, let us not be over sanguine of a speedy, final triumph. Let us be quite sober. Let us diligently apply the means, never doubting that a just God, in His own good time, will give us the rightful result."

Bearcats Wallop Williamstown 48 - 30; Dayton Here Friday

Tuesday night at Williamstown, the big 'W' teams. Walton and Williamstown, met in a basketball game, which held the interest of all Northern Kentucky fans. The setting was perfect — "jammed" house, a band, lots of noise, etc.—and the Bearcats in rare form.

The locals lost no time in taking the lead, and the Demons were never able to catch "the flying Blue." W.-V. led 15-8 at the end of the first quarter; 26-19 at the half; 36-22 at the close of the 3rd period, and were on top 48-30 as the final gong sounded.

DeMoisey led the Bearcats in the scoring column, with 13 points; Groger was next, with 12, and Simpson was third, with 8. In addition to his scoring 13 points, "Foucker" DeMoisey did a swell job of "holding" Risen, huge 6 ft., 8 in. Williamstown center, to a mere 7 points—two field goals and three free throws. Although not high in the scoring column, Coyle, Pennington and Welsh played a "bang-up" brand of ball, in administering the first defeat in 20 games to the Demons. Both teams now stand at 19 wins and 1 loss. It was the 14th consecutive win for the Bearcats.

Kinman was top scorer for the losers, with 13 points.

The game was pretty rough and fouls were numerous. The Cats had 29 tries from the free throw line, good for 16 points, and the Demons accounted for 10 points in 18 tries. Four Williamstown boys were forced to leave the game via the foul route, while Walton lost one man, Groger, the same way.

In an excitingly close and rought game, the Walton-Verona reserves won the opening tilt from the Billtown second stringers, 19-18. Holder and Piner teamed up to account for 12 of Walton's points.

Walton-Verona 44, Hebron 18

Last Friday night the Bearcats were hosts to the Hebron Cardinals in a Boone County Conference game.

The locals were in front all during the game and had little difficulty in winning their seventh conference encounter, in as many starts. The Cats are now assured at least of a first place tie in the final standings. Their remaining conference tilt is with Burlington on Feb. 27 and the Tomcats must win this game or the locals will be the undisputed "champs." Burlington is in second place in the present standings.

The scores at the end of the various periods, in the Hebron game, were: First quarter, 11-2, W.-V.; half, 28-4; third quarter, 34-10, and final 44-18. Scoring for the Bearcats was well divided with DeMoisey, Simpson and Groger being high, with 9 tallies each. For Hebron, Getker was best, with 5 points.

The Walton reserves won the opening contest by defeating the Hebron reserves 26-16. Piner was top scorer for the winners with 8 points.

Dayton Here Friday and Simon Kenton Here Tuesday

The Cats have a couple of tough customers on the menu for the coming week. On Friday night, Feb. 13 the Dayton Greendevils come here for a game that will be of interest to all close followers of the game in this region — and Tuesday night, Feb. 17 the Simon Kenton Pioneers invade Walton. This will also be a standout game as these teams played a real "thriller" on the Kenton floor earlier in the season, which resulted in a 2-point win for the Bearcats.

KY. HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION PICTURE GLOOMY

State Representative John S. Jouett of Walliamstown, in a statement issued today, declared that "war - time restrictions cutting down motor traffic makes Kentucky's future highway construction picture exceedingly gloomy" and unged members of the U. S. 25 Association, of which Jouett is president, to support proposals for a constitutional amendment to end the present practice of diverting highway revenue to non-highway purposes.

"If the General Assembly adopts an amendment against diversion, the people will vote on the proposal at the general election in 1943. That is as it should be" Mr. Jouett said.

LIVESTOCK MARKETING, OUTLOOK MEET

Boone County farmers will hold a livestock marketing and outlook meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 18 at 1:30 p. m., Eastern War Time, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. L. A. Vennes, field agent in the agricultural outlook, and Roy Proctor, farm management specialist, will speak on the program.

The Cincinnati Producers Cooperative Livestock Marketing Association will cooperate in the meeting suplying salesmen on the market to discuss the better handling of lovestock in order to secure better price on the market.

Knowing the maket outlook for various livestock and crops is more important now than at any time in recent years. The balancing up the farm production to meet both National Defense needs and to secure greatest return is a vital problem for 1942. All farmers are urged to attend the meeting.

War Production Board officials are relieved that America is meeting tire rationing with its chin up.

In addition to the rationing of new tires, it is anticipated here that retreading will soon be rationed. For the consumer this means that the use of automobiles will become more and more infrequent as the war progresses. It means also that delivery service will be curtailed.

Of great concern to the Government and industry is the matter of how tire rationing will affect industrial workers — how many of them find their cars essential to get them to and from work. A survey of the nation's car-owners shows that driving is the most usual way of getting to work. Forty-five per cent of American workers (excluding farmers) drive to work or ride with someone else. Of the wokers who normally arrive at their jobs by automobile, 73% stated that they could get there by some other means. This leaves 27% of the American workers with an important problem to meet.

Businessmen here anticipate that the industrial employee will be affected in still another way by the rationing of tires. They expect that industry will resort to the staggering of working hours in order to relieve transportation shortages when car and bus lines take over after the autos quit.

Government agencies in this city have been staggering the hours of arrival, lunch and departure of their employees for some time now. Traffic officials feel that this system has helped a good deal in relieving congestion and shortages.

A bill requiring the registration of labor unions, business and trade organizations with the Federal government was introduced by Representative Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee. More than a year ago, a government report recommended registration of trade associations but did not include labor unions.

Mr. Vinson's committee, in the course of an investigation into naval defense contracts, found that the wheels of progress had completed an entire cycle. "The tremendous financial gains made by labor organizations during the period of the defense effort," the Committee reported, "and vast amount of funds and assets in their treasuries present an astounding picture concentration of wealth, a situation heretofore usually associated with industry and finance."

The success of the CIO and AF of L national and local affiliates in building up large treasuries, which go unsupervised by an outside angency and are tax exempt, is a source of some alarm here. The feeling is agravated by the shelving of the House anti-strike bill in Senate Committee. At first the reason given for inaction was that industry and labor ought to have a chance to settle the question of defense strikes by themselves. The President's management-labor conference of several weeks ago was the chosen medium. The continued inaction is now explained on the theory that the new War Labor Board should be given a chance to prove its ability to handle the need for uninterrupted war production.

However, many Congressmen feel that positive legislation is needed in any event. The Vinson bill is regarded by those circles as an attempt to legislate on one phase of an underirable situation.

Sharp Tools In the House

Practically everywhere it is regarded as bad luck to carry sharp tools into the house. People who laugh at superstition are quite as persistent in preventing this as those who are believers in luck. I have heard many people object when an ax or a hoe or a scythe was brought in, saying that the careless boy or man would injure the furniture with it, knock over the lamp, or something. I wonder just how much the woman who said this really was giving the excuse she meant. Some of the people whom I have known said right out that it was bad luck and let it go at that. This sort did not stop to give reasons; the belief in the thing carried its own defense in their way of thinking.

In spite of this superstition I have known other people who defied neighborhood tradition and allowed hoes and scythes and axes to be brought into the house whenever it was necessary. On very cold winter days it was criminal to make the men folks sharpen the ax in the raw air; I have seen many an ax sharpened by the open fireplace, with never a suggestion of bad luck. One of the habits of some of the Fidelity people was to put the broadaxe under the bed, ostensibly to keep the children from fooling with it and cutting themselves. I have often asked myself whether some good-luck sign may not have been connected with this, since some of the old-time Negroes put an ax or a plowpoint under the bed of a woman in labor.

A knife as a gift is still regarded as a bit daring, even in some highly respectable places. When my fiancee gave me a knife for Christmas a year before we married, some people who saw the knife or knew of its history warned me of the disaster that awaited me. Just whether any of the bad luck falls on the giver I do not know. Whatever the bad luck was I must say it is a long time working and could easily be overcome by some later misdeed, such as cutting out a shirt on Friday and not being able to finish it before the next week.

A scion of a rather famous family in American history was quite ill a few years ago. A relative of mine, who had to go to the house to help wait on the sick man, stumbled over something stuck up in the floor near the open door. When the lamp was brought, she discovered that a butcher knife had been placed there by the sick man's wife to keep bad luck away. I suppose that evil spirits fear knives as they used to fear any kind of metal. So far as I can now remember, the sick man got well and lived a long time afterward; he may be alive today, and, by the merest chance, may read this. I sincerely hope that he will not use any sharp, edged tools on me because I cannot share his faith in the good old family butcher knife.

Federal Income Tax returns are now demanding the attention of millions of American citizens. The deadline for filing your return is March 15.

Every single person making $750 or over per year and every married person making $1500 or over per year must file a tax return. This does not mean that you will pay any income tax. A single person who has exemptions which bring his net income below $750 need pay no tax. Likewise a married person who has exemptions which bring his net income below $1500 need pay no tax. But in both cases, a return should be filed.

Every citizen is entitled to legal deductions from his gross income. Some of these are: taxes on state, county or city real and personal property, automobile licenses, driver's licenses, State of Kentucky taxes on your bank account (if you are lucky enough to have one) and state gasoline tax. You may also deduct gifts to religious and charitable organizations, such as your church, the Red Cross, the Community Fund, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., etc.

If you are a member of a labor organization you can deduct your initiation fees, union dues, and special assessment fees.

Usually, you may deduct any interest you have paid on your borrowings. If you have purchased your home on the installment plan, you may deduct the interest paid.

Other deductions allowed are: thefts not covered by insurance, damage to your automobile caused by fire, storm, icy roads, or damage in collision, if not due to your negligence and not covered by insurance.

Lawyers, doctors, clergymen, and teachers may deduct dues paid to professional organizations and expenses in connection with attending professional conventions.

You may pay your tax in full March 15, or you may pay it in four quarterly installments. There is no additional charge if you choose to pay on the installment basis.

If you are in the income tax group and have not received a federal tax blank through the mail or otherwise, be sure and secure one and return it on or before March 15. This is important.

— SOCIAL SECURITY NOTES —

Are you working under an assumed or an Americanized name? If so, and your social security card bears this name, you may correct the records which will be the future basis of payments under old age and survivors insurance and have your real name inserted in those records. All you have to do is inform Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Covington field office of the Social Security Board that you want your real name entered on the records of the Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance. Mr. Decker will tell you what steps are necessary. Your employer will not be told of the change in records nor will this information be given to any one else. By changing the records now you may speed up the payment of benefits to which you may be entitled at age 65, or which your survivors may receive if you die before reaching that age.

The Home Front

This war is going to be won on the home front. The home front is all-important in total war. The home front saved Britain after Dunkerque. It was to the home front—to the betrayed and deluded people of Germany—that Hitler addressed himself with between-the-lines hysteria last week end.

We Americans are all-out for Victory on this front. We're all of us determined to keep the raw materials for Victory flowing into our industrial plants and the finished weapons of war streaming from those plants to the fighting zones until Adolf is in the ashcan, and Japan on the junkheap, and the poor, misguided Italians are ready to dunk Il Duce in the Tiber.

Of course, every Victory has its price. Right now we can begin to see clearly what Victory is going to cost the home front, and it's plenty, although a small sum to pay for such values as liberty, and the right to pursue happiness and work for a decent sort of world.

Victory is going to cost some manufacturers their business for the duration as metals are diverted from—let's say new pots and pans—to guns and tanks. Victory is going to mean virtual conscription of hundreds of industries, grief to management and distress to workers as they shift from the uses of peace to the uses of war.

In the home itself, the price of Victory will include increasingly drastic rationing. Sugar and tires were just starters. We can look forward to a time when a new radio may be just as hard to come by as a new car. Scarcity of materials needed for Army and Navy and Lend-Lease is going to combine with scarcity of industrial facilities—as more and more factories are drafted into the war effort—to change our lives tremendously. The needs of Army and Navy are going to affect the styling of our clothes, as well as our diets. We know we may count on the new price control act to operate, along with rationing, in the direction of fair prices. But we also know that the farm price provisions of the act may lead to an increase in the cost of foodstuffs.

Almost all the trends developed during the past week have direct bearing on the home. There's a War Production Board survey now going on which, taken with WPB's warning of stringent rationing to come, points the direction in which we're headed. WPB is questioning 10,000 manufacturers to find out just how much minimum civilian production they must maintain along with maximum military production.

Such things foreshadow change, and change we will have—change in the familiar contents of the kitchen shelves, in the contents of our closets and bureau drawers, in our living rooms.

We're going to see a lot less of the tin can, which is going thru this war primarily as a container of meat and vegetables. Already WPB has halved the amount of tin which may be used in cans for baking powder, beer, biscuits, candy, cereals, flour, chocolate and cocoa, dog food, spices, condiments, petroleum and tobacco.

There's been a lot of beer poured into tins. In 1941 beer cans consumed 1,600 tons of scarce tin—more than was used to can any vegetable except tomatoes—along with the cans, WPB is drafting a part of their contents, plans an order withholding a percentage of the 1942 fruit and vegetable pack as a reserve for the armed forces and Lend-Lease — sales of sugar may be limited to three-quarters of a pound per person per week—that's enough—there'll probably be enough of the commoner spices, too—except cinnamon—we're more than two years supply of East Indian pepper in the warehouses—WPB found it possible to relax restrictions on fats and oils—a break for makers and users of salad oils, shortening, lard, soaps and paint.

Women's styles probably will be altered by the need to conserve all kinds of cloth, chances are we're in for a period of slim silhouettes and short skirts. But it looks as though the foundations are safe, anyway—WPB's rubber branch is going to make a limited amount of crude rubber available for foundation garments, girdles, corsets—manufacturers will conserve by design changes, partial substitutions.

As for coats and dresses, members of the women's coat and suit industry have asured WPB that women will be well-styled and warmly clad—whatever amount of wool the Government gives us—plan is to blend used and reworked wool with cotton, rayon, and virgin wool—there'll be more rayon stockings—silk stocks are virtually used up, most of the nylon supply will soon be needed for military purposes.

Women and the work of war—(1) WPB doesn't want "A broad wave of knitting that will consume millions of pounds of wool needed for more essential purposes. It does want women to knit sweaters when Commanding Officers have asked for them. To be sure, ask the Red Cross. (2) WPB Labor Director Sidney Hillman says more than a million women will be needed for work in war industry. (3) America's more than 3,000 women polits were called "Indispensible" to the Civil Air Patrol by its national commander—the Air Patrol, organized by the Office of Civilian Defense, invites college flyers and aviation followers to join up—training courses are being prepared—WPB won't grant priorities for steel to be used in air raid shelters, steel offers better protection when it's guns or ships.

Having cut the output of radios and radio-phonographs by more than 40 percent—and there probably are still further cuts ahead—WPB moved to reduce production of "non-essential" incandescent lamps by 50 percent—the Price Administrator's office has asked makers of electric hearing aids not to raise prices—OPA has begun a checkup of dealers in new tires and tubes throughout the country to find out who has been breaking rationing regulations—WPB's Industrial Conservation Bureau has launched a drive on auto boneyards—the goal—five or six million old cars in six months for scrap metal—more than 15,000 retail merchants throughout the country are aiding the drive to salvage materials for war and WPB is receiving new pledges at the rate of thousands each day—the country's entire supply of aluminum has now been marshalled for war.

WAR AGAINST WASTE
A campaign against waste of all kinds—particularly of food—is being launched by the Consumers Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C. "Buy food wisely, cook it carefully, stop and think before you throw away even a single tablespoonful of leftover potatoes," is the plea of this organization, which is asking consumers all over the nation to pledge themselves to a program of rigid conservation.
Saving food is not only a patriotic duty; good household management demands it in these days of rising prices. Your electric refrigerator can be a big help to you in your personal program of food conservation. HENRY WALTERS, L. & N. BOARD CHAIRMAN, RELIEVED FOR RAILROAD WAR BOARD AT WASHINGTON, APRIL 11, 1917.
A SCENE AT LOUISVILLE UNION STATION FOLLOWING AMERICA'S ENTRANCE INTO WORLD WAR NO. 1.
The War Years
America's entrance into World War No. 1 on April 6, 1917, had immediate effect upon the rail carriers of the nation. Foreseeing the increasing demands that would be made, they formed the Railroad War Board on April 11, 1917, to coordinate their efforts and to have general authority over their activities. The L. & N. was represented by Henry Walters, chairman of its board of directors.
America's production of materials and supplies for our allies soon outstripped the capacities of its merchant ships with the result that loaded freight cars remained on sidings of the nation's ports and elsewhere for long periods of time, greatly handicapping the railroads and resulting in much congestion and confusion. Government operation of the railroads was brought forward as a solution and this became effective on December 28, 1917.
The war years witnessed many changes. Many employes left the service of the L. & N. to join the armed forces, there was a consequent increase in the road's feminine personnel, and passenger equipment was largely monopolized for the moving of soldiers.
DURING 1917, THOUSANDS OF LOADED FREIGHT CARS OF THE L. & N. AND OTHER ROADS WERE TIED UP FOR LONG PERIODS AT CONGESTED AMERICAN PORTS.
A NUMBER OF NEW LOCOMOTIVES WERE PLACED IN L. & N. SERVICE BY THE U. S. R. R. ADMINISTRATION DURING WORLD WAR I.
THE "LOWER QUADRANT" METHOD OF BLOCK SIGNALING ON THE L. & N. WAS CHANGED TO "UPPER QUADRANT" DURING WORLD WAR I.
Today, once more, America is at war.
The Government, the shipping public and the railroads have profited by the transportation lessons learned from our last experience. They have organized their forces and now are ready to efficiently handle the nation's commerce and war traffic.
Billions of dollars have been spent by the railroads to improve their physical plant to meet any demand that might be expected to be made of them. Train speeds, tons handled per train hour and car and locomotive capacities have all been considerably increased on the Louisville & Nashville and other American railroads. Every phase of the industry has been measurably improved since 1918. This arm of National Defense is READY!

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS MEET AT COURT HOUSE

The Burlington Homemakers' met at the Court House on their regular meeting day, Thursday, Feb. 5, 1942.

Interest in the "Homemakers" is not lagging as there were sixteen ladies present. Due to so many other activities, such as Red Cross work and other Civilian Defense meetings, one would be inclined to think that women would put them in the foreground.

A Homemaker realizes more and more that defense begins in the home. She is not going to neglect what is an essential duty to herself, her home, her family, her county. She knows that a sound country is built upon its homes. The homes must be well managed, happy and contented. Her children must be nourished properly with good ideals and commendable attitudes kept before them.

As the Farm and Home Convention was held the previous week, Mrs. Vernon Pope, as delegate, gave an account of the meeting. In her report she told many interesting things, a few which stand out are: The University of Kentucky is seventy-five years old this year; The State of Kentucky is one hundred and fifty years old; The University has five hundred persons working on the campus and nearly five hundred in extension work in the field; the Homemakers canned three million quarts of food at a value of a million dollars, and women are urged to vote and to see that her neighbor votes, regardless of how.

One of the speakers, Dr. Tausch, talking on Citizenship, asked "What is the most important event in the world?" and answered by saying, "the birth of a health baby." He then went on to illustrate how defense and a winning country is dependent upon a healthy nation. He pointed out that it is a duty and a responsibility to keep children healthy.

Another speaker, Dr. Fortune, of the Christian Church, in his address asked, "If there is anything certain in this uncertain world." He said that Christ God and the Bible are certain, that love is sure, and that right will ultimately win.

The ladies were told that Mrs. Reimer, a Boone County Homemaker, and one of a symposium on the program, did justice to her county. Her topic was "The Luncheon Program in the Schools of the County."

After this report the meeting was adjourned for lunch. The hostess had an interesting new main dish—meat balls, which had rice mixed into the ball—baked in tomato sauce—very good.

Now is the time of year one starts studying catalogs and planning gardens. Prof. Elliott, in his lesson to the Exterior Beautification chairmen, stressed the importance of growing flowers as well as vegetables. Growing flowers keeps up morale and one's spirits are always buoyed up at the sight of a lovely flower garden. Tried and true flowers are "musts" but to watch a new flower or vegetable grow is a delight to the soul. If one can not have a garden fenced off to keep chickens out, it is well to plant flowers in rows in the vegetable garden, especially cut flowers. Do not make the mistake of having a garden larger than can well be taken care of. A small garden which shows attention is something of which to be proud, while a large neglected flower bed is usually an eyesore.

As to vegetable gardens, the club was urged to adopt as a slogan, "Let's produce more." Not only would this be a help during the war, but in so doing would be preparing for peace. The chairman quoted Mrs. Roosevelt as saying in a speech, "Women must use things which they ordinarily wasted," and that "Military strength depended upon what we can do without."

A woman to help in the Civilian Defense should be resourceful, she should have health, energy, time, tools and material. These can be had by proper management and arrangement, not harum scarum or hit or miss, and also by getting the required rest and learning to relax at will.

The Citizenship chairman asked for a report of Red Cross work. Many finished garments were reported—one woman alone having made twenty. One hundred and fifty-nine hours work were reported from the group. Mrs. A. Yelton read the proper and improper ways to use the American flag. She then told of the goal set up by the Citizenship group which is: To sponsor free school lunches; have a flag in every schoolroom; proper salute to the flag and pledge,promote Red Cross work; enlist new members; sponsor 4-H work.

The meeting was then adjourned for the day. Taken by and large the day was a profitable one. Such remarks as "Wasn't it an interesting day?" and "I enjoyed the meeting, didn't you?" were many.

Don't forget to put the books for soldiers in the boxes placed throughout the community for same.—Nell Garrison, Pub. Chr.

You'll never go wrong when investing in a good suit for working. The January Good Housekeeping offers for your approval this model which has a spun-rayon jacket and skirt in strawberry red.

Bright Reds Good For Snow Make-up

FEW backgrounds set you off as vividly as snow. For better or for worse, it emphasizes you. So if you ski, skate, toboggan — or even if your only snow sport is clearing the front path or hauling Junior around on a sled — it is important for you to learn how to look cheerfully rosy instead of red and raw.

To know how to be socially successful in the snow, Good Housekeeping for January offers women six points important to remember in snowy weather. One. Be warm, but not too bundled up. Exercise soon heats you, and if you dress too warmly, you will perspire. Two. Don't wear orange; it doesn't harmonize with the snow or with your skin. Bright, clear red or bluish-red looks lovely in a white world.

Three. Except for lipstick, use no noticeable make-up. Cream your face liberally or use a dry-skin lotion. Carry colorless lip pomade to prevent chapping. Four. Protect your eyes with nonshatterable, glare-reducing ski goggles. They shut out wind, don't fog. Five. A perspiration check is in order. Remember the gatherings around a roaring fire and super-heated rooms after the fun is over. Six. Carry two or three man-size handkerchiefs. Tuck everything — wax, handkerchiefs, pomade, lipstick, keys money and mirror — into a compact pocket that fits on your belt.

Relaxing Induces Sound Sleeping

AFTER the lights go out, do you toss and tumble and rehash the events of the day? When the alarm clock harangues, do you rise heavy-eyed and pale? Or do you slumber soundly and rise looking your youngest and prettiest?

Good Housekeeping for January has a recipe for beauty sleep that's simple. No sheep counting. Just cultivate a drowsy mood by going through the same routine every night. Your conscience will keep you awake thinking up excuses for your laziness, if you neglect your beauty chores. So always do these little jobs first, before you bathe.

The nightly tooth brushing ought to be the most thorough of the day the article contends. Take plenty of time, so you can retire with a good taste in your mouth. Brush your hair and set straggling curls with pins or curlers, so they will be perky the following day.

Nice scents make for sound sleep and some women perfume their pillows. But once in bed be limp as a rag doll. Deliberately relax the muscles of your feet, legs, back, arms and face in succession, until you lose all tension and your eyelids drip of their own weight. So you drift quietly, softly, off to sleep.

Howdy, howdy, everyone; old, young, big, little and all—all I can say at this time is howdy.

A brand new column is being started this week. It is a place where the little things, that don't rate high enough to go on the front page, yet are too important not to mention at all, are printed.

I do hope that you will enjoy reading it as much as I do writing it.

I was a visitor in Rev. Talley's home the other night, and he and I, being from the same town in Kentucky, were discussing some of the things that had happened there recently. Mrs. Talley spoke up, while we were talking, and made the remark that she thought Princeton was a funny and odd place. When I asked her why, she replied, "You see too many people on horseback." That's true—but I'm afraid that will be a common sight everywhere, since you can't buy tires any more . . . Remember?

Harry D., Jr., "Weak" and yours truly have an agreement that we will not be the first to shave . . . I am picking McElroy to be the first - Coffman is supposed to be home this weekend and that will make a difference.

Here are just a few of the many things you will observe, if you attend most any home basketball game: Dan Roberts and Frank DeMoisey, with their special chairs at the upper end of the court . . Lawrence Welsh's nearly bald head . . . "Plucker" with his rabbit foot chained to a belt loop . . . "Hunky" in a "fizz" . . . McElroy on the bench . . . and if you will just keep with the rest of the crowd, after the game, you will be at one of the restaurant's discussing some of the outstanding plays and hearing the girls talking about some of the handsome opposite sex of the other team.

Billions for Allied victory — or for tribute to dictators? There is only one answer: Buy U. S. Defense Bonds and Stamps.

THE HEALING MINISTRY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus . . . was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.—Matthew 14:14.

Man is more than a body. He is made up of body, soul, and spirit. In a physical world where he is so much in touch with physical nature, and the needs of his body are so much before him, he is prone to forget that there is within, a spiritual nature which is his real self.

God is interested in both the physical and the spiritual side of man. He provides all that we need for our bodies, and above all, He meets the all-important spiritual hunger of man's inner being. We find the Lord Jesus in our lesson graciously touching both spirit and body of the palsied man in response to the faith of his friends.

I. Faith Brings a Double Need to Christ (vv. 1-4).

This faith-stimulating story faces us first with

1. An Impossible Situation. Incurably afflicted and helpless physically and far more deeply afflicted spiritually, this man had no one who could heal his body and restore his soul. Apart from the power of God in Jesus Christ his situation was hopeless, and thus he may well typify every one of us except for the grace of Christ.

Furthermore, his circumstances were such as to make it impossible for him to get to Jesus, who was there in his city. Even when his four friends came to his help and bore him to the house where Jesus was they could not enter because of the crowds. So a journey begun in hope was evidently to close in despair. But wait, these men had

2. An Undeniable Faith. "Where there's a will there's a way." Where there is faith the obstacles may be surmounted. Having begun a good work they persevered in it.

Had these men been bound by convention or custom they would never have put their friend at Jesus' feet. They did try to make a proper entry through the door, but it was blocked. The way to Jesus is often closed, by some custom, a vain philosophy, or a religious ceremony. Let us, like these believing men, open the roof if necessary to bring our needs and our needy friends to Him.

Although mention is made only of the palsy of this man, it is probable that both he and they knew that his need was for a double cure, for he was yet in his sins.

They brought him to Jesus, where their

II. Faith Receives a Double Reward From Christ (vv. 5-12).

Immediately Jesus "saw their faith" (v. 5), just as He always does. God is on the lookout for faith and is quick to reward it. The twofold need here brought a double-blessing.

1. Spiritual Cleansing. The man's physical affliction thus proved to be his greatest blessing, for it brought him to Jesus, who cleansed him of all unrighteousness. If he had not been palsied he might never have met the Lord. Suffering, then, may be a means of grace. That is more than a pious platitude, for it has been proved repeatedly in the experience of men and women.

Certain scribes "sitting there" (they were not doing a thing to help) began to reason in their hearts that Jesus was blaspheming because only God can forgive sin. Their theology was faultless and their reasoning was logical, but the premise of their argument was wrong. Only God can forgive sin, but Jesus is God, something which they in their wisdom did not realize or accept.

We (especially young people in school) should be careful that the fluent smoothness of some unbelieving philosopher's logic does not lead us astray, and away from God's truth.

Note also the solemnizing thought that Jesus knew what they were thinking in their hearts. Let us remember that "all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13). What does He see when He looks into our hearts?

The challenge of these questioning scribes is met by

2. Physical Healing. Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that He had to give them a demonstration of His almighty power which they could see. It was a gracious thing for Him to do, and perhaps necessary in those early days of His life and ministry.

Today, with all the light of history upon the work of God, we need to beware that we do not sit in the seat of the scornful and demand a physical sign before we will believe. God is doing great things in the spiritual realm even in our day, in which Christian men and women may share by faith.

Don't Let Jack Frost Destroy Your Beauty

GOOD looks, this time of year, are mainly a matter of being smooth. Winter is a ruffler and a rumpler and something must be done about it.

In the case of your face, the best smoother is plenty of oil. Get a rich, lubricating cream, Jane Pearson recommends in the February issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, and use it faithfully to prevent scaling and chapping and to preserve a satiny surface. Pick a mild soap for washing your face and be sure to rinse well. Use a protective powder base, and your make-up will always look sleek and finished.

Red ankles and rough legs don't look pretty through sheer stockings, and Miss Pearson argues that there is no reason why you should have them if you use a good dry-skin lotion, or your own favorite hand lotion on them regularly. Apply it always after a hot bath, and rub on an extra coat just before going out. If you are troubled with flaky skin or dryness, rub a bit of lotion all over your body. It helps to counteract the drying effect of overheated rooms.

REPUTATION OF SHEEP WORTH $100,000, EWBANK FARMS PROPRIETORS SAY IN ACTION —

The good names and reputations of Cheverly Quad, Don Head 149 and Dictator Don, and many other characters of distinction in the sheep world have been impaired, and the reputation of Ewbank Farms of near Warsaw, which has carried on their lines of purebred stock since 1865, has been destroyed, according to an action filed in Gallatin Circuit Court on Monday of last week.

Page after page and paragraph after paragraph of the lengthy petition filed by J. W. Ewbank and W. Ryle Ewbank, partners, doing business in the name of J. W. Ewbank & Son, operators of Ewbank Farms, tell the colorful history of nearly a century of breeding purebred Southdown sheep on the Ohio River's picturesque Kentucky banks.

Association Accused

The petition was filed through Attorney Sawyer A. Smith, Covington. It names the American Southdown Breeders' Association and its members collectively and several members individually as defendants.

Woven into the action also is the history of the Ewbank family. It tells how in 1865, Jacob Ewbank, father of J. W. Ewbank and grandfather of W. Ryle Ewbank, began breeding purebred Southdown sheep on the Kentucky estate, and how "the good will and reputation thereof" was "built up, kept and maintained in Gallatin and Boone counties" during a period of 76 years.

The plaintiffs claim that on Nov. 30, 1941, the American Southdown Breeders' Association 'did wilfully and maliciously" suspend them from membership in that organization. This was done in violation of the association's constitution, bylaws and "the regulations duly made pursuant thereto, and as then and there in full force and effect," Mr. Smith set out in the petition.

And, because of this action by the association, the plaintiffs ask damages of $100,000 "for the destruction of the good will, name and reputation of Ewbank sheep and Ewbank Farms."

The petition alleges that "on and after" Dec. 1, 1939, and "continuously from said date to and including the date of the commencement of this action," the defendants did "unlawfully, willfully and maliciously conspire, confederate, agree together and among themselves to injure and destroy the right of the plaintiffs to be and remain members of said American Southdown Breeders' Association to deprive plaintiffs of the benefits, good will and name of said association, to injure the plaintiffs in the operation of their business, and injure and destroy the value of plaintiff's purebred Southdown sheep, known as Ewbank sheep."

And, further "to injure and destroy the good will and name of Ewbank sheep and Ewbank farms, and to cast doubt upon the purebred Southdown sheep owned and operated by plaintiffs, and to injure and destroy the value thereof."

"Secret Visit"

The noted sheep-raising family charges that on Oct. 1, 1941 (the defendants and other persons acting for and with them did "secretly visit one of the Ewbank farms in Boone county, Ky., without any notice of plaintiffs, or either of them, for the purpose of wrongfully and maliciously obtaining alleged facts upon which to base a false report so as to cause the suspension of "the plaintiffs from the association."

Through the making of a "false and unwarranted report to the association, these persons caused the plaintiffs to be "wrongfully suspended as offending members" of the association, the petition alleges.

At the time of their suspension, the Ewbanks were owners of 250 purebred Southdown sheep, "of the fair and reasonable market value of $10,000," they claim. After the acts and conduct of the defendants, the market value of the sheep is but $2,500, the petition sets out. Upon this allegation, the Ewbanks seek $7,500 in damages.

John Ewbank, grandfather of J. W. Ewbank, and great-grandfather of W. Ryle Ewbank, came from England to near Lawrenceburg, Ind., in 1811. His son, Jacob Ewbank, took a 300-acre estate on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, named it "The Elms," and J. W. Ewbank was born there. The Ewbank farms in Gallatin and Boone counties cover an acreage of over 100 acres. Their sheep have been sold to buyers from many sections of the world and have won many distinguished championships.

W. T. Forsee, Owenton, Ky.; Edward Pruett, Winchester, Ky.; Eugene Helms, Belleville, Ill., association vice president; P. P. Hite, Gallatin, Tenn.; W. L. Henning, State College, Pa., and Luther Belden, Bradstreet, Mass., president of the association, and others, are named defendants in the action.

"The cross is the only ladder tall enough to reach the threshold of Heaven."

A Week Of The War

President Roosevelt told his press conference Pacific councils coordinating the war effort of the United States in the southwest Pacific have been operating for about a month. The military command in the ABDA area itself, the President said, is in the hands of Gen. Archibald Wavell, but strategical problems are referred to Washington and London. The joint military and naval staffs sit in Washington.

The Senate passed and sent to the White House a joint authorization for a $500,000,000 loan to China. President Roosevelt said the money will make it possible for the Chinese to purchase numerous war materials, both in China and in other countries. He said the loan would be a definite relief for the Chinese financial structure strained by the long war with the Japanese.

The White House announced the U. S. throught the RAF has dropped a second pamphlet over several occupied French seaports in the "biggest pamphlet bombing job ever done." The first pamphlet, announced a month ago, stressed the traditional friendship between this country and France; the second told of the rapidly-expanding U. S. war production.

Air

A Navy aviation program designed to develop 30,000 of the toughest pilots in the world annually for the Navy and Marine Corps will be put into operation by May 1. Navy Secretary Knox announced. Applications for training are now being accepted. Mr. Knox asked U. S. high school youth to aid the Navy by producing 500,000 aircraft models of 50 different types of fighting planes to be used in aircraft recognition and range estimation in gunnery practice and for training civilians in aircraft recognition. The Office of Civilian Defense invited college flyers and aviation enthusiasts to participate in the Civilian Air Patrol which is seeking to enlist 90,000 civilian pilots. Sixteen years is the minimum age for enrollment for ground service, and 18 for flight duty. The Civil Aeronautics Administration reported a 60 percent increase in private flying during 1941.

The War Front

Gen. MacArthur's troops in the Philippines repulsed continuous attacks by the enemy throughout the week. Enemy losses during the week included 11 planes plus an undetermined number destroyed in the air and on the ground in an attack on Japanese-occupied Marshall and Gilbert Islands, many fleet auxiliaries, two transports and "probably" a third, and an enemy warship torpedoed. U. S. losses were 13 planes, two tankers and two freighters. The Navy and Marine Corps reported 1,204 officers and men missing or prisoners of war. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to continue the pay of persons in the farmed forces and civilian employees of the War and Navy for a year after reported missing, captured or interned.

Navy

Congress passed the largest appropriation bill in history of nearly $24 billion in direct cash appropriations and $4 billion in contract authorizations for the Navy. The Navy said 100,000 men have enlisted since the attack on Pearl Harbor, and the Marine Corps has passed 100,000-man mark in officers and men, both reserves and regulars. Three destroyers and one battleship were launched and two more destroyers and one cruiser will be launched Lincoln's birthday.

Selective Service

Selective Service Director Hershey asked local draft boards to aid deferment of apprentices in essential war production trades because there is a mounting demand for skilled workers. Gen. Hershey said a plan has been proposed for allowances and allotments to release for induction many registrants now deferred on grounds of dependency. In World War I, he said, payments up to $50 a month were made. He said no figures will be issued on the number of men who register Feb. 16.

Shipping

President Roosevelt told his press conference emergency shipping schedules make it almost impossible to utilize full cargo capacity of American merchant vessels because war developments often make it necessary for the ships to sail without advance notice. The Maritime Commission said through cooperative action with American ship operators, imports of 10 important raw materials increased about 200 percent during 1941. The Commission maintained its ship-a-day construction schedule by launching 14 new vessels during the last half of January. Eight French merchant ships in U. S. ports were requisitioned by the Commission.

Production and Conversion

The WPB announced it cleared contracts amounting to $3 billion in the week ending January 21. The War Department announced production of .30 caliber ball ammunition was nearly doubled during the first three weeks of January 1942 over the corresponding period last year. War Department Production Director Knudsen announced the Chrysler Corporation will construct a $100,000,000 plant in Chicago to turn out Wright 12-cylinder air-cooled engines.

War Production Chairman Nelson announced adoption of a system of daily progress reports to check production delays "anywhere along the line." He merged priorities and subcontracting field offices in a new Bureau of Field Operations to provide "faster, more efficient service to business and industry." The WPB asked the typewriter manufacturing industry which produced 1,000,000 machines in 1941 to cut its normal production 25 percent immediately and convert its facilities to war production.

Central Information Service

President Roosevelt directed the United States Information Service to expand its facilities "so that visitors shall have one central place to which they can go for direction and information." The President said because many businessmen and other citizens "are coming to Washington in increasing numbers seeking information and the assistance of their Government—it has become more and more difficult for those coming—on specific business to locate the Government official who can give authoritative answers to their questions— It is now necessary that there be an integration of the various offices having direct contact with the public, and that their activities be coordinated under the direction of a central office."

Civilian Defense

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to create a $1,000,000,000 fund to compensate American property owners for war damages. The fund would compensate for losses other than life or personal injury to the extent of $15,000. OCD Executive Landis announced cities in target areas will not be required to submit requisitions for potective equipment including gas masks and auxiliary fire-fighting equipment to be provided by $100 million of Federal funds. He said the equipment would be allocated to the various areas according to their likelihood of attack, vulnerability and present equipment. Attorney General Biddle established a special War Frauds Unit within the Department of Justice to prosecute all cases involving frauds in connection with the war effort.

Civilian Supply

Price Administrator Henderson announced rationing of new passenger autos to eligible users will not begin before Feb. 26, and delivery of cars purchased but not delivered before the Government froze all sales, will begin Feb. 12. The WPB Food Supply Branch asked sugar retailers to take care of small industrial users who have bought sugar from them in the past so they can conduct business on a minimum basis. The OPA Consumer Division said wool products sold during the emergency still must carry a label telling the fiber content of the article.

Prices

Price Administrator Henderson set ceiling prices for electric phonographs, radios and all tubes and parts at the levels of last October 15. He also set ceiling prices for washing machines and ironers. Wholesale and retail prices were set for passenger autos under the rationing program, including a provision to compensate dealers for storage expenses. The WPA reported that since the beginning of the defense program rents have been increased in 114 of 115 vital defense areas surveyed.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!
Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.
After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.
Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

OUR NEW YEAR'S JOURNEY

As we start on our journey of a brand New Year,
Let us not look upon it with dread or with fear;
There is One who is willing to show us the way
If we hold to His hand as we walk day by day.

Mistakes we have made on the road we have trod,
So let us be willing to be led by our God;
Opportunity knocks at the door of your heart,
And each must be willing to do his or her part.

We each have a talent God gave us to use,
We sin against Him if we say we refuse;
The way we can know them as we live day by day
Is to ask Him to show us as we kneel down to pray.

Our hearts may be heavy as we start this New Year,
If we walk close to Him we know He is near;
I'm afraid we forget the big obligation
We owe to our God as a prosperous Nation.

He gives each of us blessings we enjoy day by day,
But how much do we thank Him when we kneel down to pray;
We usually ask Him for something that's new,
Those who are not guilty, I'm afraid they are few.

Have we asked for forgiveness for sins of the past?
I'm afraid we have failed, we are living too fast;
Do you think we deserve Victory in this terrible War
When we as a Nation have wandered so far?

So let us resolve on our journey this Year
To walk close to Him that we may not fear;
Be grateful for all that He gives us each day
And ask Him to guide us each step of the way.

Kenton Farm News

Horticultural Leaders Meet

Farmers in the Oak Ridge and the Crescent Springs section met with W. W. Magill, field agent in horticulture, from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, Thursday, Feb. 5th to study the fruit situation and to plan fruit program for 1942.

According to reports from peach growers, most of the peach fruit buds were killed during the sub-zero weather in January. Apples, pears, plums, cherries, grapes and berry crops are still in good condition for a fruit crop at this time.

The fruit and berry growers in the Oak Ridge and Decoursey sections met at the farm of John W. Schumacher, Taylor Mill road at 10:30 a. m. During the discussion it was pointed out that because of the wood injury caused by the freeze it would help the peach tree wood to delay any pruning until the new growth was out three to four inches in the spring. This would give the trees a chance to overcome a part of the tree injury.

Demonstrations Planned

Henry Kordenbrock, Henry Schawe, W. F. Cockerell, Lamar Center and D. C. McDannold are planning to conduct variety tests with the Improved Blackmore, Aroma strawberries and also black berry varieties. Raspberry production was also studied.

Fruit growers in the Crescent Springs section met at the farm of Robert R. Scott at 1:30 p. m. At this meeting apple varieties were studied and new varieties are being planted. Grapes, cherries and raspberries were included in the program. In the discussion it was pointed out that certain spray materials would be difficult to obtain and the progressive grower is already getting his spray material ordered and making the needed repairs on his equipment and spray machinery.

N. Ky. Fruit Insectary Meeting

On Friday afternoon, Feb. 6th a fruit committee from Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties met in Covington to study methods for improving the Insectary and Spray service for Northern Kentucky fruit growers. The growers recommended that the insectary work be continued an dimproved. A committee of two or more fruit growers in each county will make reports on the appearance of insects and send leaf samples to W. D. Armstrong, Extension Horticulturist at Princeton sub-station for analysis of scab spore formations. The committee is planning to meet early in March to complete the program with fruit specialists.

Fruit and Nut Exhibit Planned

Following the insectary committee meeting, a meeting was held with Edw. Jenisch, Industrial Director. Chamber of Commerce and Orville Noel, to discuss tentative plans for holding the Fruit and Nut exhibit for Northern Ky. producers in the fall of 1942. The committee discussed the opportunities for increasing the acres of grapes and berry crops in this section. Growers who desire additional information about fruit production, berries and grapes should communicate with their local County Agricultural Agent.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Inez Beall, with all singing "God Bless America," and then repeating the Lord's prayer. Mrs. Bluch Rich then gave the minutes of the last meeting which was at the home of Mrs. John Shaw. The roll call was answered by fourteen members, with one visitor.

Mrs. Geo. Klein very graciously entertained us with the Clothing lesson, which was very interesting. She brought out some very good points on how to purchase clothing. Mrs. Stein then invited us into the dining room where a very nutritious luncheon was awaiting us.

After the noon hour, Mrs. John Shaw gave a very interesting talk of her trip to Lexington, as our delegate and we all enjoyed the talk very much. Mrs. Shaw was more than glad that she had the opportunity to attend the Farm and Home Convention. Mrs. J. A. Keeney gave the lesson on Better English.

Among those present were Mrs. Charles Lamb, Mrs. Stella Richardson, Mrs. George Klein, Mrs. Earl Hanna, Mrs. L. J. Rapp, Mrs. J. A. Keeney, Mrs. Will Gedikar, Mrs. Bluch Rich, Mrs. Denver Binder, Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Lee Faulkner, Mrs. Alice Riggs, Mrs. [illegible] and the hostess, Mrs. Stein.

Miss Byerly was not able to be with us on account of a very severe cold. Mrs. Will Duever was a very welcome visitor.

The March meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mable Vallandingham on Steep Creek Road, on March 5th.—Supt. Publicity.

Bearcats Win Hard-Fought Games From Dayton and Simon Kenton

Walton-Verona vs. Dayton

In our opinion, which never amounts to much, we witnessed the best basketball game of the season last Friday, when Walton and Dayton got together on the local hardwood. It was really a "honey" and if you missed the tussle, you really missed something.

We have not seen all the games played by W.-V. this season, but the Greendevils are the standout team seen by us this year. They are small, but they are fast and can really hit the old "bucket." The Bearcats were in "rare form" and it's well that they were — or the story might well have had a different ending.

Dayton was the first to "draw blood," but the Cats "took over" about mid way in the first quarter, and were never thereafter headed by their opponents, though the edge was slight at times. At the end of this period W.-V. was leading 11-9. In the second period the Cats added two points to their advantage, to lead 24-20 at the intermission. The third quarter saw the locals holding a 36-29 edge as this frame ended. Dayton stayed a rally in the final quarter, and with about four or five minutes to play had pulled to within 1 point of the Bearcats, the score being 36-35. At this point, one of Walton's most dependable, but not high scoring, players, Leon Pennington, came to the aid of his team mates and dropped in a field goal. This seemed to take the heart out of Dayton, and gave the Cats just that extra push needed to win. The Blue and White hung up eight points in short order, and the best the Devils could do was a free throw — giving the Bearcats their fifteenth consecutive win and their 20th out of 21 starts for the season by a 44-36 score.

"Plucker" DeMolsey led the scoring parade for the evening, by registering 14 points. Next in line for the Bearcats were Welsh with 11 and Groger with 10 points. Dayton's "mighty little men," Dorna and Perry, were tops for the losers with 12 and 11 points respectively.

The Dayton reserves won the opening tilt by "slapping down" the Walton-Verona second team 28-24.

Bearcat-Pioneer Fray

The Bearcat basketeers ended their home stay for the season on Tuesday evening, when they were hosts to the Simon Kenton Pioneers. The largest crowd of the season turned out to watch these "friendly enemies" battle it out—and they were well repaid for their effort. As was the case when these teams met earlier in the season, this was a battle right through to the final whistle, with no one quite sure what would happen next.

The visitors took the lead in the first quarter, and at the end of this period were in front 9-7. In the second quarter the Pioneers added 3 points to their margin, and at the half were holding a 26-21 advantage. The Bearcats, however, came back strong after the intermission, and outscored their rivals 12 to 1, to lead at the end of the third quarter 33-27. The final quarter was really a "dog-fight," with Simon Kenton fighting bitterly to overcome the Cat lead, and the locals striving to maintain their advantage, and better it, if possible. But it was not in the cards for the Kenton County team, and the contest ended with Walton on the long end of a 43-41 count.

Scoring honors of the game went to DeMolsey, Cat center, who was good for 16 points, and Simpson, also of Walton, was next with 12. Groger was third man for the winners with 7 points.

Scoring for the Pioneers was more equally divided, with "Bub" Breeden being the "man-of-the-hour," with 10 points. He was followed by Sterling, Morgan and Casey, who collected 9, 8 and 7 points, respectively.

Fouls were numerous, the two teams having a total of 43 free throws. Of this number, Walton attempted 23 shots, good for 13 points, and Simon Kenton had 20 tries good for 9 points.

The preliminary contest was won by the Simon Kenton reserves by a 25-21 count.

Only Three More Games

The Bearcats have only three more games remaining on their schedule — a schedule that has been long and hard. On Feb. 21 they go to Covington where they play the Holmes Bulldogs, recent conquerors of Covington. They will encounter another Bulldog on Feb. 23, but this time he will be at Crittenden. The final tilt will be at Burlington, Feb. 27.

URGENT DEMAND FOR MACHINISTS

Reports from Kentucky's war industries and from neighboring states show that they are not producing at capacity because of the lack of skilled workers. Skilled machinists and machine operators with machine shop experience are in urgent demand.

It is not only the patriotic duty but vital to victory that all persons possessing mechanical skills let it be known through the nearest office of the United States Employment Service. There is an office conveniently located at 26 East Seventh Street, Covington.

It is not necessary that qualified skilled men report in person. The employment office will give full particulars of the current labor demands by telephone or letter. The telephone number of the Covington office is Hemlock 5241.

Local Hatcherymen To Assist 4-H'ers

Conner's Hatchery, Hebron and Grant Maddox, Florence, have arranged to provide baby chicks to Boone County 4-H Club members without cash outlay at the time of receipt of chickens, according to Franklin Frazier, Asst. Co. Agt.

These local hatcherymen are offering this service to all club members enrolled in the poultry project. Boys or girls receiving these chicks will return 50 pounds of broilers for each 100 birds received, or the cash equivalent based upon the current Cincinnati market quotations.

It is expected that some club members will want to secure early chicks and in some cases they should be ordered a few weeks in advance. All common breeds will be included in this service.

Club members interested should contact the County Agent's Office for further information regarding this plan.

Walton Cannery to Increase Contracts

The Walton Packing Company will increase the acreage of tomatoes contracted for canning this year from approximately 175 acres in 1941 to approximately 350 acres in 1942. The price will be increased from 35c per bushel, or approximately $11.66 per ton in 1941, to 52½c, or approximately $17.50 per ton, according to information supplied by John Wood, manager of the company.

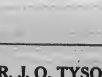
The Packing Co. is planning full cooperation in our National Defense Program, according to the Boone County Agricultural War Board. Tomatoes are one of the crops the Government is asking a 25% increase in production this year over the record 1941 crop. There are no restrictions as to any amount of tomato acreages grown this year, according to John Crigler, secretary of the County AAA Association. Farmers are urged to increase their acreages of food crops.

Mr. Wood has advised the county agent's office that he has already contracted for a major part of his 1942 supply. Farmers who are interested in producing tomatoes for canning are urged to personally contact Mr. Wood at the Packing Company's office immediately, before the full capacity of the cannery is contracted.

Leading farmers taking part in local community program planning meetings have reported that $17.50 per ton would normally give farmers a good profit in cannery tomato production. This crop should enable many farmers to increase their total farm cash income for 1942.

Annual Meeting of Credit Association

At the annual stockholders' meeting on February 13 at Williamstown, the members of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association reelected W. H. Parker of Carroll County, and elected Frank Marquette of Pendleton County to the vacancies on the Board of Directors. These men are elected for a term of 3 years. Mr. Parker has served in this capacity for 7 years and is an outstanding farmer and breeder of Southdown sheep and good horses. Mr. Marquette is an outstanding dairyman and President of the Pendleton County Farm Bureau.



There were 165 interested members and friends of the Association present. Members were enthusiastic about the action taken by the Board in creating field offices in Boone and Owen Counties and endorsed the policy of more rapid and efficient service to the members.

The report of the secretary-treasurer, Leonard C. Taylor, showed that the Association had loaned $34,000 more in 1941 than in 1940. He predicted a continued increase in farm prices for '42 and stated that the Association would probably loan $100,000 more money this year than in '41, as the government was urging upon the farmers greatly increased production.

Mr. Gahm, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Louisville, urged farmers not to speculate in land, to pay off old debts, and enter the after-war-period free of debts, or in such a reduced amount that they would not hamper his operations. It was pointed out in his address that farmers must cooperate with the government and produce the necessary farm products, and thereby, do their part in winning this war.

The Home Front

This job of organizing all our people and all they own to defeat the Axis is a big job, the biggest job we've ever tackled. You might put is this way, you might say we are making the ship of state the ship of war—a warship with a crew of 132,000,000 souls and more than enough ammunition in its magazines to blow Hitler and Hirohito and Il Duce off the face of the earth—only first we have to get the ammunition on deck.

That's the job we have taken on and we know we are going to do it, too. It looks like a very complicated job, and it is complicated in many ways when we get down to cases, when we begin to consider what's to be done with this industry or that, or how best we can use a certain scarce metal or some other material.

But basically the job has a simple pattern, and this is it:

1. Take care of important civilian needs—the really important ones like food and fuel and clothing and necessary transportation, not the ones we used to think were important in the old soft days.

2. Concentrate everything else—men and machines and materials—on the work of war—everything.

3. See that all the people get a suare deal, control prices, guard against inflation. Because if we were to permit runaway prices and inflation we would be putting a weapon into the hands of our enemies.

From the way things have been going in the past few days, it looks as though folks who would like to make an extra penny out of the country's need, who'd create artificial scarities or cash in on real ones if they could, are going to find pickings slim and trouble plenty. This isn't 1917-18.

The Office of Price Administration has the duty of watching against inflationary price rises and batting down profiteers, and OPA has been very busy lately.

When OPA Administrator, Leon Henderson, slapped a price ceiling over washing machines and ironers the other day, it was the fifth important schedule of maximum prices in the field of what are called "consumer durables"—that means things that are supposed to last and, with the war on they'd better. Previously OPA had set prices over radios and automobiles, cooking and heating stoves, wool floor coverings.

The war brought speculation in kitchen staples, in tea and pepper and coca, forced prices to levels unjustified by supply. We have two years supply of pepper in the warehouses, a great deal of tea. Cocoa we get from Brazil and West Africa. African shipments are expected to be resumed soon.

OPA moved in on this situation, too. OPA fixed sharply lower maximum wholesale prices for tea announced schedules containing lesser reductions for pepper and coca.

OPA moves in with price schedules wherever it sees signs of inflationary pressure on prices. It moved in on southern hardwood lumber last week, for instance, and on bed sheets and nylon hosiery.

The time is coming when women won't be able to buy any more nylon stockings. That's because the Army and Navy, as silk stocks become exhausted, turn more and more to nylon for such special purposes as making parachute cloth.

The time is coming, and that soon, when America's women will be wearing stockings made of rayon and cotton—already WPB has ordered rayon producers to set aside a larger proportion of their March output for the hosiery trade.

But in the meantime, as stocks of nylon hosiery dwindled, demand increased. So did wholesale prices—on a scale which OPA termed profiteering and inflationary. And OPA set a ceiling over the wholesale price of nylon hose, warned that retail prices were as high as they can be permitted to go.

Women's stockings also figure in a WPB order designed to save 7,000 000 pounds of boxboard and paper. It specifies that stockings be packed without individual wrappings, and double the usual number to the box.

WPB also acted to save more tin by cutting the amount of tin coating which may be applied to "tin" cans and WPB's Bureau of Industrial Conservation got tough about the vast piles of scrap metal lying in the nation's automobile grave-yards.

WPB warned operators of these grave-yards that where they reject "fair offers" for their collection of jalopy carcasses they may face requisition of their entire yards—including all used parts.

Plans for a "Victory model" refrigerator follow hard on the debut of the "Victory bicycle"—except more of these "Victory models" in machinery and household appliances, models stripped of all accessories, using substitutes for strategic metals wherever possible—chromium, which used to put an added shine on so many of these appliances which typified a period almost as much as the automobile, now has been allocated entirely to war production.

Mica splittings are growing scarce—they're used in electrical installation and we used to get most of ours from the Far East. There's mica in the U. S. A. and in South America but splitting it into "blocks" or "sheets" is difficult, tedious work. Ceramics can be used as a substitute in osme electrical work—and we've plenty of clay. Because panic buying which followed air raid threats on the West Coast has subsided, OPA revoked price ceilings for flashlights. Army and Navy needs for goatskin, kidskin and cabretta—cabretta is the skin of "hair" sheep—moved WPB to ask the industry to save skins by using new methods, substitution. The skins are used for shoe uppers—especially in womens shoes, gloves, leather goods. Peurto Rico and the Virgin Islands may us molasses to make rum up to 90 per cent of last years production. That's because it's one of their major industries. Even the Army is saving rubber, putting less of the crude product into gas masks, eliminating sponge rubber seats from its "jeeps." Director of Defense Transportation, Joseph B. Eastman, tells what's apt to happen as the rubber shortage catches up with motor transportation, as military demands upon the railroads grow—says Mr. Eastman, bluntly, shoe leather will have to take the place of rubber. The civilian population will find it necessary to substitute leg power, afoot or on bicycles, for much gas power. Recommended to those who talk about "insurmountable" difficulties to rapid conversion of industry, WPB Production Division Director William H. Harrison's remarks to members of the rapidly-converting typewriter industry "there is no sense in talking about 1943, the job will be done this year." OPA and the Department of Agriculture are working together to insure plentiful supplies of foodstuffs at fair prices. Stocks of most staples are at or near record levels, floors under farm prices protect farmers who are going to make this an all-out year in agricultural production.

Holidays

Since we have got into such a tangle about Thanksgiving Day, I have been reminded of the holidays that we celebrated a half century ago. Some of us knew of some of the holidays only by consulting the calendar, for only a few of them ever meant anything at Fidelity. Naturally, those of us who were reared in the old-fashioned places have never acquired the respect for most of the holidays that now dot the calendar.

Thanksgiving itself meant next to nothing. There was certainly no homecoming, for most people were already at home. Whatever homecoming there was took place in the summer, when frying chickens and the garden were at their best. Very late in my days at Fidelity, along about 1904, the teacher of the little one-roomed country school put on a Thanksgiving program of pieces and gave us a treat, just like the earlier exhibitions. A few people straggled in, but most of the community probably regarded the celebration with a mild inquisitiveness. We did not know it, but our coldness toward Thanksgiving probably grew out of our being innocent of New England descent. Though we talked about the Pilgrim Fathers as if they were our ancestors, we all knew that Virginia and North Carolina had cradled our ancestors who had come across the Atlantic in some nameless vessel less famous than the Mayflower.

Other holidays that meant nothing or nearly nothing were Labor Day and Memorial Day. All days were labor days for us; we did not know about labor unions and certainly did not look forward to the day as the end of a season of vacation, for we had no such thing. Occasionally people would decorate graves, but there was no set time for this. We depended largely on the time of great profusion of flowers. There was not any hostility toward these holidays; they just did not register. New Year's Day made a little impression, for it was still a part of the festivities of Christmas. But as a separate day it hardly counted, as it still hardly counts in most places where I have been.

That leaves just two, and they were great. The Fourth of July brought our annual summer picnic when all the neighbors cooked up tons of food and spent the day at some gathering place. Ice cream was sold, and soda pop, and five-cent cigars. Barbecued pig or sheep, baker's bread, and all the trimmings made us remember the day. High-flown oratory from some political candidate helped make the day memorable. Christmas was really Christmas and not a commercialized season when we start getting ready the minute the Thanksgiving turkey bones are thrown to the dog. Christmas began, quite properly, on Christmas Eve, when the stockings were hung up and youngsters tried to stay awake to catch Santa in the act of filling them. Christmas dinner and prolonged festivities usually brought colic and headaches to many of us, but it was great anyway. The cold, slammy hand of standardization and commercialization had not then been laid on the season of pure joy. We elebrated because our ancestors had brought the custom from "merrie England" itself, and all the long-faced Puritans could not down it. Fortunately these two genuine holidays created an oasis in the summer season and another in the winter; we could easily count time by them, as the Eskimos count time by the return of the sun from the south.

Money Talks

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The United States for many years has supplied Japan with cotton and scrap iron, two essential commodities in times of war. In fact, Japan has depended to a large extent upon our products to aid her in the Chinese War.

We now have been at war with Japan for two months, and she has returned our cotton and scrap iron in the form of bombs and bullets.

Our past policy of exporting scrap iron has caused a real shortage of this valuable product in the United States. During the past month I have read several articles which state that some of our steel mills have been forced to close part of their furnaces because they had no scrap. The Government has appealed to everyone to gather up all the old iron and sell it to the "junk man."

There are very few of us that do not have some old worn-out iron articles that should be discarded. This is especially true in the case of farmers.

In several communities, town and country folk have organized a campaign to collect all the old iron products lying around his barnyard. Multiply this by hundreds of thousands of farmers and you can easily see how necessary it is for us to get busy and see that this valuable scrap gets into the hands of those who can use it. The Government is not asking you to give this away. You can sell it and with the money buy Defense Stamps and Defense Bonds.

Why not organize a campaign in your community to gather up all the scrap iron available? Scrap iron lying around our back yards and in our fence corners is not a credit to any community. Here is an opportunity to help yourself, your community, and your government!

New Army Meal Ticket Good News for Restaurant Owners

What may prove a boon to restaurant owners is the Army's new practice of issuing meal tickets instead of cash to soldiers for the purchase of meals while traveling. These tickets allow a soldier to spend a maximum of 75 cents a meal in restaurants and $1 a meal in railroad dining cars—in many instances more than he would spend if he were paying cash.

The tickets (one of which is reproduced below) are slightly larger than a currency note, are white and must be filled out by the issuing officer. When a restaurant operator receives one in tender for a meal, he fills in a few blanks and mails the ticket to the finance officer at the post from which the soldier traveled. When the meal tickets are received by the finance officer, they are given immediate attention and checks for the full amount are sent at once.

Now that the United States is at war, more and more of these meal tickets will be used. Restaurant operators who wish to share in the task of feeding the soldiers will acquaint themselves with the new meal tickets and be prepared to honor them.

This ticket should be accepted in lieu of cash by someone on persons serving meals to the public, and it must be presented before nothing meals, signed by the person receiving meals or person in charge of party. When properly signed by Issuing Officer, person accepting fee meals, and operator (or person) furnishing meals, it should be mailed to the FINANCE OFFICER, (Station) Fort Churchill, Alabama (Address) Fort Churchill, Alabama for payment.

AGE IS ONLY SKIN DEEP

This old farmhouse is a perfect example of a home made uninhabitable by neglect rather than obsolescence. The foundation and frame, which represent almost fifty per cent of the cost, are sound. With a fifty per cent saving to start, the modernizer of this old building was able to get more for his money than a builder of a new home with a like amount of money to spend.

Aside from the frame and foundation, very little of the original structure was worth saving. New wood siding, modern millwork, a new wing, an up-to-date porch and complete rehabilitation of the interior effected a miraculous transformation.

Kentucky No. 16 burley has again given best results in Lee county. Eighty-five farmers reported they grew an average of 1,125 pounds to the acre and received an average of $25.15 a hundred for their crops.

Reports of county farm agents, compiled at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, show that 10,465,330 pounds of korean lespedeza seed and 1,491,111 tons of lespedeza hay were produced in the state last year.

Conservation IS THE KEYNOTE OF WARTIME AMERICA

Uncle Sam Says:

"Take Good Care of the Things You Have"

Your Electrical Appliances Can Help You Save

As America's military might grows, more and more of the nation's supply of food, metals, textiles and other resources must be devoted to war uses, leaving less and less for civilian consumption. That means that all of us must learn to conserve what we have in order that essential raw materials may be released for war purposes. Uncle Sam says: "Buy carefully; take good care of the things you have; waste nothing."

Your electrical appliances can help you in this program of conservation. Intelligent use of your electrical equipment not only enables you to prevent food waste and prolong the life of clothes, linens, rugs and other household furnishings; it also conserves your time and energy and helps safeguard your health and eyesight.

There is no room for waste in wartime America. It is up to all of us to conserve what we use and own . . . to make things last as long as possible. Your electrical appliances, by helping you save, enable you to do your part in the conservation program and at the same time maintain your family's health and morale at a high level.

INDEPENDENCE HOMEMAKERS ENTERTAINED

The Independence Homemakers club had a very interesting meeting Thursday, Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. G. H. Houston, Rosedale. Mrs. J. C. Reynolds called the meeting to order at 10:30 a. m. Mrs. Mabel C. Fallen led the group in singing the National Anthem and other songs. Mrs. F. H. Shanklin called the roll, each member responding with a short talk on Abraham Lincoln's life. Mrs. O. T. Tapp read a paper on the care of evergreens, for this season of the year. A general discussion was held on the problems pertaining to the war.

After luncheon, Miss Leslie, who was the club's delegate to Farm and Home Convention, held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, gave a report on the activities and talks for the first day. Other reports will be given at the next meetings.

Dean Thomas Cooper, U. of Ky., gave a talk that will long be remembered. His topic was, "The Farm Families in Times Like These." Some of the steps are: Farm well and conduct business well; maintain and improve facilities and living conditions on the farm and home; make every possible us of science and, such knowledge as we can apply to our best way of living, health, education, church and family; maintain our educational way; study and help others study; maintain the public labrary—all of these are essential to our farm and family life. Farm families are sensible families. We can't isolate our family—reach our, have active parts in our home, church, community and politics, to keep up the correct standard of living. Have confidence in the Government — to have it is imperative. Attend church. There is a time when one must rely on the Highest power.

Miss Mary Winslow, Inter-American Commission of Women, Washington, D. C., talked on Freedom of Our People, In Our Country and Our Home. She said, "We are being called on to give up different ways of living." She praised the soldarity of the Nations comprising the Americas in opposing the Axis. Urging women to do a broad, informal job in explaining the WHY of rationing and other measures. Sacrifice and effort must be expected, but the outcome will be victory for a whole philosophy and way of life. Women must take on all kinds of jobs to rthe dur ion of the war and some time after. Fighting, not only for Victory, but for a future in all of the Americas. War against poverty and disease. Our International Peace to be Lasting.

Dr. Allen Stockdale, National Association of Manufacturers, New York, spoke on "Making Democracy Work." Making Democracy Work is to sacrifice cheerfully. This war is the biggest thing that has ever happened to this world. This war is not one in which anything can be grained by dawdling. It has changed from a war that only last year was crowded off the front pages in the United States by the World Series to a Global War — something new in destructiveness. There must be utmost cooperation with Civilian Defense agencies. Dr. Stockdale suggested that everyone follow airraid and other war precautions to the letter. He told about the schedule on war preparations in America and said "The Japs had better get ready to face their ancestors." Other countries are looking to us for leadership, for lasting Democracy, for Peace.

Mrs. Louis Doll, Citizenship Chairman, will examine her students at the next meeting.

Mrs. Willis M. Garner described the styles in suits, dresses, hats, shoes, accessories and colors.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Carter at Independence.

Members and visitors attending were Mrs. C. W. Reynolds; Mrs. Foster Armstrong; Mrs. G. H. Houston; Mrs. Willis M. Garner; Mrs. M. C. Fallon; Mrs. William House; Mrs. Louis Doll; Mrs. F. H. Shanklin; Mrs. O. T. Tapp; Miss Zelma Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent of Kenton County; Miss Emily Leslie; Mrs. C. W. Carter; Mrs. L. P. Damron, Olive Hill; Mrs. Sarah Tackett, Pikeville; Mrs. Elizabeth Doll, and Mrs. E. B. Houston.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Maybe I should call this column runnin' instead of walkin'. I have really been going at a fast pace all week. I have been kidded, laughed at, threatened, and nearly everything else—"Katy" said he was not bald headed—he has his hair cut short and more infrequent therefore saving money.. Maybe he has something there.

I have stood a lot of ragging too—but even Winchell had to start.

If you wanna' get told off right shortly, just start criticizing Sparta in the presence of Martha Wilson. She's not red headed, but whew, what a temper.

If you are a lover of "Hot Jive Music" visit the Advertiser Office any day between 1 and 5 and hear a few chords of the "Judge Rhythm Show." It is as regular as press day.

Ella Mae Chambers, popular member of the Bearcat cheering squad, is about the most changeable gal I have ever seen. I saw her recently dressed in a sweater-skirt combination, and she reminded me of a 5-year-old child wishing for a chocolate soda on a hot day — and a few hours later, I was surprised to see her in an entirely different outfit, which consisted of a neatly tailored brown dress and a big fur collared coat, that made me think of a young debutante. The proper amount of make-up expertly applied helped to add charm and brought out her real beauty, too.

I couldn't help overhearing a telephone conversation recently that resulted in the joke of the week. Someone called the Bus Station, inquiring about the next bus North. Mr. Vallandingham, popular proprietor of the Walton Garage, explained that it was due in 8 minutes. The prospective customer on the other end of the wire then wanted to know if that was "fast time." Maybe it does make a difference.

Maybugh says the little red "Maytag" he's been seen in lately is OK, but the big Packard WAS much better.

Anyone just entering the printing industry is generally called a "Printer's Devil," but not our Johnny—he insists that he is a "Devil of a Printer." And boy, that is right, too.

If you are on the main stem very much, here are a few of the things you are bound to observe—Dan Roberts on his new "delivery bike" — Malcolm and his derby (which happens to be an ordinary felt hat—Ed.) — Little Genie McElroy minus a couple of teeth — Art Kent's melodious voice — Wanda Neal's beautiful brown eyes — Rollie strolling down to work about 1 p. m.

When Brakefield goes cycling, he does not accept rides from anyone. He recently pedaled to Covington, and on his return home was passed by Frank DeMolsey in his truck. Frank offered him a lift for both he and the bike, but not Cameron — he pedaled on home, and I was told, he was ten minutes ahead of Frank.

I saw "Plucker" one night recently and he was madder than a disturbed wasp. It seems he had gotten ready for a "heavy" date, when PLOOEY, and out blows a tire. Well, by the time the tire was repaired it was too late to see the young lady who was expecting the lanky basketball star. I inquired around to see if the girl in question was, by chance, from Simon Kenton. I got a snappy answer to that. The one "Pluck" was going to see lived at Florence and I also was told that Simon Kenton was Maybugh's and McElroy's personal territory.

If Sam Howard should ever get to play a full game of basketball, it would shock Walton, but if Wanda Neal should clip her claws," it would shock the world.

One of the jolliest fellows I have ever seen is "Pop" Farris. One of the pleasures of my life is to listen to one of his very funny stories and then watch the aftermath. He bounces around like a sponge ball in the midsection.

Malcolm, our capable editor, censors this column each week, so that relieves me of all responsibility of anything in it. (That's what the writer THINKS — Ed.) After all. I just write it and he has the authority to "kill" anything unfit for publication.

The family and friends needed Mr. Elliott, but "God needed him more." We wish to extend our heartfelt sympathy to his sorrowing family.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel of Covington spent the weekend on their farm at this place.

Mrs. Ivan Huff and daughter Janet were shopping in Cincinnati, Moday.

My friends, let us encourage the future of farming among our fellowman—with a faith born "not of words, but of deeds"—that to live and work on a good farm is pleasant, as well as challenging, and that all of our "Rural Americans" will hold true to the best traditions in our National life, an dthat we may exert a strong influence in that inspiring task—for "Our Army travels on its stomach." Food, therefore is the most important war implement of all. Food for health, food for energy, food for contentment and general well being, so necessary to preserve cooperation and united effort among our people. For food will help to win the war along with the buying of Defense Stamps and Bonds.

Though red the roaring rivers run
Though valleys gather crimson dust,
Though crumbling cities hurtle down—
There is still a God, a God who is just.
Though forests yield a blasted path,
To tyrant hordes with heels of steel,
Out of the fields incardinated
Springs still a flower of Hope we feel.
Though flaming falcons flare the sky,
Though hissing missles plummet hate!
Beyond the fire and flame of war
There is God. It's not too late.
Above the roaring guns let rise,
A prayer for peace to reach the skies,
And beg that in Our Father's eyes
We're not too late.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all power. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He ordinarily works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are:

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important!), and provides them a place of service. It is vital to the servant of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of its leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gatherer, etc.; but not one was by profession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such offices they would look within the narrow limits of a few learned professions, with certain nationalities preferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (perhaps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual perspective might be right. He tells them

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weeping shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is declared to be the occasion for an outburst of joy because of the reward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage ourselves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in another direction, so He tells them

2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be applied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleasures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? Therein lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the temporalities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring lasting joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eternal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping.

The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies, and the next day no evil word or disgraceful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

SUPERIOR OFFICER SPEAKS WELL OF ROY BINGHAM, WHO WAS LOST AT SEA

The following is a letter written to Miss Lucille Bingham of Gardnersville, Pendleton County, concerning the death and fine character of her brother, Ernest Roy Bingham, who was lost at sea January 29, while aboard the U. S. S. Mayrant.

Bingham had just been relieved of his watch as helmsman and was proceeding back to his quarters when a tremendous sea broke over the ship, carrying him overboard. He was seen momentarily in the wake of the ship and the vessel was brought about in an attempt to effect a rescue. The area was searched but no trace of him was found.

Bingham, who was a Gunner's Mate, first class, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Bingham; one sister, Miss Bingham; and four brothers, Willie, Fred, Raymond and Hobert Bingham.

The letter follows:

U. S. S. Mayrant,
Saturday night,
February 1, 1942.

Dear Miss Bingham:

This letter is a small effort to give you just a few words that are entirely unofficial. I hope that you will understand the deep respect with which I am attempting to write, the deep respect that I feel, along with a very empty feeling of expression.

First for a letter of introduction, I can say that I was the division officer of your brother, the gunnery officer of the ship. I believe that I knew your brother better than any other officer, although of course there were many of the men who knew him as a buddy.

I did want to say something to you, after hearing this morning from one of the other men of the "Gunner's Gang" that he had a sister who was very close to him. We found your address on the envelope of a letter you wrote January 2. I too have a sister who lets me in on some of the things that mother won't tell me, so I can appreciate your position. For this reason, I wanted to write you rather than your parents. I do hope that you will extend my interest and deep sympathy to them, for I know that you can do it so much more effectively.

Your brother was one of the very best men on the ship, the highest type man that we had. His work was always excellent. There was never the slightest doubt but that he would do his job in a manner beyond what was expected. Whenever anything went wrong, he was the first to arrive. I can truthfully say that there is no one to replace your brother. You will, I hope, want to know something of your brother's professional ability, although at this time it may seem a bit immaterial.

I hope that you will feel free to write to me if there is anything I can do, or any information that I can give. Please remember this, even if the occasion doesn't appear until some future time.

Sincerely,
F. M. Stiesberg,
Lieutenant, U .S. Navy.

A Week Of The War

President Roosevelt told his press conference the American people must realize they are faced with a world-encircling war. He said the first U. S. objective obviously is to prevent a break-thru and at the same time cause as much damage to enemy resources as possible while we build up overwhelming superiority necessary to ultimate victory. The President sent a directive to all Government agency heads ordering them to "determin those employees who may be promptly released" for work in the agencies most directly involved in the war.

Congress completed action on a $500,000,000 appropriation for aid to China, and the President signed it. The State Department announced arrangements to coordinate and simplify economic warfare methods of the U. S. and Britain. The Agriculture Department said Lend-Lease agricultural commodities delivered to the British Government totaled more than 3,300,000,000 pounds up to January 1, 1942—enough to fill 69,000 freight cars and make up a train 575 miles long.

Rationing

Price Administrator Henderson announced nation-wide rationing of recapped and retreaded tires will begin February 19. The rationing will be carried out through the same machinery now employed to ration new tires and tubes. Mr. Henderson said it is probable there will be no crude rubber available for retreading except for the small number of vehicles already eligible to obtain new tires and tubes.

He said sugar rationing will be put in effect as soon as War Ration Book No. 1 is printed and distributed. The books contain 28 stamps and each stamp will entitle the holder to a specified amount—probably three-quarters of a pound per person—each week. When the books are issued an appropriate number of stamps will be removed for any hoarded sugar in the family—as shown by a certified statement. False reports of sugar supplies will carry penalties up to $10,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment.

Civilian Defense

OCD Director Landis said the OCD will be completely reorganized to "gear it for action." He said "each person must have a clear and definite function; every person must be qualified to perform that function. We need to organize our forces and then hold practice tests to see whether they can function." The Division of Territories and Island Possessions reported women and children are being urged to evacuate the Hawaiian Islands. Gas masks are being distributed to the entire population, bomb shelters are being rushed to completion, and 1,000 reserve beds have been set up. The House approved an appropriation of $100,000,000 for the OCD. The War Department cautioned civilians not to molest any military aircraft, friendly or enemy, grounded in civilian territory because such planes often carry live bombs or ammunition.

The War Front

The Navy announced U. S. attacks on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands, January 31, inflicted enemy losses totaling 16 ships and 41 planes, and destroyed fuel storage, ammunition supplies, and hangers and other facilities of the Japanese. The Navy said the power and surprise of the attack was emphasized by destruction of approximately 85 percent of the large Japanese bomber force on the islands and between 60 and 80 percent of the shipping sighted. U. S. losses were 11 scout bombers missing and superficial damage to two ships. The State Department announced that at the request of the Netherlands Government U. S. Army forces have been sent to Curacao and Aruba to assist in defense of the islands and their oil refineries.

The Army reported a week of sporadic fighting in Bataan and said reinforced Japanese troops were preparing for new assaults. During the week the Army and Navy reported at least 20 enemy planes were destroyed. U. S. losses included three tankers sunk in the Atlantic, an Army transport sunk off Hawaii, and a submarine sunk off Panama after collision with another U. S. vessel. A "Commined Chiefs of Staff" group composed of top-ranking U. S. and British military officials was named to coordinate the war effort.

Army

President Roosevelt asked Congress for 23 billion dollars in supplemental appropriations for the Army. The War Department announced the Army Air Force will be expanded to 1,000,000 officers and men this year and 2,000,000 in 1943. The President ordered all personnel of the reserves to active service at dates to be set by War Secretary Stimson. The President also ordered Federal departments and agencies to follow uniform practices in applying the Selective Service Act to Federal employees.

Secretary Stimson announced all Army men will be immunized against yellow fever to make them available for service in areas where it is known to exist. He said to relieve the people of Ulster from added strain the American Army Forces in Northern Ireland will be supplied with food and equipment from the U. S., except for some fresh food products available in Ireland.

Shipping

American shipyards, now launching ships at the rate of one-a-day, will double production within 60 days and triple it within six or seven months, the Maritime Commission announced. President Roosevelt asked Congress for almost four billion dollars in cash and contract authorization to expand the merchant fleet. The President established a War Shipping Administration, headed by Maritime Commission Chairman Land, to control operation, purchase, charges, requisition and use of all U. S. merchant ships to assure their most effective use in the war. The Commission awarded a contract for 36 Liberty freighters. Twenty-three American yachts, formerly owned by prominent U. S. citizens, have been presented to the Navy, Coast Guard and Maritime Commission.

Navy

The President signed the Navy Supply Bill carrying 24 billion dollars in cash appropriations and four billion in contract authorizations, a bill authorizing expenditure of $750,000,000 for facilities to build 1,800 minor combatant, auxillary and patrol vessels, and legislation authorizing expenditure of $450,000,000 for naval shore facilities. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to allow commissioning of warrant officers as officers of the Regular Army. The Navy asked for loan of binoculars meeting service requirements, either 6x30 or 7x50, and said they would be returned after the war is over. The Navy lowered the minimum age limit of mechanic-learners from 18 to 16 years.

Production and Conversion

The WPB ordered all radio manufacturers to convert their facilities to war production within four months. The industry did $200,000,000 of civilian business last year, but already has had its civilian output cut 40 percent. War Production Chairman Nelson said "conversion is the only straight, fast road to victory. This will be our principal goal for the next six months." The Department of Commerce estimated production for military purposes will constitute approximately 53 percent of total U. S. industrial output in 1942, compared with 21 percent last year. In durable goods about 80 percent of total production will go for war purposes.

The WPB announced war funds already authorized or now pending in Congress total approximately 116 billion dollars. The Board said the Axis produced approximately 45 billion dollars worth of war goods in 1941, and to win decisive victory, the U. S. must outproduce the Axis 2½ to 1.

Priorities and Allocations

A drastic reduction in the manufacture of tin cans was ordered by the WPB in order to save approximately 40 percent of the 40,000 tons of tin used by the canning industry last year. Small-sized cans and non-essential cans, including those fo rbeer, tobacco, dried beans and dog food, are eliminated entirely after this month. The ban on sales of new trucks and trailers was extended to February 28. Prime war contractors and public health and safety officials may obtain immediate delivery of new automobiles by applying directly to the Office of Price Administration in Washington, Price Administrator Henderson announced. All non-essential use of Vitamin A was banned to assure sufficient supplies for the Air Corps.

("A Week of the War" summarizes information on the important developments of the week made available by official sources through and including Friday, February 13.)

Special Meeting At Simon Kenton

On Wednesday, March 4th, Fred Macklin will present some interesting guides in the buying of suits, coats and dresses at the Simon Kenton Home Economics Department at 8:00 o'clock, Eastern War Time. Mr. Macklin is one of the buyers for the John R. Coppin Department Store in Covington. He is bringing some suits, coats and dresses with him so we can see these points to look for in buying our Spring garments. Mr. Macklin will also point out why the cost in clothing has risen as it has in the past year. He will point out how the consumer and store can work together for the better satisfacion of both the store and the consumer.

This special meeting is being sponsored by the woman's study group which meets each Wednesday evening in the Home Economics Department at 8 o'clock at the Simon Kenton school. Anyone who is interested in buying Spring clothing is especially invited to attend this meeting. Let's come out and show our appreciation to Mr. Macklin for his service he is giving us.—Pub.

DEPUTY COLLECTOR AT COURT HOUSE

A Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue will be at the Court House, Burlington, on March 9th and 10th to assist taxpayers in preparing their Income Tax Returns.

This service is free and all persons whose gross income, if single, is $750 or more, or if married and gross income being $1,500 or more, should contact this man on one of these dates. If you are unable to prepare your own return.

A fine is imposed for failure to file even though no tax is due, if your gross income is sufficient for filing. It is suggested that a taxpayer list his income and expenses on a sheet of paper before coming to Burlington, and bring this list with him. A man and wife may file joint or separate returns.

Many people are required to file returns this year who have never filed before on account of the lowering of exemptions. Mark these dates on your calendar if you require assistance in preparing your return.

George Weeden Walton, 68, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lamy Rich, on the Union and Big Bone Road. Monday, Feb. 23 of chronic myocarditis after a short illness. He was a widower, and was born in Gallatin county.

Funeral services were conducted from the Hughes Chapel Methodist church on Wednesday, Feb. 25 at 3:00 p. m., in charge of Rev. D. E. Bedinger of Walton. Burial was in the Hughes Chapel cemetery.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Bulldogs Best Bearcats 36-29; Cats Conquer Crittenden 54-28

The W.-V. Bearcat basketballers went to Covington last Saturday night where the Holmes Bulldogs defeated them 36-29 in a rough and tumble game. Only one official appeared for the game, and he saw only about half as many personal fouls as is usually the case, causing play to become anything but pleasant, according to all reports. Covington led throughout the fray, the period scores being: First quarter 11-4; half 22-12; third quarter 28-15, and final 36-29. Smith was top scorer for the Bulldogs with 12 points and Hungler was next with 10. For the locals. Groger was high with 9 points and DeMoisey was in the place position with 8.

Covington also won the preliminary contest by a 32-19 score.

This was the second set-back of the season for the Cats and, naturally, they hated to lose, but in our opinion the loss might prove a real asset. It will remove any over-confidence the boys might have had and put them in a real competitive spirit for the nearing tournament season.

The Cats went to Crittenden on Tuesday night where they returned to the win column with a vengence, swamping the Grant County boys 54-28. The locals were on top all during the game. They led 16-5 at the end of the first perior; 26-12 at the half, and 41-18 at the close of the third quarter.

Ray Coyle stepped out of the shadows and rang up 15 points for the winners, to lead both teams in the scoring column. Welsh with 12, Groger with 9 and Pennington with 8 points were next in line. Mullins was best for the losers, accounting for 13 of his team's points.

Walton's second team was declared winner in the opening tilt by a 23-15 score.

Friday night the locals will go to Burlington for their final game of the scheduled season. A win for Walton will also give them the crown in the Boone County Conference. Should Burlington win the teams would then be tied for first place.

Next week Shields' sharpshooters will be priming themselves for the District turnament which is to be played at Florence. next weekend.

Moving Day Arrives

Yes, moving day has arrived. Today we are beginning to vacate our location on High street, and by next week expect to be in our new location, across from the Dixie State Bank, on North Main street, a new and modern structure, recently completed by contractor, Geo. P. Nicholson.

It is no easy matter to move a newspaper plant, but we hope to have the job completed in time to publish next week's paper.

When convenient for you, stop in and we'll be glad to show you around the shop. We are quite proud of our achievement (nothing like tooting your own horn) and we bieleve you too will agree with us.

Increase Alfalfa Acreage in 1942

The Boone County Soils Committee met at Burlington last week to review the soil improvement progress of the past year and to set goals of accomplishments for 1942, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. A 25% increase in alfalfa acreage and a goal of 1500 acres of new seeding was included in the 1942 program.

Alfalfa was considered the cheapest and most valuable hay crop produced in the county. The large acreage of land that has been limed and phosphated now needs only a properly prepared seed bed and seed inoculated to secure satisfactory crops. Grasses such as timothy, orchard grass or blue grass and around two pounds of alsike clover were recommended to be seded with the alfalfa in most instances. The high price of seed this year should not prevent expansion of acreage when the returns from the crops are considered.

The committee set up additional goals for 1942, including use of 700 tons or 1,400.000 pounds of phosphate; 11,000 tons of limestone; 26 phosphate, potash, lime and grass demonstrations; the locdl saving of Balbo rye, barley and Fulwin Winter oats seed; the patching up of old pastures; the seeding of 100% of cultivated upland to winter cover crops and one cover crop demonstration on the various varieties of barley, rye, wheat and vetch cover crops being used by our farmers.

Leaders selected to serve on the various soil project committees were: J. F. Cleek, Albert Parker, H. E. White, B. C. Stephens, Mark Cook, F. H. Rouse, Lillard Scott Ira Tanner, Wilton Stephens; John J. Klopp, Lehman Goodridge and Joe Huey. William Hill was elected chairman of the soils project committee.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS HOLD FEBRUARY MEETING

The Florence Homemakers club met at the Town Hall on Friday, Feb. 20 and, even with the cold weather, we had an attendance of 21 adults and two children. The meeting opened with the Salute to the Flag and reading the Collect, led by Mrs. Gertie Fossett. After roll call and the business meeting, the president, Mrs. Laverna Willeford, who was our deigeate to Farm and Home Week at Lexington, gave a most comprehensive and interesting report of that convention.

The lunch consisted of meat loaf, broccoli, hominy with creole sauce, beet and gelatine salad, bread and butter, prune chiffon pie and coffee or tea and, by selling what was left, the lunch cost 23c apiece.

After dinner the lesson on "Defense Begins at Home" was given by Mrs. Ann Conner and Mrs. Pauline Grayson and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. Two new members, Mrs. Beall and Mrs. Dell, were welcomed into the club. Mrs. Moore, our acting Home Demonstration Agent, did not get there until afternoon but we are glad to have her even a little of the time. If she cannot spare us more. We are planning a St. Patrick's Day party and jitney supper at the Methodist church, Monday night, March 16th.—Mabel G. Sayre. Reporter.

DRUG STORES COLLECT COLLAPSIBLE METAL

As you probably know, the Government wishes to collect all collapsible metal possible, as it is practically pure tin. Drug Stores throughout the country are acting as receiving stations for this metal. In Walton, you may take your old tooth paste tubes, shaving cream tubes, etc. to the Jones Drug Store.

SCHOOL LUNCH COMMITTEES MEET AT FLORENCE TONITE

Plans are being made for a meeting of all school lunch committees and supervisors to be held at the Florence school lunch room tonight (Thursday).

Mrs. Pearl J. Haak, Nutrition Specialist from the Extension Service of the University of Kentucky, will conduct a demonstration on management and organization in the lunch room kitchen.

Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, chairman of the Boone lunch room committee, and Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Acting Home Demonstration Agt., arranged the meeting.

County Civil Defense Councils Organized

Our County Civil Defense Councils have all been organized. There are five councils covering the five County School Districts, at the head of each district council is a Coordinator and Chairman. These two officials from each of the five councils make up the Executive County Committee headed by the County Coordinator.

These committees are ready to organize the Wardens for training, which will begin immediately. These sub-committees consist of Fire Wardens, Air Raid Wardens, Auxiliary Police, First Aid and Nursing, Rationing and Entertainment.

All our executive committees are citizens from all over the county. They have been selected, as for as possible, to represent every town, village and farming community. These people are interested in protecting the lives and property of every citizen of the county. They have gone out of their way to attend meetings called by the Coordinator to perfect these councils. They are working hard and are going to work harder to see that all volunteers are given a part in Defense and trained for that part.

In some districts where we have held registration days for your convenience, we find the number of registrants are not enough for these communities. This is disappointing to your local councils. We all are wondering what has caused all these people not to register. It can't be you are so busy you couldn't find time to register. We don't like to think you don't care what happens to your County or Community. We do believe every man and woman in the county is patriotic enough to register so that you ma yhelp in time of emergency. We are sure also that you know there is a war going on between the United States and the most ruthless nations in the world. We are sure you are interested in your country and want to back up the boys in the service.

We will still register you. All you need do is get in touch with your local council and they will see that you have your application blanks.

We figured 75% of the people over the age of 16 years would register in Boone County. We leave it up to you.—H. D. Mayhugh, Coordinator.

Farmers Urged to Buy Good Seeds

Boone County farmers are urged to buy good seeds, and only good seeds, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Some reports of this year and every year indicate that many farmers are buying inferior seeds of high noxious weed content because these seeds can be purchased at slightly cheaper prices.

Be sure that you are getting good seeds, following the following important points:

1. Be sure that there is a Kentucky Seed Law Tag on all seed and that this tag is filled out. This is a Kentucky Law for your protection.

2. Be sure that no noxious weed seeds are listed on this tag. One can not easily tell if weed seeds are present. The dealer under the Kentucky Law must present the official tag showing how much and kinds of weed seed present. Some of these weed seeds are bad.

3. Check the tag for the year the seed was grown.

4. Check the percent germination.

Encil Dean of the State Seed Inspection will meet with farmers in the near future to explain how many farmers are incurring enormous losses each year in buying their seeds. Greater return from our dollars spent for seeds is an important agricultural problem.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stephenson and Rollie Farris attended the basketball game in Covington, on Saturday evening.

STATE DEFENSE MEETING FEB. 26th

J. J. Greenleaf, State Director of Civilian Defense, will be at Covington on Thursday, Feb. 26, at 8 p. m., War time. The meeting will be held in Judge Goodenough's Court room, 3rd floor of the Covington City Bldg.

It is important that all officers and wardens of all the Civil Defense Councils of Boone County be present.

Mr. Greenleaf will have with him as speakers, G. Lee McClain, Executive Secretary of the Salvage Program, and Major David J. Williams, U. S. Army.

Let us all be at this meeting so that we may meet our state leader and show him we are behind his important work. Show him we are interested in Civilian Defense. We can and should have the langest representation.—H. D. Mayhugh, Coordinator.

COUNTY FOLK ENJOY LIBRARY

The people of Boone County are enjoying the privileges of a library. Many of the new books and most all of the books suggested by the "Book of the Month Club" are available.

The local library now boasts of one hundred and ten books. There are books covering many subjects: Music, Biography, Family Relations, Foods and Cooking, Gardening, Travel, Historical, Recreation and Hobbies, Clothing, Home Management, Mystery stories and fiction are included in the collection. If one cannot find the particular book which she would like to have it can be obtained from the State Library, through the local Library Chairman. The State Library loans the books to the local library without any charge for a period of two months.

A few of the many good fiction stories are: The Rains Came, by Louis Bromfield; Wuthering Heights, by E. Bronte; Rebecca, by Daphine de Maurier; With Malice Toward Some, by Margaret Halsey; Mrs. Miniver, by Jan Struther; and Sapphira and the Slave Girl, by Willa Cather.

The books are in the office of the Home Demonstration Agent in the Court House and are available to all the women in the county.

Women who do not have ready access to the books in the Burlington office may get them from the Library Chairman of the Homemakers' Club in her community. The books are let out for a period of a month and can be enjoyed at will.—Library Chairman.

WALTON MASONIC LODGE TO MEET TONIGHT

Members of the Walton Masonic Lodge will meet this (Thursday) evening at 7:30 in their lodge rooms. According to W. O. Rouse, secretary, there will be initiatory work in the Entered-Apprentice degree. All Master Masons are invited to attend.

BUY TOBACCO CANVAS EARLY

Tobacco growers are urged to conserve their old tobacco canvas and to buy new needed canvas early, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The total supply of tobacco canvas is limited. Old canvas should be sterilized and both old and new canvas should be used so as to get the maximum amount of service. Growers who postpone buying their canvas may find it difficult to get.

COPPIN BUYERS RETURN FROM NEW YORK

Miss Emma Hoppenjans, Miss Maud Carlton, Miss Laura Bloemer, Fred Macklin and Charles Bracke have returned from New York, where they went to purchase new Spring merchandise for the John R. Coppin Co. Shoppers of Northern Kentucky can rest assured that these buyers have purchased and made plans to continue with the same high quality merchandise at reasonable prices as has been offered many times during their 68 years of service.

New Bangs Treatment Ends Disease

One Boone County dairy herd owner will be offered an opportunity to eliminate Bangs Disease from his herd through the calfhood vaccination plan, according to an offer of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry received at the County Agent's Office the past week. This herd will be used as a demonstration and the owner will receive the service free of charge.

The herd selected for this demonstration should be one that is of sufficient size and infection has been in the herd for a good many years and one that, due to surroundings and conditions, make it impossible to eliminate the disease through the test, slaughter and clean-up method.

The program has proven effective where it has been found impracticable under the present used plan. The present test and slaughter program is still considered the more desirable plan where it can be followed. Dairymen who think they may have a dairy herd that would make a good demonstration should contact H. R. Forkner, County Agt

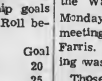
This week we were forced to omit some of our correspondence and other news matter. There were two reasons for this—first, the news reached us late, due to the fact there was no mail pick-up Monday, and second, we had to get our paper out early in order to start moving today.

MRS. LUSBY HOSTESS TO WALTON HOMEMAKERS

Mrs. D. L. Lusby was hostess for the Walton Homemakers club on Friday, Feb. 13. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Marie Hughes. Minutes were read and approved. Fifteen members answered the roll call, after which the president presented for discussion "whether or not we wanted to combine our club with the Red Cross," and also gave a report on the meeting at Burlington, held for the officers.

Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn gave a quiz on "food that has the right Vitamins," after which we were invited to the dining room to a most delicious lunch, prepared by Mrs. Louise Rouse, Mrs. Jane Carpenter, Mrs. Mollie Sturgeon and Mrs. Hope Vest. After lunch we assembled again for business. Mrs. Lusby also gave a report from the meeting held in Burlington. Mrs. Moore, our leader, gave an outline of the important talks at the annual meeting of the Farm and Home held in Lexington, which was very interesting. Mrs. Edna Vest also gave an interesting report from the same meeting and emphasized the wonderful talk Mr. Cooper gave to the farmers.



The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edna Vest.—Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Reporter.

It's an open secret that important Administration men have for some time been sounding out sentiment on the creation of a new agency to handle the shortage of manpower which is creeping up on us. At the present writing, odds are that such an agency will be set up within a relatively short time, according to the best informed opinion in town.

The situation behind the move for a "manpower agency" lines up somewhat as follows: There are now 5 million workers engaged in war production. After the President's war budget message, OPM labor officials estimated that 10 million additional workers would have to be added by the end of this year, and that employment in war industry should reach 20 million by the middle of 1943. At the same time, the armed services are working toward an army of 10 million men (highest estimate).

All of which adds up to 30 million men in the war effort by the end of next year—more than half of the present number of workers in the nation. The Department of Labor points out that there aren't enough men for the 23,500,000 war jobs in industry and that, as a result, women will have to be called upon to fill industrial jobs.

Meanwhile Senators from major agricultural areas report a critical shortage of farm labor. This is attributed to the draft and high wages in defense industries. War factory owners are also complaining. Poor recruiting policy and social pressure are, they say, acting to drive key workers into military service.

Against this background plans for the control of the nation's manpower are propsed.

The functions of the new agency are not yet defined. It is expected that it will serve to allocate manpower among farm, factory and the firing line, wherever most needed. There is some talk afoot about establishing a labor priorities system similar to the one used for apportioning strategic raw materials.

Chief contestants in the undercover fight to control the new agency are Paul V. McNutt, head of the Federal Security Agency and allied groups, Secretary of Labor Perkins, who thinks that she should control all activities involving labor, and Sidney Hillman head of the Labor Division of the War Production Board. It is thought in Administration circles that the new position will in many respects, carry power equal to that of Donald M. Nelson, national production chief.

MR. NELSON has instituted a system whereby he can check daily on each of 300 principal militatry items being produced.

Each day Mr. Nelson and his first assistants will be handed a report sheet showing current progress as measured by production goals. The purpose of these sheets as explained by Mr. Nelson, is twofold: They will enable the War Production Board to discover instantly the location and cause of production delays "anywhere along the line;" and they will "measure the performance of every one of us; alibis will be impossible."

As one of the WPB men succinctly put it, under this system Mr. Nelson will be able to discover any bottlenecks in the program within thirty minutes and give the person responsible "Help or Hell."

WPB officials are anxious to spread the word to industry that nothing should interfere with the speediest possible production of war goods, not even the fear of anti-trust prosecutions.

The question has arisen in connection with cooperative moves by industry such as the pooling of machinery, tools and other resources by a number of companies in order to speed up results. In these cases, the backing of a government order is a good defense of activities which might otherwise be considered a violation of the anti-trust laws.

In addition, official spokesmen state that trust buster Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, is agreeable to the suggestion that anti-trust prosecutions be tabled until the war is over.

The White House has adopted a new slogan. It reads:

"SERVE IN SILENCE
Do Not Reveal Military Information."

MORGANSVILLE

"Let us not love in word neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth." Love for our fellowman makes our claim of love for God plausible. Do not forget the little story of the children professing love for their mother and with the exception of one refused to express it in deeds, but little Fan in the old McGuffey Reader said, "I love you mother. Today I'll help you all I can. So she seized the broom, swept the floor and dusted the room." The poem ending with the question, "Now which of them really loved her best?"

Most deeply appreciated was the recent kindness of Dr. Otis Senour of Erlanger, one of Kenton County's leading physicians.

Contradictory Superstitions

One of the oddities of superstitions is that they are often contradictory, even in the same neighborhood or the same family. Take the matter of finding a pin, for instance. Some people say that if the point is toward you, it is a sign of good luck; others declare that it is always a sign of bad luck. Some people whom I have seen would not dare to pick up a pin with the point toward them but would walk around to the side or the head.

One of my former students, now an agriculture teacher in one of the mountain counties, has sent me a list of contradictory superstitions that he has observed, chiefly in the mountains. Here are some of them:

1. When a cat is tossed in a new quilt, it is good luck. say some, bad luck according to others, for it to jump out by a young lady.

2. If your shoestring comes untied, your sweetheart is thinking of you. or, conversely, you are thinking of her.

3. If your shoestring comes untied, your sweetheart loves you, or hates you.

4. If your eyebrows meet, you will be rich. or you cannot be trusted, or you have a fiendish disposition, or you have a jealous nature. Apparently, it is pretty risky to have abundant eyebrows, unless you happen to be the one who thereby acquires wealth.

5. If your right hand itches, you will shake hands with a stranger or an old friend.

6. If you sneeze three times before breakfast on Sunday morning, three of the family will die before the week is out, or else you will have good luck.

7. When you move into a new house, do not take salt in first. Another group hold that salt should be the very first thing moved. Some people further believe that the woman must be the first one to enter the new house and must carry the salt cellar.

8. Lightning in the north portends rain within twenty-four hours; it is also a sign of dry weather. Probably it is one of the other signs that always fail in dry weather.

9. If you dream of cats, you will have bad luck or else find money.

All of these remind me of the difficulty of living on the folk level. There are so many things to keep in mind, things that have not been written down, that it makes one miserable for fear that he will forget some of the traditional knowledge. Poets and dreamers often picture the folk as carefree, happy people and then dream as only poets can of the ideal existence that the rest of us have departed from by becoming sophisticated or civilized. It is obvious to everybody expect poets that the folk live lives of fear and dread. There are so many unseen forces always at work in the world that the folk can never relax. Everything is a sign; not to know the meaning of the sign is to lay yourself open to constant danger. To know the sign gives you the inside track on the other fellow who does not know it, unless, perchance, he knows some more powerful sign or talisman. Natural happenings hold prophecies of good or bad to the folk, and one is constantly fearful that he may miss his signs and become a victim to the unseen forces. Science may be cold-blooded and matter-of-fact; at least, those who believe in it and trust to its efficacy can sleep better than those who fear some occult sign may go unheeded and therefore bring disdress.

STOP THE LEAKS

Kentucky has over 9,000 miles in its state highway system. Much of this is obsolete and needs rebuilding, including a large part of the 1,100 miles of strategic military roads. Wartime restrictions on cars and tires are certain to reduce travel and thus highway revenue at a time when every dollar is needed to safely carry civilian and military traffic. Yet, the state already has diverted $8,300,000 in motor vehicle revenue to the general fund for non-highway purposes, from 1936 to 1941. This will be increased to a total of $9,550,000 by June 30 this year. The General Assembly can stop such wrongful use of the motorists' tax money by adopting a constitutional amendment against diversion.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our dear father, Jefferson Davis Webster, who departed this life February 20, 1942, aged 80 years, 9 months and 10 days. He had been in poor health for several years.

We wish to thank Coates and Stewart for their attentiveness, those who gave lovely flowers, and we especially wish to thank Bro. Bennett for his consoling words and the choir and pianist for the lovely music and songs, and all who helped in any way. Your loving efforts will never be forgotten.

He leaves to mourn him, seven children, thirteen grandchildren, one sister, six nieces and nephews and a host of other relatives and friends, his wife having preceded him to the Heavenly Home.

He will be greatly missed by all who knew him and loved him. He was laid to rest in the Mt. Zion cemetery, by his deceased wife.

Sunset and evening star, and one clear call for me;

May there be no moaning at the bar when I put out to sea.

Soils and Crops Program Studied by Committeemen

Twenty Soils and Crops leaders and AAA Committeemen met at the Independence Court House on Friday, February 20 to study the 1942 soils and crops program. S. C. Jones from the Agronomy Department discussed the need of ground limestone, phosphate and organic matter to maintain a fertile soil. He gave experimental data to show the need for both lime and phosphate on soils that are deficient in these elements.

Mr. Jones pointed out that farmers should take better care and make better use of their tobacco stalks, and stable manure because of the increased value of all forms of fertilizers. Manure is worth $3 or more per ton as a fertilizer and it has great value as a source of organic matter that most soils need.

Soil Conservation Practices Outlined

Willard V. Benson, chief clerk, Agricultural Conservation Association, outlined the practices that farmers may use to earn their soil building allowance for 1942, such as:

Ground limestone, phosphate, alfalfa, winter legumes, timothy, sweet clover, lespedeza, permanent pasture and other legume mixtures. Winter cover crops, green manure, diversion ditches and contour furrowing, strip cropping, dams in gullies (6 dams constructed in any one gully), planting forest trees and other practices. Farmers should obtain a copy of ECR-601 Ky. the 1942 AAA Farm Program for Kentucky from their county office.

Where to Sow Grasses and Legumes

According to Ralph Kenney, Field Agent in Agronomy, College of Agriculture, Lexington, the following is timely information on seeding practices.

Spring seeding of grasses and legumes are of major importance this year. Seed will be broadcasted in February and March on all fall grain fields, all spring sown grain fields, and on many fields without any companion crop. Defense needs for increased pasture and hay to produce livestock products, demands more grass and legume sowing than we can find acres to use for new sowings. This means that we must go out in old pastures and meadows and sow lespedeza and Italian rye grass seed to thicken the stand.

In Kenton county we have over 35,000 acres of plowable pasture land and much of this acreage can be greatly improved by seeding the fields where the stand is poor or where parts of the land is devoid of grass and legumes.

Mr. Kinney states in his notes on soils and crops that thin stands can be made to produce two or three times as much pasture and hay by sowing more seed.

We cannot afford to be caught napping. There is need for reseeding one or more old pasture fields on every livestock farm this spring and next fall.

According to S. C. Jones, of the Agronomy Department, Rye grass, timothy, alsike clover, yellow sweet clover (where lime is in the soil), lespedeza and other kinds of seed can be used in reseeding old grass fields while the ground is freezing and thawing.

How to Sow Grasses and Legumes

Spring sown grasses and legumes should be broadcasted early in the season for best results Seeding time comes before the ground is dry enough to work in normal seasons. A hard seed bed is Nature's best seed bed. If ground is broken in the spring for sowing grass and legumes, a very large part of the chance for successful stands has been thrown away.

On the other hand, where grasses are sown on spring oats, they have to wait until the oats are sown. Then it is best to work the land for oats, sowing only deep enough to cover the oats well and smooth the field rather than to plow it. Such light working can be done rapidly and thus permit sowing one to three weeks earlier in many seasons.

Using Mixtures of Grasses and Legumes

The common farm practice now is to use at least two grasses and two legumes instead of only one as done several years ago. Get a copy of Extension Circular 242, "Practices in Seeding Meadow and Pasture Crops" from your County Agent for detailed information on seeding mixtures.

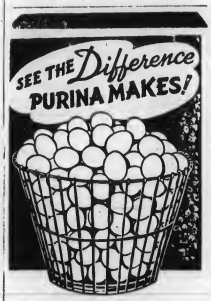
When sowing seed on old grass lands, the lespedeza should be sown in the spring only, while the rye grass can be seeded either in the spring or fall or both times.

Mixtures using red clover, alsike, redtop or other varieties, should have some Korean lespedeza with them. Alfalfa should always have a grass sowed with it.

We will help our pasture and also help in the Food for Defense program by seeding the old pastures and hay fields to make them produce more this year and next.

REMEMBER, that good pasture and hay crops are the cheapest forms of livestock feed that we can produce on our farms.

Attend Meeting



Leaders and Committeemen attending the Soils and Crops meeting were: B. F. Stambaugh; Mose L. Black; Fred Kahman; L. J. Rapp; Frank D. Cooke; Albert Cross; Walter Maddox; Bryan Rich; John W. Sleet; Geo. Klein; Chris H. Beck; C. C. Hopkins; S. W. Durr; George A. Eubanks; W. V. Benson; Chas. Allen, AAA field agent; Ray W. Wilson, Farm Security; Maurice Williams, Assistant County Agent; S. C. Jones, field agent in Agronomy.

Agricultural Outlook and Livestock Program Discussed

The Livestock outlook was studied at Independence on Wednesday, Feb. 18. G. P. Summers explained how industrial employment cycle ha da direct bearing on the prices paid for meat products. R. E. Proctor, from the Farm Management department, gave reasons why farmers should keep records of their farming business, and why this is a good time to pay off debts and reduce expenses. Messrs. D. Welsh, Edw. Schurter and R. Ashbury, from the Producers Cooperative Association, discussed with the livestock producers the need for producing calves, lambs and other livestock according to the weights that meet the demands of the consumer buyers. By studying the market requirements and marketing the livestock at the most advantageous times the growers are in position to receive the best prices.

A good representation of Kenton County livestock producers attended the sevententh annual meeting of the Producers Cooperative Commission Association at Cincinnati, Thursday, Feb. 19.

Women Trouble = Bud Kelland
Men Trouble = Katharine Brush

(From March Cosmopolitan)

IN the first place, men are noisy creatures—they are newspaper rattlers, and shower-bath singers, and door-bangers and snorers. And in the intervals between these uproars they say, "Can't we have a little quiet?"

Men do not want to go out in the evenings, and then—once out—they do not want to come home. By the same token, they dislike to dress in evening clothes, but are enchanted with the way they look when you have finally talked them into doing so. They make fun of women for prinking in public, but they themselves cannot pass a mirror without a slackening of the footsteps and a glance at That Handsome Fellow.

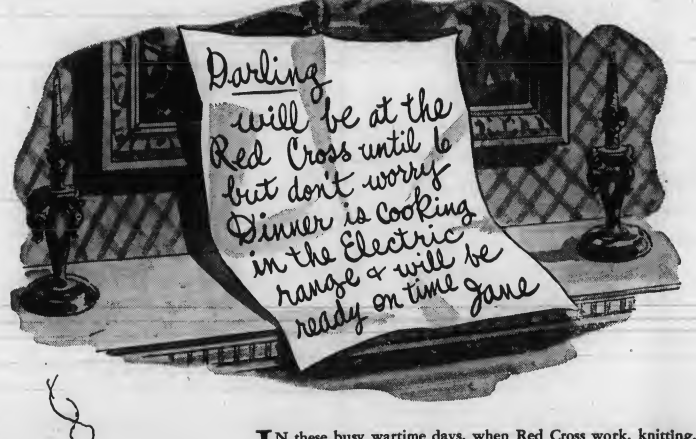
The physical courage they exhibit in war and in sport is conspicuous by its absence when they are mildly ill in their beds at home with one degree of fever. The personification of mortal terror, as a matter of fact, is a man removing a thermometer from under his tongue and discovering that the mercury is even fractionally in the red. . . .

Ah men!

THE trouble with women is: First, they are too practical. If a woman comes out to help you look at the moonlight, you know she is mentally calculating how many kilowatts the moon is wasting.

If two horses are running in a race, one named Security and one named Romance, you may be sure her bet is on Security. When you meet a woman for the first time and she looks you over from top to toe, as she always does, and a soft light of admiration glows in her eyes, it is not for your physique, not for your manly beauty, but for your Earning capacity.

Second, they are too impractical. A woman will turn the thermostat up to seventy and then open all the windows to let in cold air. She does not perceive that this smacks of inconsistency. She is goddess of the installment system. Immediate possession outweighs a calendar full of days of reckoning. She would rather marry a good dancer than a good provider, and she would rather have a man jump to open a door than leap to open a bank account.



The trouble with women is: You never can add one of them up twice and get the same sum.

WALTON-VERONA HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY NOTES

The Library club of Walton-Verona High school elected the following officers at their first meeting on Sept. 22, 1941:

President, Ernestine Webster; Vice President, Wanda Lou Conrad; Secretary, Geraldine Elliott; Treasurer, Ellen Miskell.

The sponsor of the club is Miss Kathryn Scott.

We have joined the Book of the Month club. Through it we are increasing our fiction books.

The Library club ha da melodrama at the P.-T. A. Halloween party. Several members participated in this show. We made $4.05. The patriotism was greatly appreciated.

We have 29 members in the club and are accomplishing much in our library. We would appreciate the help of everyone who uses our library to aid us in keeping it clean and in order.

The following people are making posters for the club: Margaret Hanks, Helen Hancock, Evelyn Sizemore, Beverly Pruett, Wanda Lou Conrad, Mildred King and Mary Belle Alexander. We hope in this way to stop the destruction of library books and also to show our patriotism. — Helen Hancock, Reporter.

HEBRON HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Hebron Homemakers held their February " meeting in the home of Mrs. Norma Aylor. The "Collect" was read in unison and everyone joined in singing "America."

The minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read and approved. It was voted by the members that each one take her turn in making a small article to be raffled off at the meetings for one cent a chance.

The group decided that we meet at the Junior Order Hall next month. The hostesses will be the members whose homes are too small to entertain the club in.

Mrs. Hilda Hogan, our delegate to Farm and Home Week, gave a very interesting review of the of the meeting.

The meeting adjourned for a very palatable lunch prepared by the hostesses, Norma Aylor, Alberta Dickey, Lorena Clore, Mrs. A. D. Hunter. The lunch consisted of hominy with eggs a la Golden Rod, wedges of lettuce served with chopped beets and mayonnaise, white and whole wheat bread and peppermint sticks for dessert.

Mrs. Katherine Peel reported on the County Officers meeting held at Burlington on Feb. 3. Several of the chairmen have agreed to write articles to be published in the county papers.

Mrs. Stella Nichols, the Foods leader, suggested that the lunch for next month's meeting be a variety of sandwiches, lettuce, pineapple and cottage cheese, egg salad, liver and onion, fresh fruits and a drink.

Mrs. Ruth Tanner, home furnishing leader, gave an excellent report on the meeting she attended several days ago at Burlington ad brought out several ideas.

We were very happy to have Miss Lowry, Red Cross Nurse, with us. She explained the difference between Home Hygiene and First Aid. Mrs. Moore couldn't be with us for the day but she was present for a few minutes in the afternoon.

Sixteen members answered Roll Call. Mrs. Wardlow was our other visitor for the day. We hope she will join the club soon. The meeting adjourned after spending a very pleasant day. — Katherine Peel, Sec'y

EACH FAMILY MUST ENLIST EARLY IF WE ARE HELP OUR COUNTRY WIN THE WAR

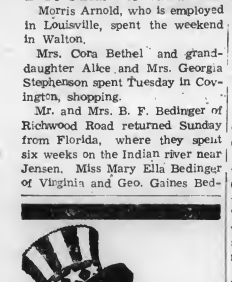
The times call for wise conservation of many things. "Victory begins at Home" and may well begin with a war against waste. Waste of paper, scrap metal and rubber, of course, but just as truly a waste of money, time, energy and health.

The new pattern of living is being adapted as surely as our Country moves into this fight for Peace. Each Boone County family must enlist early if we would help our Country. The following are a few of the things needed:

1. Enlist in the campaign to raise at least 75% of foodstuffs used in the home. Sign up with the Extension Service Campaign so you may be recognized.

2. Save all paper and cardboard, old rags, scrap metal and rubber. Turn this over to organizations cooperating with Salvage Committees.

3. Refrain from hoarding limited commodities.



4. Conserve sugar, use molasses and honey in every possible way (natural sweets are most healthful, anyway).

5. Order any canning supplies which may be needed this summer now. The merchants must place their order for such equipment soon in order to get in ahead of a priority rulling on metals.

6. Stress proper food for everyone. The "must have" in the daily diet are: Milk (1 quart for children; 1 pint for adults); eggs (1 each day, at least 3 per week, as such, or in foods); whole grain (as cereals or bread, 2 servings each day); vegetables (2 servings besides potatoes per day, 1 raw, 1 green, 1 yellow); fruit (2 servings per day, 1 raw, 1 cooked, 1 citrus—orange, grapefruit, lemon or tomato); meat (1 serving of lean meat per day).

7. Make equipment and supplies on hand last and use any available money for Defense Bonds and Stamps.

When you have done these things, you are surely doing your part on the "Home Front."

UNCLE SAM'S call for more poultry and eggs must not go unheeded. Every chick must do its part—a job that is simplified with Wayne I-Q Chick Starter. Wayne ingredients are triple-tested for vitamins and other nutritional contents factors that are necessary for fast healthy growth.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

The third registration hit me right in the middle, and I am proud to know I can be of service to our "Uncle." Anything that might be asked of me, to help lick a bunch of inhuman, bloodthirsty, yellow cowards like the Axis, I will be glad to do.

—o—

I have heard several of the fellows around saying they were lucky to get out of the draft because of "false dependents," above or below the age limit, etc. This is merely one man's opinion, but I don't think that any true, redblooded American who ever heard of a brave General like MacArthur who is making such a gallant stand in the Philippines, would say anything like that. If every one felt that way, every American would be a slave to a gang of ruthless, yellow rats—who wants that?

—o—

I heard of a fellow the other day who offered the eraser out of his pencil, if it would help "rub out" a Jap.

—o—

While I was at the Registration room Monday I saw Ben Elliott there too, ready to do his Patriotic duty. Someone was ribbing him about his excess weight. Ben said it was really going to be hard on an 'old man" to carry 128 pounds on his back and keep stomach in and chest out, at the same time.

—o—

At least "Spuds" Rice has a good excuse for having such large feet. 12 miles a day doesn't exactly make them shrink. Ward says he has a good "understanding."

—o—

Meeting Donald Stephenson and very attractive wife recently, for the first time, reminded me that something has been lose because of not having made their acquaintance long ago.

—o—

One of the busiest gals anywhere is Ellen—down at the Snax Shop. Especially during intermission. She is busier than a small bee trying to sweeten the world.

—o—

Time turns again and Mary DeMoisey looked at Life's photo page of wartime hairdresses and a new way of fixing it resulted.

—o—

Wanda Neal is changing her pet (chalk) dog's name from Oscar to Charley.

—o—

"Toad" Campbell is practically a permanent fixture in Williamstown now.

—o—

Jimmie Vest has decided that it is definitely unsafe to lay a hat down during a basketball game. A newly purchased one soon became a "flop" after lying around and being tramped on during exciting moments of a recent game.

—o—

Albert Neal says if the gals don't quit using so much lipstick he will be a victim of "Painters Colic."

—o—

I get awfully excited when I go to a ball game, especially one like the SK tilt. Ask Blanche Brittenhelm. She sat directly in front of me, and at last report her arm was still half paralized from the punishment I gave it during the last minutes of the game.

—o—

A ball game would not be complete without Bill Custer operating the score board. It hurts to an exent to watch the one-time star of the Bearcats sitting there nervously yanking at the bell cord, with a gleam in his eyes that speaks plainly enough that he wants to be out there on the hardwood, slapping the ball around to help bring victory home.

Paul Simpson says that the only "time saver" he knows, is love at first sight.

Some one asked Nelda what "hymn" she liked best. Nelda said "the HIM with the biggest car."

Frank DeMoisey is joining the rest of the cyclists, having purchased a new bicycle. It is going to be amazing to see him deliver a refrigerator on it.

Bob Brugh, Walton's good natured Chief of Police, was disappointed Thursday night when the serial film didn't show up for that night. Bob said the only reason he ever attended the theatre was to see the serial and Popeye cartoons.

Gen. Washington's Medal of Honor

Purple Heart Medal

"The road to glory in a patriot army and a free country is open to all", declared General Washington in his order of the day August 7, 1782, instituting the first American badge for military merit.

His act was in recognition of "bravery, fidelity and good conduct" among the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers in the Continental Army. Thus was established the Order of the Purple Heart.

Individual valor has always been a distinguishing trait of the American soldier. In the lapse of more than a century and a half between Bunker Hill, Valley Forge and Stony Point to Pearl Harbor, Batan and the Macassa Straits the roster of those men who have traveled the road to glory furnishes a brilliant record of patriotism and sacrifice.

In the first dark hours of the present war their heroic deeds have thrilled their countrymen and illumined the way to ultimate victory—inspiring hope of a triumph not only for the United Nations but for downtrodden peoples throughout the world.

No gold, silver or bronze blazoned from the breasts of the heroes Washington intended to honor. Read his general order:

"The General ever desirous to cherish virtuous ambition in his soldiers, as well as to foster and encourage every species of military merit, directs that when any singularly meritorious action is performed, the author of it shall be permitted to wear on his facings over the left breast the figure of a heart in purple cloth, or silk, edged with narrow lace or binding. Not only instances of unusual gallantry, but also of extraordinary fidelity and essential service in any way shall meet with due reward. . . . The road to glory in a patriot army and a free country shall be open to all."

Subsequent to the Revolution the Order of the Purple Heart seems to have fallen into disuse and no further awards were made. Its revival was suggested at the time of the observance of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth, and its reinstitution was announced by the War Department February 22, 1932. Under changes in Army regulations the Purple Heart is authorized to persons who "while serving in the Army of the United States perform any singularly meritorious act of extraordinary fidelity or essential service." Wounds received in action are included in this category.

THE PARABLES BY THE SEA

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:26-32; Matthew 13:44-50.
GOLDEN TEXT—Never man spake like this man.—John 7:46.

Parables as a means of conveying truth reached perfection in the hands of the Master Teacher, Jesus. Taking short stories of well-known events or facts from daily life, He presented profound truth in the most simple and attractive form.

Except for the parable of the four kinds of seed which He interpreted (Matt. 13:18-23), He left it to His listeners to make their own application. This has led to some difference of opinion, but in general the parables are received as excellent and helpful portions of God's Word.

In the two passages of Scripture assigned for our lesson, we have five parables, each with a distinctive message, yet together pointing out that there is a time of growth leading to harvest and judgment, and that our gracious God has at great cost provided a way of redemption.

I. Normal Growth Is Blessed (Mark 4:26-29).

God is patient. He awaits the normal, healthy, steady growth of the seed. Man is so impatient he must have forced growth, artificial stimulation, and even artificial ripening of the fruit.

The same attitude enters into his care of his children. They must get ahead in school beyond their years. They must get out and make a living long years before they have learned to make a life. Why not let them mature in the orderly, God-given way?

The same is true in the work of the church. There must be immediate "tangible" results or he will not give his support. Anyone with judgment knows that spiritual life takes time to develop, and that spiritual results cannot be judged by physical or tangible standards.

Seedtime, growing time, normal ripening, then harvest — that is God's order and it is a good one.

II. Abnormal Growth Is Dangerous (Mark 4:30-32)

Normally the mustard tree is a small plant, and when it grew into a great tree something abnormal had taken place. Birds (which always denote something unclean in Scripture) came to lodge in its branches.

Just so, Christianity was never intended to be made up of a nominally Christian world empire in which ungodly men (the dark birds of the evil one, Matt. 13:19) should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is just what happened to Christianity in the so-called conquest of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine. The results were disastrous. The same principle is evident today in the control of much of the church by worldly men.

III. Redemption Is Costly (Matt. 13:44-46).

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8.)

Obviously we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with a price we ought always to glorify God (I Cor. 6:20).

IV. Judgment Is Certain (Matt. 13:47-50).

All kinds of fish were in the net, and until the cord was drawn and the net emptied they looked much alike and enjoyed much the same standing as "citizens" of the sea. But when they faced the fisherman there was a quick division, and a final judgment upon the bad ones.

It is true that in God's kingdom (as it is now manifested in "mystery" in the Church) there are many who have come in by false profession, through carelessness of pastors or church officials, etc. They go through the motions, they look and act much like Christians (although even here they create questions in the minds of true followers of Christ). The day is coming, however, when they shall stand in judgment before the Christ whom they profess to love and follow. How terrible shall be their doom!

They need not wait in fear for that day. They may now, today, make right their relationship with God.

NO DIVERSION FROM ROADS

Now that the necessity for a vote of the people on an amendment to permit the legislature to provide aid to the blind and for dependent children will not be necessary, there is more chance that the General Assembly may submit an amendment to prohibit the diversion of gasoline and motor usage taxes for anything other than highway construction and road maintenance purposes.

The theory behind the state gasoline tax and the automobile license tax has been that the receipts from both would be used for road purposes only and would never be touched for anything else. There already has been some slight diversion, particularly in the case of Mammoth Cave. In the long run this should pay dividends as a national park will be of lasting benefit to the road fund itself.

There are two other sources from which the state is now receiving revenues from motorists which revenues in turn are going to the general fund. These are from the automobile drivers' license tax and the motor usage sales tax. The drivers' license tax was adopted originally as a tax for regulatory purposes only. The revenue-raising feature was supposed to be incidental. However, drivers' licenses have raised substantial sums and these have gone into the general fund. This year at the beginning of the Legislative Council's deliberations it appeared that the road fund would be flushed with money and impetus was given to a proposal to safeguard the teeming highway fund from diversions. To quote Gov. Johnson's opening address, "then came Pearl Harbor." The declarations of war completely changed the situation and they did not affect anything so adversely as the road revenues because the curtailment of tire sales and automobile deliveries can not help but reduce travel this summer. Now there is all the more reason why the state road funds should be safeguarded.

On the whole, motorists have not kicked about paying taxes. This is true, however, only as they know that the money is going to build and maintain roads and bridges. As a class, motorists are perhaps the most heavily taxed of any group. They have no kick coming unless they are taxed, as a class, by specific excise levies, and the money taken from them as a class is spent for general purposes for which all should be taxed alike.

We must keep up our road system, for national defense and for the future welfare of the state.

The foregoing editorial was taken from the Lexington Herald of February 6, 1942 and was written by the editor, Tom R. Underwood.

Diversion of motor vehicle revenues to non-highway purposes in the past six years has amounted to the staggering total of Nine Millions of Dollars, and we believe this practice should cease. Senate Bill No. 133 gives the voters of Kentucky a chance to ballot on this question.

A Week Of The War

Secretary of War Stimson told his press conference this nation is confronted with a situation in which we cannot "buy our way out or produce our way out," and the only way left is to "fight our way out by intelligent offensive action." Every effort is being made to build powerful armed forces, he said, and when conditions warrant they will "seize every opportunity" to strike at the enemy. In the meantime, the U. S. must be prepared to take sporadic attacks along its coasts, Mr. Stimson said, because "if we scatter our forces for the defensive, it is the surest way to defeat."

President Roosevelt told his press conference that under certain conditions enemy planes could bomb cities as far inland as Detroit, or enemy ships could shell New York City. Congress completed action on the $100,000,000 appropriation for the Office of Civilian Defense, to provide fire-fighting equipment, gas masks, protective clothing and emergency medical supplies.

Assistant Secretary of State Berle, speaking in Des Moines, Iowa, said the U. S. is determined to fight an aggressive war, rather than a defensive one, and "the fruits of victory will be available to every free people throughout the world." Mr. Berle said "We can no longer think of ourselves as a supply base. . . Our work is more than that of making guns and planes and tanks. Winning the war is now America's job." He said all signs point to big offensives this spring against the United States.

Foreign Relations

President Roosevelt announced a new loan to Russia is planned because the original Lend-Lease authorization of a billion dollars has been obligated for future deliveries. Commitments for making American war materials available to Russia were maintained up to schedule until December 7. Delivery of supplies for the Soviet Union slowed down in December and January, he said, but will be brought back up to schedule by March 1. Under Secretary of State Welles said answers from the Vichy Government to this country in regard to French aid to Axis forces in North Africa were considered unsatisfactory. Mr. Welles said the French Ambassador had reported, however, no commitments have been made by the French to Japan in regard to Madagascar.

Production and Conversion

The War Production Board announced war production of the "big three" automobile companies —General Motors, Chrysler and Ford—will be running at a rate of almost $11 billion when they reach peak production on present orders. The companies will need 900,000 to 1,000,000 workers as compared with a peacetime peak of 550,000. The Board said war expenditures authorized by Congress, including pending bills and Lend-Lease, totaled $145 billion on February 15. Chairman Nelson issued a set of regulations regarding the employment of dollar-a-year men by the Government. The Army Ordnance Department ordered ordnance chiefs in the 13 districts of the U. S. to provide engineering assistance to small manufacturers whose plants could be converted to arms production.

Army

The House passed and sent to the Senate the new $32 billion War Appropriation Bill which provides $23 billion for the Army and more than $5 billion for Lend-Lease. The Senate passed a bill to authorize payment of allotments for one year to dependents of military personnel captured or listed as missing. Voluntary enlistments in January totaled 90,000—double the highest World War I figures. The Army announced formation of the 1st Filipino Infantry Batallion at Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif., to provide loyal Filipinos a means of serving in the U. S. armed forces and the eventual opportunity of fighting in their homeland. The War Department reported American pilots in the Chinese Air Forces "are giving Japanese airmen their worst licking of the war—knocking down more than 10 Jap planes for every loss" of their own. The Army Signal Corps is seeking civilian engineers to fill radio and telephone positions in Civil Service jobs paying $2,600 to $3,800 annually.

Selective Service Headquarters announced new Army physical standards for inductees will permit reclassification as Class 1-A of thousands of men now deferred due to teeth and eye defects. SS Director Hershey instructed local draft boards to defer labor leaders and Government labor liaison men to permit continuance of their work in aiding war production and to defer men engaged in maintenance of essential agricultural activities. Men registered February 16 will be called for induction only after local boards have exhausted their existing lists, he said. A lottery in March will determine the order of classification and induction. Questionnaires on vocational experience will be sent to every registrant who has not yet been called for service.

The War Front

Gen. MacArthur reported continuous fighting on the Bataan Peninsula and battery attacks on the fortifications throughout the week. The Navy announced the destroyer Shaw, previously reported lost at Pearl Harbor December 7, arrive dat a U. S. West coast port, is being repaired and within a few weeks will be in service again on the high seas. A U. S. tanker was torpedoed in the Atlantic area, while U. S. forces inflicted enemy losses which included: 10 planes, one large and one small enemy transport and one 5 000-ton cargo ship sunk, and two enemy barges destroyed.

Navy

Navy Secretary Knox said the Navy, operating over three-fourths of the globe under the heaviest burden in its history, must now protect U. S. shores and coastal commerce, strategic areas vital to our defense. the American Republics, and the flow of supplies to Great Britain. It must check Japanese aggression until "we can muster our forces and send it hurtling back whence it came." The Navy announced launching of a battleship, four destroyers and a submarine chaser. The Navy said 1,000 Naval and Marine Corps officers and enlisted men and 1,200 civilians in the Pacific war area presumably were taken prisoners of war by the Japanese after December 7. The Portland, Oreg., recruiting office topped all others in January with 114 enlistments for each 100,000 persons in its area. The nation's schools started work on a program to make 500,000 accurate scale models of United Nations' and enemy warplanes for U. S. naval, military and civilian defense forces.

The Chief of Naval Operations ordered representatives of local Naval District Commandants to arrange with ship owners to do preliminary work when ships are in port loading or unloading to speed arming of American merchant vessels. The House passed and sent to the Senate the War Appropriation Bill providing nearly $4 billion to expand the merchant fleet. The Senate passed a bill authorizing an additional $100,000,000 appropriation for expanded Navy manufacturing and production facilities.

Rationing

Price Administrator Henderson announced three consumer forms for sugar rationing are expected to be printed and distributed by March 7. He said there will be two registrations for rationing cards, one for housewives and another for small commercial users. Petroleum Coordinator Ickes said nation-wide rationing of petroleum products may be necessary if other methods fail to prevent shortages on both coasts. He announced regulations governing sales of fuel oil to all East coast consumers to keep stocks at a reasonable minimum and to prevent hoarding. The Justice Department said it is prepared to prosecute all violators of wartime industrial regulations including priorities, allocation, rationing and price control.

Protection from Sabotage

President Roosevelt authorized the Secretary of War to move out of vital defense areas any persons believed inimical to the U. S. war effort— citizens and aliens alike. Attorney General Biddle said the FBI has apprehended almost 4,000 alien enemies since the outbreak of the war. Approximately one-third of these are Japanese from California, Oregon and Washington.

Priorities and Allocations

The WPB froze all stocks of new mechanical refrigerators except those in the hands of retailers, in preparation for conversion of this $280,000,000 industry and its 36,000 workers to war production. All refrigerator production will end April 30, the Board said. It also assumed full control of the entire 1942 raw cane sugar supply, curtailed use of critical materials in manufacture of all musical instruments, and restricted use of natural gas.

Hundreds of members of homemakers' clubs are specifically requesting vitamin "enriched" bread from their grocers.

The Boone County homemakers' library now totals 113 books, 41 of which were in use last month alone.

The Dairymen's Cooperative Association in Grant county had 900 cows tested for Bang's disease last month.

Last month 240 Breckinridge county farmers attended community more-food meetings despite sub-zero weather.

Many Americans are just beginning to realize that we are in a war which may be a long and hard one. Past wars have always called for sacrifices and lower living standards.

Up to the present time, if we do not consider the men who have entered the armed forces, very few of us have made any real sacrifices. The fact that we can't buy automobiles and tires has not hurt us much. Most of us can operate our old car on the old tires for many months to come. The rationing of sugar is not severe enough to hurt many families. We can still go to our stores and buy nearly everything we could a year ago when we were at peace.

But we must not let these facts distort the true picure. Present plans call for an army of between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 men by the end of 1943. If the war goes beyond 1943 (as many believe it will), there will be a still greater demand for man power. Every person must take this fact into consideration. It is a fact that will force adjusments in both private lives and in business methods.

The army is taking more and more of our normal civilian products. It is demanding more wool each month, and we may expect a further cut this spring in woolen clothing for civilians. In order to feed this increasing army and navy, the Government will need nearly 25% of all the canned beans, peas, corn and nearly 30% of all canned tomatoes as well as an increasing amount of all of our other foodstuffs.

We must also remember that nearly everything we buy will cost more as time goes on. The purchasing power of the dollar has shrunk 10c during the last year, and we may easily expect a further shrinkage of another 10c during this coming year.

War calls for sacrifices. We must be prepared to make them.

Muhlenberg county homemakers are furnishing the local hospital with tomato juice and other fruit juices.

Many Fulton county farmers expect to creep-feed the spring lamb flocks.

The Perry County Farmers' Co-op[illegible] will supply high-quality seeds to farmers at low cost.

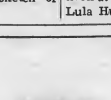
Bearcats Win Conference Crown

The Walton-Verona Bearcats ended their current scheduled basketball season at Burlington last Friday night, and also clinched the Boone County Conference crown. The Cats ended Conference play with eight wins and no losses. Burlington finished second with six wins, two defeats; New Haven, third; Hebron, fourth and Florence fifth.

In the Burlington tilt, the locals led throughout and coasted to a 52-19 win. They were in front 15-3 at the end of the first quarter; 28-11 at the half, and 46-14 at the close of the third period.

For the losers, Huey was top scorer, with 11 points. Most all of the Bearcats took part in the scoring. DeMoisey was tops with 13 markers, and following were Simpson with 8; Pennington, 7; Mayhugh and Coyle with 6 each.



This win gave the Cats a total of 23 wins out of 25 games played. A record of which they can be justly proud. The only losses were at the hands of Dixie Heights and Covington—teams with which the Blue and White broke even.

The second teams put on quite a thriller at Burlington. Three overtime periods were needed to settle the issue—Walton winning 23-21. At the close of the regulation game the count was knotted and at the end of the first extra period things were still tied, 19-19. At the end of the second extra session it was 21-21. It was Cliff Ryan who tied the score for the winners in the first two overtime periods and Piner tossed through the game-winning bucket in the third.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Improvements

An improvement and beautification program that includes the landscaping of the new auxiliary building and the erection of a retaining wall and the installation of a parking lot for doctors was planned by the Woman's Auxiliary of Booth Memorial Hospital at a meeting held on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

The auxiliary also voted to purchase new type screens for rooms in the men's and women's wards to provide patients greater privacy.

It was announced that there is an urgent need for used men's, women's and children's clothing to replenish wardrobes of needy patients. Anyone having outgrown baby clothes or blankets has been asked to give them to the auxiliary after they have been freshly laundered. The Kenton County Republican Women's Club has decided to donate and sew baby garments for the hospital's worthy patients.

It was announced that sewing Unit II had completed 137 garments at the last meeting.

FIRE DESTROYS RICHWOOD HOME

The home of George Knox at Richwood was completely destroyed by fire Saturday. Only a few pieces of furniture were saved.

It is said the fire was caused by an oil stove.

By the time the Walton Fire Department reached the scene, the home was beyond saving, but they were able to save the barns and other outbuildings.

W. B. Johnson, Fire Adjuster for the Boone County Fire Insurance Co., accompanied Mr. Knox to Burlington, Monday where he received the full amount of his insurance, $4,000 on the house and $1,000 on the furniture—very quick work, we think.

Farm Machinery Adjustments Important

Boone County farmers are urged to cooperate fully and immediately in the National Farm Machinery repair program, it is stated by H. R. Forkner. Machinery repaired and ready to use is the prime essential in most efficient food production and time and labor saving under the war emergency program.

Farm machinery is an essential part of our war program. No time should be lost in making all necessary repairs, and where new parts are needed, to order and use them immediately.

The County school system is rendering splendid cooperation in making a farm survey of machinery needs. While the great good that will come from this survey is action on the part of farmers, another very essential part of the survey is important. That part is the filling out of the machinery report form and returning it to the school. This repor gives both a record of the progress being made and a list of surplus equipment that may be for sale or used equipment that farmers desire to purchase.

COOPERATE—If you have not turned in your farm machinery report, do so now. Schools are urged to complete their surveys and turn in their reports at the earliest possible date.

"Do what you can with what you have."

This is Donald M. Nelson's advice to American manufacturers. The War Production Board is placing emphasis on plant conversion—changing over from the production of peacetime to military goods It also lays stress on the necessity of each factory-owner's going out to get a defense contract.

The procedure suggested is to find out what is needed by inquiring at the proper local offices; then to check machinery and other facilities to determine where the factory owner can fit into the picture. Once that is decided, it's up to the manufacturer to land his contract, even at the risk of making a nuisance of himself. Persistence does it.

War Production Board Chief Nelson thinks that it isn't possible to put too much stress on the need for conversion of all available facilities from civilian to defense production. In his latest statement on the subject he says:

"We must have all-out conversion, for all-out conversion will mean victory.

"Conversion is our Number One problem."

The Division of Industry Operations of WPB answers all comments to the effect that conversion isn't as simple as it sounds by pointing to conversions which have already taken place. For example, a plant that used to make merry-go-rounds is now making vital Army and Navy equipment, in spite of the fact that the company was told is couldn't be done with its machinery.

More than $150 million worth of war goods have been contracted for in the shops of a community which is in the under-100,000 population class.

And then there is the man whose normal business was making orange squeezers and metal games for children. He is now engaged in the business of making intricate guages, dies and bullet punches.

All of this is reflected in the changing attitude of government officials toward small business. Whereas formerly the slogan was: "Save small business," today, the key word is "Use small business."

Pearl Harbor, Guam and Singapore have resulted in toughening the attitude of Administration men in charge of production and of businessmen working to meet production schedules.

From the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor comes the news that for the duration of the war, at least, the nation's women will add o their duty as homebuilders the task of filling in on the factory front.

The Bureau reports that the War Production Board is studying the advisability of having a compulsory registration ow women for defense jobs. Many informed people feel that such a registration will be needed before the war is over Mrs. Roosevelt, for instance, advocates the immediate registration of women under 45 years of age in order to save time later as the need develops. Sidney Hillman says that at least one million American women will be needed to work on the production of war materials, especially to replace men who are called to the colors.

Where women are used for factory and precision work, personnel managers agree that they perform their tasks as satisfactorily, and, in many instances, better than their male predecesors.

BRIEFS: Launching traditions are going. Congress has passed a bill reducing the cost of a ship-launching, which ordinarily runs from $14,000 for a destroyer to $125.000 for an aircraft carrier (plus a diamond-studded gift for the sponsor), to $25.00 . . . The Department of Agriculture was authorized by Congress to provide funds for planting 75,000 acres of the guayule shrub. This shrub is to be used for the production of synthetic rubber. The acreage covers all for which seed is available . . .

The Labor Division of WPB plans to train 200,000 skilled foremen and supervisors in factories throughout the country by July 1, 1942. Foremen will be taught how to break in untrained men on skilled jobs and experienced men on new jobs. The factory itself is the classroom . . . C. E. Just Like Us

When I used to live in the Fidelity neighborhood, I thought that we were peculiar people, unlike any one else in the world. By degrees, I fear, we had come to regard ourselves peculiar in a good way, much as the Hebrews regarded themselves. We feared that even the people up or down the creek were not quite like us; the county seat and farther away were practically hopeless. Since I left Fidelity, however, I have been startled to find that we were ludicrously like other people, for all their better houses and better chances; or, if you want to swap ends of the comparison, even the best of the other people were strickingly like us of little old remote Fidelity.

When I was eighteen, I went away from Fidelity forever. My first trip took me some sixty-five miles away in a straight line to a county farther west in Kentucky. There I attended a private academy for a time and taught my first school in the following fall. To my surprise I found the people of the small county seat town where the academy was located and especially the people of the farming neighborhood where I taught so much like those back home that a given family could be exchanged with one at Fidelity without causing any noticeable difference. I suppose now, after more than a third of a century, that I expected to find people who differed widely from those I had known; one old lady that I knew used to pray publicly for her son in distant places, when he was actually in Louisville. Whatever I may learn in my life, that first rude shock to my feeling that Fidelity was different will be my greatest mental acquirement.

Since that first time away from home I have lived among strangers and visited among many more, only to find Fidelity forever bobbing up. The people who came to consult my father, the county doctor, represented every type of the genus HOME that I have found elsewhere. The names may differ, the clothes certainly differ, and there are some minor differences in language, but underneath these non-essentials personalities seem to be the same.

In recent years I have wondered still more at the epitome of human life that we saw daily in our isolated section. For instance, our Negroes talked like those in the writings of Joel Chandler Harris and DuBose Heyward and Julia Peterkin. With the exception of a few words that are peculiar to the Sea Island part of the South our Negro language could have been transferred bodily to the writings of these same authors. Lodges, burial societies, banter, sorrow, spirituals, church, cryptic philosophy that white folks probably have never understood, hoodoo, conjure—what that is distinctive of Negro life did we not know? Slavery had not been important at Fidelity, since only a small portion of the landowners had slaves, but our small section, I repeat, was a cosmos.

Not only was this true about Negroes, but it was equally true of other people, striking personalities in history or in books. We could have been expected to be most like the South, but how could good Yankee get into our remote nook among the hills? It seemed fairly hard for the mail-carrier to get to us twice a week, but distance meant nothing to persistent personalities that somehow came to be a part of our daily lives. Some one has said that one can stand on Canal Street in New Orleans for half a day and see every known kind of person. That hardly sounds unreasonable when we consider the importance of the city as a sea port second only to New York. It is equally true that one could station himself at the country store at Fidelity (or Podunk) and see go by in precession all the kinds of people that have ever been or will ever be. That is what makes a cross section of any area a true picture of the whole human race.

SPARTA

Sparta Loses Another Citizen

Samuel Wilson, prominent among architects of Northern Kentucky, died Monday, Feb. 23rd at the home of his brother, Joe Wilson, where he had made his home for a number of years, after a lingering illness of four years. During the time he was tenderly cared for by his brother and family. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge of Sparta and of the Williamstown Baptist church. He was born in Union, Boone County, July 4, 1867 and was one of nine children born to Thos. D. and Nancy Jane Wilson. On March 16, 1895 he was married to Miss Cyntha Hodge of Gallatin county, who bore three children, George of New York; Rose of Indiana, and Christine, who died at the age of 18 years.

The deceased was a master craftsman and many homes and public buildings stand as a silent reminder of his superior architectural work. The funeral was conducted Wednesday, Feb. 25 from the late home by Rev. Smith of the Baptist Church and Rev. Clark of the Sparta Christian Church, after which the remains were laid to rest in Warsaw cemetery. Two daughters and one brother survive him.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Farm income in this country is soaring under world war stimulus. Reflecting the rapid increase in agricultural prices, cash farm income in 1941 (which included Government subsidies) totaled nearly twelve billion dollars. This represents a gain of nearly 30% over 1940 and is the highest for any year since 1920.

Under the stimulus provided by the "food for victory" program, considerable increase in all farm production may be expected in 1942. But we need not expect any decrease in farm prices. In fact, every market report I have seen for months predicts a steady rise in the price of nearly every agricultural product.

The purchasing power of our farmers is the largest since World War I. With farm cash income expected to reach a new all-time high in 1942, the farmer will be in the market for many industrial products. The amount they will be able to purchase, however, will be seriously curtailed by the Government rationing program. It seems to me that farmers and business men in farming communities should plan their buying programs now so they will not be hampered by the future scarcity of necesary supplies.

GOOD citizens of any community are those who contribute toward its welfare and progress.

In this respect, Southeastern Greyhound Lines is proud of its role of "good citizen" in the hundreds of communities and among the millions of people it serves.

To its "fellow citizens" in these communities, it provides the finest of transportation to men on business, children to school, shoppers to town, defense workers to factories, service men to camps and home. Its service to them is economical; its buses are well maintained and comfortable; its schedules are frequent; and its drivers have won national safety awards for many consecutive years.

In hundreds of communities, buses provide the only public transportation; on many routes, they carry U. S. Mail; on nearly all routes, they speed delivery of newspapers; on EVERY ROUTE and in EVERY BUS, the daily life of America is being served beneficially and well.

In all respects, we believe that Greyhound and its employees qualify as good citizens in your community . . . substantial contributors to the welfare and progress of your city. We like to feel that you think so, too.

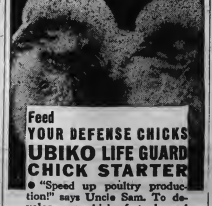
SAVE RUBBER..Uncle Sam Needs It!



ery ounce of rubber saved by civilians goes into a war product. Proper care of your tires can increase ir usefulness and make such saving possible. The United States Rubber Company, through its Car ner's Creed, has issued this advice on tire preservation: (1) Wheels should be checked for balance frequently, since the greatest cause of "front end jitters" is unbalanced wheel assembly; (2) The commonest form of misalignment is excessive "toe-in or toe-out" of the front wheels which scuffs away rubber. Check wheel alignment periodically; (3) When brakes are out of adjustment tread wear is uneven. Have brakes checked often by a dealer with up-to-date equipment; (4) Watch the pressure in your tires. Under-inflation, say U. S. Rubber engineers, can cut mileage 20%; (5) Inspect your tires and tubes regularly to locate troubles before they become serious. When cords are broken inside the tire you can't see them but they may cut the tube if not located; (6) Avoid sharp impacts with curbs or curb stones or other objects. Severe impacts may be absorbed by the tire but they are often deadly. Rim cuts kill tires.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

If you enjoy really sweet piano music, you should go to Williamstown and hear the very beautiful Ruby Cotton "slap the ivory" around awhile. She rounded out a few for me the other night and I think she is just about tops. Ruby, as you all know, is a former Waltonian.

I met petite Evelyn Coffman for the first time recently, and now I see why McElroy's heart skips a beat or two when she's around.

The J. B. Johnson's are living examples of two made for each other and perfect choice. Their eyes seem to sing "You and I" wherever they go.

One Waltonian I admire for his calm acceptance of things as they are, is Robt. Jones. The popular druggist has a lot of jobs to perform and does them all well, with considerable satisfaction to most people who do business with him.

Spent a very enjoyable evening at Georgia Rouse's home the other night. Her basement is fixed in the form of a recreation parlor—ping pong, radio, easy chairs, etc. Georgia turned out to be ping pong champ, beating Katy by a close score, 2 out of 3, and me, by a very tight score of 21 to 2.

Ever since I've been in Walton I've heard of Ed Orr's garden. From bits of information I could gather here and there, it was supposed to be at least a couple of acres and have enough space to raise several bushels of corn and enough vegetables to supply the Rouse grocery. When I really did see it, I was shocked beyond my capacity. It was nearly as big as a medium sized bath tub and just about big enough to raise one stalk of corn and maybe a tomato vine.

Just before an exam last week, Miss Scott wanted to know if there were any questions before the test began. Mayhugh spoke up and wanted to know what course it was.

Art Kent once told me he always said what he thought. That explains why he's always so quiet.

"Connie" Conrad asked Ernestine Webster the other day what could be worse than a man without a country. Webster said "A country without a man."

It's probably a good thing for the Bearcat cheer leaders that the season is nearly over, or, I'm afraid they would have some stiff competition. I was told that Mary and Martha put on a demonstration at the Crittenden game, of how a cheer was supposed to have been given—but they were swell paid for it. It cost Lusby a coupla' bucks.

Mary Rensler is looking for a man—but don't get the wrong idea. She is looking for the louse-brained dope who ran her off the highway, not so long ago.

Powers Conrad says he does his hardest work before breakfast—that must be getting out of bed.

Nickel is now worth more than silver—but I bet Mr. Thompson won't trade dimes for nickels.

Clinton Cleek says, "One good think about this new war time, you don't have sun in your eyes while going to work."

I felt insulted the other night, but only for a minute. Sam Howard, Katy and I were coming down the street and passed Mildred Rice. She at once, wanted to know if we "kids" had been to the theatre. But when she explained that the question was meant for Sam and Katy, and not for me, everything was ok.

Walter Vest and J. B. Johnson have joined the bicycle brigade. I have been reliably informed that they, along with Frank DeMoisey, pedaled out the Verona road to some big hill, coasted down, and then had to push their bikes back up the hill.

Overheard another funny conversation the other day. A gang of the fellows were in Roberts' grocery discussing the various times Walton has had in the past year. "Guy" Bethel was standing there, and when the question was put to him, of which time he liked best, he said he would take the "good ol' summertime."

I've been told several times by people I've had correspondence with and various other people, that my handwriting was very poor—I didn't realize it was so terrible until I compared it with that of little Beverly Pruett's.

It seems as though the old adage may be true—

"March comes in like a lion
Will go out like a lamb."

Let us trust that this may be true this time, that we may be blessed with beautiful Spring weather at the close of this, one blustry, fussy month, March.

Quite a few in this community are suffering from severe colds.

Moving seems to be the order of the day, in our midst. The March winds seem to blow some of our good families from their old nest seeking new quarters. Here's wishing them all abundant harvest in their new fields.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Huff were business visitors in Cincinnati one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bales of Covington and Mrs. Dicko of Cincinnati, a sister of Mrs. Bales, called on Mr. Bales' parents at this place Sunday afternoon.

Bobby Huffman of Verona spent the weekend with little Miss Mary Huff of this vicinity.

Ed Walton sold two nice horses last week to parties unknown to ye scribe, but he received a fancy price for same.

The many friends of Mrs. John Hennessey of Ludlow are very glad indeed to learn of the speedy recovery from her serious operation, which she recently underwent at Christ Hospital. Glad to know that she will soon be able to come back home with her dear, good husband, family and friends. Mrs. Hennessey is a woman that possesses many rich qualities, in business, social and christian life and that is why she is so very greatly missed in her community, if only absent for a few days. So the prayers of her good friends still continue for her restoration to good health.

Mrs. Susan Bales has been confined to her home about three weeks on account of a light attack of flu and nervous prostration.

Dr. Mann and wife of Crittenden left last Saturday afternoon for the Sunny South visiting points of interest.

Mrs. Ed Walton has been sick for the past few days with cold and some symptoms of flu.

On a sabbath morn in England church bells ringing for and near called God's people all together—all was fair and peaceful there.

But hand in hand we'll work together 'til this strife and war shall cease; then again in joy and gladness, England's bells shall tell of Peace.

When this cruel war is over, gone is all its grief and pain, hand in hand we'll stand Dear Brother and the bells shall ring again.

Hebron were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Easton and family and mother, Mrs. Lennie Easton.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robbins and daughter Donna were dinner guests Sunday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Atha and family.

—And Getting Bigger Every Year

Kentucky automobile clubs, trucking groups and other motor organizations are protesting the continued diversion of motor vehicle funds to the general fund for non-highway purposes. They believe that the only way to stop this practice permanently is to adopt an amendment to the state constitution. Such a proposal is now before the General Assembly. If passed by that body, it would permit the voters to ballot on the question at the general election in 1943.

DISCOVERING WHY PEOPLE DRINK BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 43:34; Psalm 104:14, 15; Proverbs 31:4-7; Ecclesiastes 2:1-3, 10, 11; Isaiah 56:12; I Corinthians 10:6, 7.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.—Proverbs 20:1.

The alcohol problem receives attention in four lessons of each year. This is the first one for 1942 and brings before us a number of scriptures not often used, in order to suggest the drinker's reasons for drinking. Other matters appear, but we shall limit ourselves to presenting these reasons, together with the Christian answer to each one.

Why do men drink?

I. To Be Sociable (Gen. 43:34).

At the banquet prepared by Joseph the allowance for Benjamin was greatly increased, and they "drank and were merry." How often that has been the plea which has led into drinking and into drunkenness. The "social glass" has often led to the drunkard's grave.

Well, surely God wants us to be sociable. Yes, He does, and the perfect provision for man's social nature is found in Christian fellowship.

II. To Be Happy (Ps. 104:14, 15).

Wine is supposed to bring happiness, and we may admit that it does bring a temporary lift which some call happiness. But who is satisfied with happiness? It depends entirely on what "happens." If the wrong thing happens we are unhappy. We need a deep abiding joy, and only a right relationship to God can give that.

III. To Evade Responsibility (Prov. 31:4, 5).

When life's burdens become too much for him the weakling seeks relief and evades his responsibilities in the deadening power of alcohol. But that doesn't solve the problem. It is still there when sobriety returns, and usually more serious than ever. What can a man do? The answer is, turn to God. He gives wisdom, grace and strength.

IV. To Forget Sorrow (Prov. 31:6).

"Drown your sorrows" is the deceptive promise of liquor; but they stand right there beside man, and when his poor befuddled head begins to clear they present themselves more persistently than ever. What's the answer? The God of all comfort is ready to bear man's sorrows or to give him grace to bear them and to lead him out into a place of peace and victory.

V. To Forget Poverty (Prov. 31:7).

Heavy is the affliction of poverty in a world of plenty. Sometimes it is the result of carelessness or of sin, but often it is the lot of those who are innocently caught in its grip. Men have tried to forget, to "drown" even this problem in drink, and have only made their poverty worse and more unbearable.

VI. To Find Satisfaction (Eccl. 2: 1-3, 10, 11).

The book of Ecclesiastes gives the account of a man "under the sun," that is, apart from God's guidance and blessing, seeking to satisfy the cravings of his heart in many ways. All of them prove vain, including the effort to find it in wine and in pleasure.

Frustrated souls often seek release through intoxicants. They gain a measure of liberty and a sense of masterful power, but it is all as delusive as the dreams of grandeur of the insane. It is even worse, for it is a false condition, deliberately created and soon lost, together with lost character and decency of life. The morning after brings only the deepened despair of greater dissatisfaction.

VII. To Stimulate Hope (Isa. 56: 12).

A certain fearful looking forward to the time of judgment tends to dampen the drinker's enthusiasm. So he drinks more to reawaken in his heart the "hope" that tomorrow will not bring reckoning, but will be another "good" day. The world has no real hope, in fact, the word itself has lost its true meaning and indicates only a sort of wishful thinking. Is there any real hope? Oh, yes, and the Christian has it, hope that is a confident expectation of the fulfillment of God's every promise. That kind of hope takes care of tomorrow—and all the tomorrows.

VIII. To Encourage Play (I Cor. 10:6, 7).

Paul warns against the folly of the "eat, drink, and be merry" philosophy. That road ends in disaster.

Does not God want us to play? Indeed He does. He gave us the instinct for recreation. We need pleasant relaxation, and He has provided for us all the beauties of nature, all the pleasures of wholesome play, and all in the finest of fellowship with His people and with Himself. Thus we find real recreation—not just fun that leaves us empty and dissatisfied.

This Week On The Home Front

Our government's War Production Board is acting with increasing speed. Its acts over the last week have covered the widest conceivable range of products, from egg crates and tiny flash-light bulbs and shotguns and burlap bags, to gigantic stores of aluminum, automobiles and trucks and tires and fertilizer for the farmers' spring planting.

The nation's farmers received reassuring news from the office of Price Administrator Leon Henderson. Mr. Henderson ordered a 60-day temporary ceiling on fertilizer.

Effective February 27, prices of retailed mixed fertilizers, superphosphate and potash were frozen at the prices charged at retail during February 15-20 inclusive. Mr. Henderson also announced that action to stabilize prices for nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, cyanamid and other leading fertilizers will be taken within a few days.

"Fertilizer prices have advanced considerably, as compared with a year ago," Mr. Henderson stated. "Our farmers are being called upon to produce as never before the vital commodities and foodstuffs that will play so important a part in winning this war. In making this effort, farmers have a right to expect that supplies of fertilizer shall be placed at theid disposal at uninflated prices. Higher fertilizer prices at this time can only serve to hinder our national food production program."

—o—

If one undertakes to remodel his home this spring, he will find that certain things have happened to plumbing and heating equipment, its supply and regulation. His plumbing contractor won't advise new and fancy installations, but will suggest repairs, in compliance with the WPB's metal conservation policy just announced. There won't be the variety of fittings because WPB has cut down the types from 8,500 to 3,000 for the same reason, fancy radiators, concealed piping will now disappear for the duration.

—o—

The June bride this year won't be able to buy fine soft sets of down pillows; when she furnishes her home. The nation's goose and duck feather supply will have been diverted to the manufacture of soldiers sleeping bags only.

The June bride and the old brides too will now have to do with corsets and girdles, brassiers and foundation garments with elastic rubber in them. The WPB is using all the rubber to streamline our war effort instead.

—o—

It may be hard for her to find a good selection of new rugs, too. Carpet and rug manufacturers were warned by the Bureau of Industry Branches to get into the manufacture of essential war materials, and warned that it might be necessary to "freeze" all jute yarns, used in rugs, but which, unhappily must be shipped from India. "Unfortunately for your industry, carpets are not essential to the winning of the war," the rug men were told.

—o—

New tire quotas for March are out. They are a little easier due to adjustment to spring traveling, substantially above the February quota. The nation's passenger-motorcycle and light truck owners will get this month—104,701 new tires and 84,365 new tubes this months as compared with 80,784 tires and 67,616 tubes they were given in February.

—o—

The new passenger car quota for March, April and May are 43% of the 340,000 to be released to essential users over the 12 months. They are now, in is announced, some 480,000 new 1942 models in the hands of the auto industry. Difference between these figures represents the "stockpile" for rationing in 1943 and thereafter.

—o—

After May 31, there will be no tin cans for beer and coffee. You'll get them the old fashioned way.

—o—

Deliveries of tin cans for home canning will go on because WPB, is encouraging home canning. Incidentally, its is announced that the forthcoming sugar rationing program will contain provision that housewives may obtain additional sugar for home canning without sacrificing her daily family quota.

—o—

The familiar 12-gauge shotgun which custom has always pointed at rabbits and squirels, will from now on be aimed only at spies and saboteurs, if any new ones are made this year. There will be no manufacture of such guns for any use except by local and federal governments, lease lend countries, to supply a demand for guarding war industries.

Sporting arms manufacturers have also been asked by the Office of Price Administration to stop hiking prices of guns and keep them where they were January 10. Administrator Henderson said: "There is no excuse."

—o—

Laundries which use chlorine for bleaching must stop. A vital war chemical, it can still be used to purify water supply and swimming pool water.

—o—

All coal dealers were asked by Mr. Henderson to maintain prices no higher than those prevailing on December 15-31, 1941.

The Angels of His Presence

ONE of the hopeful and encouraging signs of the times is a reaching out on the part of an increasing number of people to a power beyond the human, in which they may find a refuge, guide, protector, and friend. This human yearning for something dependable on which to lean in trying times, for something stable in the midst of confusion, for that which will replace dismay and despair with confidence and hope, is understandable and reasonable. Further, it can be productive of results. Nearly two thousand years ago Jesus said (Matthew 7:7), "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." These promises still stand. All through the years those who have sought God sincerely and humbly have found Him close at hand. . . .

Mary Baker Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (page 581) defines "angels" as follows: "God's thoughts passing to man; spiritual intuitions, pure and perfect; the inspiration of goodness, purity, and immortality, counteracting all evil, sensuality, and mortality." That this definition is in accord with the Scriptural meaning of the word is evidenced by many incidents of divine guidance and protection related in the Bible. . . .

Throughout the Old and the New Testament there are many references to angels. These heavenly messengers, "spiritual intuitions," brought comfort, guidance, explicit commands, and, when heeded and obeyed, never failed to bless. Jacob experienced a bitter struggle with a false sense of selfhood, of life as material, until an angel appeared to him. And not until he thoroughly understood the message and received God's blessing, would he let the angel go. Then he was transformed. . . .

In the twelfth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, we read of the angel that delivered Peter wher he was cast into prison, bound in chains. Because he listened and obeyed the angelic message, Peter found himself unbound and free. Angels ministered to Jesus after his vigil in the wilderness,—pure and perfect thoughts from God, which came to our great Way-shower at the outset of his wonderful career of service to mankind.

Today, as then, God, divine Love, reveals Himself to every honest seeker for Truth. To all who humbly and earnestly look to God for help, thus acknowledging His power, angels, "God's thoughts passing to man," bring the needed inspiration, direction, comfort, love, and protection. There is no situation too complicated, no sin too deep, no disease too hopeless, no burden too great, to be reached and healed by God, divine Mind. Even if the call for help is faint and hesitant, Love is always present, and he who turns to God finds Him near. The Father-Mother God is constantly blessing man, His own idea, and providing for his every need. But we must place ourselves in the position to receive the blessing. We cannot receive it by denying God's presence and power, but in reaching out to Him, no matter how hesitatingly, we put ourselves where we can receive and utilize the good that is always available. Then, encouraged and strengthened, we may increase our understanding of God until we know Him as ever-present Life and Love, and begin to appreciate the perfection of His creation, including man in His image and likeness.

Many of those who now on land, in the air, or on the sea, are doing their part in preserving the freedom and liberty so dear to all right-minded men, are proving repeatedly that protection, sure guidance, and safety are assured when thought is turned to God, and His righteous government of His own creation acknowledged. So did a similar turning to God deliver the Israelites many times in Biblical days.

The angels of His presence must be sought and made welcome. Then, in their radiant light, evil of every kind fades and disappears. When we strive to understand the heavenly message, as did Jacob, and drink deep of spiritual inspiration, as did Jesus, there will come to us "the inspiration of goodness, purity, and immortality, counteracting all evil, sensuality, and mortality." Thus is God's love for His beloved child made known. . . .

MORGANSVILLE

"Love thy neighbor as thyself.' The call of the Master to us this day is not so much a hand pointing to guide, as a hand outstretched to help.

"The beauty of the simple deed which serves another's hour of need with helping hands and with the faith that understands is needed in the world today. He has served best who now and then has helped along his fellowman." To lift another's load is to lighten your own. So live "that others may rejoice that you have passed their way."

"It is not so much what is said that makes life worthwhile, as the kindly deed performed each day, and it is not so much in our prayer that counts with the Father above as the deeds of kindness and loving care done in Christian love."

To the gratification of many friends C. O. Morgan is slightly improved at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Most deeply appreciated are lovely gifts from Mrs. Jasper N. Williams.

"Food for Victory" meetings are being held throughout Lewis county, with large attendance.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.*

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than o... something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

How To Use Your War Ration Book

Before the stamps of the War Ration Book may be used, the person for whom it was issued must sign it as indicated in the book. The name of a person under 18 years of age may be signed by such person or by his father, mother or guardian.

For future reference, make and keep a record of the serial number of your book and the number of your issuing Ration Board, as indicated in your book.

Your first War Ration Book is issued you, originally containing 28 War Ration Stamps. Other books may be issued at later dates. The following instructions apply to your first book and will apply to any later boks, unless otherwise ordered by the Office of Price Administration. In order to obtain a later book, the first book must be turned in. You should preserve War Ration Books with the greatest possible care.

1. From time to time the Office of Price Administration may issue Orders rationing certain products. After the dates indicated by such Orders, these products can be purchased only through the use of War Ration Books containing valid War Ration Stamps.

2. The Orders of the Office of Price Administration will designate the stamps to be used for the purchase of a particular rationed product, the period during which each of these stamps may be used, and the amounts which may be bought with each stamp.

3. Stamps become valid for use only when and as directed by the Orders of the Office of Price Administration.

4. Unless otherwise announced, the Ration Week is from Saturday midnight to the following Saturday midnight.

5. War Ration Stamps may be used in any retail store in the U. S.

6. War Ration Stamps may be used only by or for the person named and described in the War Ration Book.

7. Every person must see that his War Ration Book is kept in a safe place an dproperly used. Parents are responsible for the safekeeping and use of their children's War Ration Books.

8. When you buy any rationed product, the proper stamp must be detached in the presence of the storekeeper, his employee, or the person making delivery on his behalf. If a stamp is torn out of the War Ration Book in any other way than above indicated, it becomes void. If a stamp is partly torn or mutilated and more than one-half of it remains in the book, it is valid. Otherwise it becomes void.

9. If your War Ration Book is lost, destroyed, stolen, or mutilated, you should report that fact to the local Ration Board.

10. If you enter a hospital, or, other institution, and expect to be there for more than 10 days, you must turn your War Ration Book over to the person in charge. It will be returned to you upon your request when you leave.

11. When a person dies, his War Ration Book must be returned to the local Ration Board, in accordance with the Regulations.

12. If you have any complaints, questions, or difficulties regarding your War Ration Book, consult your local Ration Board.

The first stamps in War Ration Book One will be used for the purchase of sugar. When this book is issued, the registrar will ask you, or the person who applied for your book, how much sugar you owned on that date. If you have any sugar, you will be allowed to keep it, but stamps representing this quantity will be torn from your book (except for a small amount which you will be allowed to keep without losing any stamps). If your War Ration Book One is issued to you on application by a member of your family, the number of stamps torn from the books of the family will be based on the amount of sugar owned by the family, and will be divided as equally as possible among all these books.

Each person in the family will be allowed 8 ounces of suger each week. A four-day period, designated for making application for War Ration Book One will probably be announced next week. If you fail to register during this 4-day period, you will be unable to obtain any sugar. Book One is for a period of three months. Application for Rationing Cards must be made in the school district in which you reside. Locally registration will be made at the Walton-Verona school. . Among the questions to be asked are: Name, address, height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, etc.

If you have any questions call at the Walton City Hall, Monday, March 16 between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., Eastern War Time, and you will receive any information you may desire.

Regional Meet

The Regional basketball tournament is being played this week at the Dixie Heights gym. The teams drew Sunday afternoon at Simon Kenton High school, and an unusual thing happened, the teams paired off just as they were in the District finals—each district winner playing the runner-up.

The tournament got under way Wednesday night at 7:45, with the W.-V. Bearcats playing Hebron; followed at 9:00 by Simon Kenton playing Erlanger.

Thursday night, Covington and Newport meet at 7:45; followed by Dayton and Alexandria at 9:00.

The semi-final swill be played Friday night, and the final Saturday night.

According to some of the experts Alexandria and Walton are the favorites, however tournaments are tricky things, and it's hard to tell just what might happen, May the best team win!

At the rate at which Congress has been appropriating funds for military purposes, this war will have to be every man's war—because, in terms of dollars and cents, the cost is terrific.

Since Congress met on January 5, a bill has been enacted to provide $12,525,000,000, primarily for airplanes and the expansion of aircraft production; another has been enacted authorizing $26,495,000,000 for the Navy; and a third has been acted upon by the House to appropriate $32,000,000,000 for arms, lease-lend aid and ship construction. This brings the total for the three major bills to $70,000,000,000, or 70% of the estimated national income for 1942.

Net result, according to statisticians, is that since Pearl Harbor, Congress has appropriated or authorized appropriations for the war effort at the arte of $369 for every one of the 130,000,000 persons in the country. This does not include some additional $200 per capita which the Senate is considering.

Letters to Congressmen from the folks back home indicate that they are willing to pay whatever the war costs—there is no question of stinting—but, they ask, what about the Administration's getting down to business?

Fury at frills in the Office of Civilian Defense, Congressional pensions, the proportions of the average American woman (She turned out to be dumpy. So what?) unearthed by the Department of Agriculture, and projects of similar ilk turns out to be more than a tempest in a teapot.

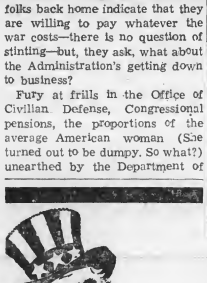
In the House the other day a Representative described the reaction of the people by relating a story. A newspaper in a medium-sized Mid-Western city was selling defense stamps through its carriers who delivered papers to the customer's home. Sales fell off. Upon instruction from the newspaper, the newsboys asked why, and found out that it was a manifestation of public resentment at indiscriminate spending. It was the employment by the OCD of people deemed unqualified and Congress' voting itself pensions that time.

Some of this is on its way to being straightened out. Dean Landis, director of the OCD, seems to have that agency well in hand. In the opinion of many observers here the OCD is getting down to the practical business of air raid shelters, wardens, gas masks and first aid. Congress, too, has een the errors of its ways and is repenting on the pensions.

Privately, commentators here are saying that there's nothing wrong with the morale of the people that beter morale in Administration circles can't remedy.

Which brings to mind a story worth repeating. A candidate for Governor of one of our North Central states (this was some time ago) discovered an item on a travel expense account of a fellow politician. It was 80 cents for a baked potato. This candidate took up the question of the potato and made a campaign issue out of it. He acquired a reputation as watchdog of the state treasury and was three times elected Governor of the state.

Some of the economists here have been clamoring for a watchdog of the federal treasury for a long time, because, they point out, there are many 80 cent items being paid for which the country could do without.



Favorable comment has been elicited not only here, but also in the press throughout the country, at the "conversion," step by step, of the federal government to war work.

The almost unanimous reaction hails this as a necessary economy measure and as a conservation of energies for the more important task of winning the war.

Some of the measures, already accomplished, which are being talked about are the President's direction to the heads of non-military agencies to determine how many workers they can release for war work, the lengthening of the federal work week to 44 hours, and the pointing up of the work of older agencies in the difection of the defense effort.

This does not mean, however, that anyone feels that all which can be done along these lines has been done. It means only that the signs are encouraging.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY
Goodrich Wilson Ph.D.

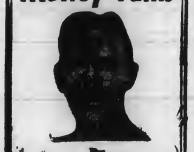
It Happened In Our Town

Nearly every week of my life I have been told some tall tale and assured of its being true, for "it happened in our town." Often elaborate backgrounds are built up, with genuine character touches of celebrities that the narrator actually knew. Then comes the tale and I must — for the sixteenth time—look astonished and laugh or mirate or look disgusted, whatever is expected of me. Not then but later I may pass on the yarn to some one else and explain that it is a folk yarn, old as the hills and therefore widespread in distribution, only to have another tall-tale spinner match it with another from his home town.

Just how literally these yarns are believed I have no way of knowing. Some people have felt hurt when the tall tale was questioned, for they had been assured by Father or Mother or Uncle Ben that thus and so was a fact! Of course, political speakers and professional entertainers, even in Fidelity, told yarns we had heard before and showed by their mimicry that it was fiction, but many of us wondered where the visitors had learned our true stories.



One of the most valuable courses I have ever had dealth with the folk tale and its allied forms: jokes, yarns, fables, fairy stories, illustrative moral anecdotes. As a project I took the "That reminds me" type of story and read many of the mediaeval stories written in German and French and Latin. To my surprise I found many of the true stories of Fidelity, ones authenticated by our most truthful yarn-spinners, reposing in medieval joke books in another language, already old and bearing the marks of having been told hundreds of times to open-mouthed audiences. Many of them, I must confess, were of the sort that we do not tell in mixed audiences. Taste has changed since they were written down, but the same old yarns appear over and over wherever men assemble, being given each generation a new locale, a new set of characters.

And here is the funny thing about this whole genre of folk tales: the setup of motif is such that probably many of the stories have actually been enacted hundreds of times during their long history. All my life I have heard of the lazy, good-for-nothing fellow who asked for come corn to take to mill and would not accept it because it was not shelled. That yarn was spun many times that I began to suspect that it could not have happened in the first place. And then came 1914, when I was a witness to its being enacted in the flesh. When I was visiting my parents-in-law in the summer of that year, a little girl who lived in a tenant house nearby came over and asked whether my folks had any tomatoes. "Lots of them," said my wife's mother: "just go out into the garden and get all you want." "Oh, I thought they was picked," rejoiced the little girl. And the sequel is that she went away sorrowful, like the rich young man in the Bible, minus tomatoes. That experience has made me think that every dumbell yarn must have been acted out once or more.

Many literary scholars have worked on a tabulation of situations that can or may occur. Undoubtedly some of these situations are so full of folk elements they are repeated over and over again, in every generation. It is barely possible, then, that your Uncle George DID take refuge in a country church during a rain and was grabbed by something, that he did escape without his coat and went back in broad daylight, properly attended, only to find the church the refuge of a crazy woman who had so frightened him.

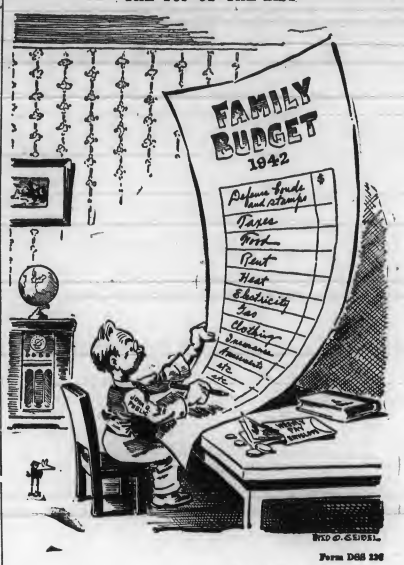
Retailers all over the country are worrying about the 1942 sales outlook. There are several unfavorable factors facing the retailer which may well cause him to worry. In the first place, customers have indulged in extravagant overbuying during 1941 and now find themselves well stocked with many household necessities. During the last six months it seemed every housewife was stocking up on household necessities. She was buying linens, toweling, woolens, cottons, sheeting, next year's winter coat, shoes, canned goods etc. The men, not to be outdone, were also stocking up on suits, shoes, shirts, etc. Many retailers believe this over-buying in 1941 will seriously affect their sales volume in 1942.

Secondly, many retail sales will be lost because articles requested by the consumer cannot be bought at any price. This is especially true of consumer durable goods. At least five billion dollars worth of automobiles, tires, refrigerators, washing machines and other household equipment will be missing from the retailers' sales rooms and shelves during 1942.

Heavier taxes and the purchase of Government bonds are the 3rd factor adversely affecting retail sales. People have just so much money to spend, and if taxes take a larger portion each year then less will be left for other things.



There is a bright side, however. Wages and farm prices are going up, and many people will have money to spend if they can secure the desired goods. The retailer whose shelves are well stocked is fortunate. He is bound to make money in 1942. But the retailer who has let his stocks run low will not be able to restock his shelves with many of the old familiar lines of merchandise.

The retailer must plan his merchandising program carefully, at this time, if he is to retain his 1942 market.

How to 'Enlarge' Kentucky Farms for War Output

CHICAGO—How Kentucky farmers can "enlarge" their farms to meet increasing war-time demands without incurring the hazards of over-expansion was described in a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The secret lies not in buying more land but in making the present acreage do a better production job," the statement declares. "This means following a soil management program that will raise the land's fertility level.

"Even in the most productive areas the average farm can usually be enlarged the equivalent of 10 per cent, and sometimes as much as 50 per cent, through intelligent soil treatment, including the use of fertilizer.

"In combination with other sound farming practices the use of fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash is essential in stepping up the soil's productive capacity. Such a practice not only has an immediate result in increasing the per acre yield of crops needed in the nation's war effort, but represents an important long range soil conservation measure. It likewise means lower production costs and improved crop quality. The amount of fertilizer applied per acre and the formula selected will depend on the crop being grown and on the fertility deficiency of the soil itself. All things considered, fertilizer not only pays its own way, but frequently returns a three-to-one dividend in increased crop value."

Only through sound soil management and the replacement of needed plant foods can bumper crops be assured.

Sermonette

by Rev. T. O. Harrison

"Quit you like men, be strong." —I Cor. 16:13.

The word "quit" as used here means to conduct." If we would put these inspired words of the Apostle Paul into every day language we would say "Dont be like children; conduct yourselves as real men. Be strong." These words are tremendously needed in Christendom today.

The gospel has never been a message of softness. It is a message of strenghth, of power. The Christ who gave us the gospel was no weakling. There is no account in any of our records where he ever exhibited any sign of weakness. He knew what it was to be tired at the end of a day's toil. He knew how to face hardship without flinching. He walked in the midst of sickness and suffering and sin and death and He always met the need of the hour with a calmness that amazed those around him. He knew how to suffer without complaint. Men turned against Him when He had come only to seek and to save the lost, yet he never complained. The church cast Him out because He spoke the truth, but He never spoke one word in His own defense. He was tried unjustly, He was condemned to die against the will of Pilate, the judge. He was crucified on a wooden cross between two criminals. He died with a prayer on His lips for those who took His life, but never in the midst of it all did he show any sign of weakness. Even his cry on the cross, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" was no question of fear. It was the cry of the sinless Son of God whose heart was breaking over the sin of the world. It was not fear of death that made Him cry out. It was compassion for the sin of the world on His own spotless soul. No, our Christ has the right to say "Be strong, conduct yourselves like men" because He himself was strong.

And His call to men is a call not to softness and indulgence but to hardship and suffering. "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." (Matt. 16:24). "Suffer hardship as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." (II Tim. 2:3). "So likewise, whosoever he be that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." (Lk. 14:33). His appeal is to the courageous, the daring, those who are strong enough to take the hard way. And through the centuries He has been traveling this upward way with those courageous souls who have taken the way with Him, saying, "Conduct yourselves like real men; be strong." In at least 3 ways the Christian needs manly strength today:

1. We need it in our thinking This is a time for clear thinking, right thinking, strong thinking. Weak thoughts make weak men. Wrong thinking makes bad men and a world out of joint. In war times a nation is prone to become hysterical, live on its nerves, and let its emotions run away with its intelligence. One quality of maturity is that its zeal is tempered with judgment and we need that kind of men today. We need them as our national leaders, our industrial leaders, our religious leaders. We need them in every home, in every school, in every church, in every community. God give us men who can think clearly and judge rightly.

2. The Christian must be strong in his moral standards. Weak morals make weak men. Nations have fallen because they became morally rotten within. The universe is geared to stand with the man who is right in his standards of living; it opposes the man whose morals are loose. And, my friends, we can not expect the blessings of God upon us while we are sining against him. He has given us a Book which tells us the way to live and to turn against it means to destroy ourselves. Good intentions won't do. We must actually put into practice God's will. We can't break the Sabbath Day and not suffer for it. To put before the youth of our nation the temptations of drink in saloon, beer parlor, roadhouse, restaurant, and other places is morally wrong. It is putting revenue and material gain before the good of our boys and girls and nothing can make that right. Dishonesty, untruthfulness, covetousness, these things are wrong. It takes men to men to be honest, truthful, generous.

And, my friends, my conviction is that we have no right to pray for God to let us win this war, while we are sining. "The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." And the promise is "If my people that are called by my name will humble themselves and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked way; then will I hear from heaven and will heal their land." We must be right in our morals before we have the right to ask God to be on our side. And while liquor flows freely in our land; while many of our movies are morally degrading; while the Sabbath Day is forgotten; while gambling and greed, dishonesty and lust are rampant; we are not right. Let us be men, morally pure, strong in the right.

3. Let us be men in our faith. If the foundations of civilization seem to totter, let the Christian's faith be strong. God still lives and rules. He can cause the wrath of man to praise Him. And in it all his promises are true, His message has not changed, His power is the same. Faith says, "I believe God has the way out and I will trust him." It is childish to doubt, to fear, to feel that He has left us alone. If we repent we can be sure that God will forgive. If we trust Him we can be sure that He will not fail us. "Oh for a faith that will not shrink though pressed by every foe, that will not tremble on the brink of any earthly woe." Be men, have strong faith in God. He is the way out.

In conclusion, remember that this command in our text is not one we must keep by human strength alone. There is divine grace operating in the world. If we are giving way to fear, hysteria, "war nerve." we can turn to the Christ of Calvary who says, "My grace is sufficient for thee." "Come unto me and I will give you rest." If we have sined we can turn to the Christ who promised "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." If we have doubted, thank God, we can say with the Psalmist, "I will trust and not be afraid." And with such a Christ as this who will help us we can conduct ourselves like real men in right thinking, moral living, strong faith.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion, chemicals, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and sometimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS

All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

HYBRID CORN MAKES HEAVY DEMANDS ON SOIL'S FERTILITY

CHICAGO.—Unknown to the average farmer 10 years ago, hybrid corn was planted on 25,000,000 acres of midwestern farm land last year, according to estimates of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"While its popularity has been due to heavy yielding qualities, hybrid corn is no substitute for soil fertility," says a statement of the Committee, "and it is usually a heavier drain on any soil than the older, common varieties.

"Hybrid corn outyields open-pollinated varieties from 10 to 30 per cent because it has the ability to draw more nitrogen, phosphorus and potash out of the soil. Many midwestern soils, however, after generations of cropping cannot supply more fertility than an average crop of open-pollinated corn can use. Unless the fertility level is raised on such soils by the application of plenty of plant food, hybrid corn offers little advantage in yield over open-pollinated.

"In their eagerness to increase yields, corn growers too frequently lose sight of the necessity for an adequate plant-food supply to support such yields.

"If hybrid is to retain its popularity, more and more attention will have to be paid to the fertility of the soil on which it is grown. That means making certain that the soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are replenished by the use of commercial fertilizers. By such methods the new era of producing more abundant corn crops on a smaller acreage can be made to serve the nation's needs to a greater degree."

91 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

The Prosperous 'Twenties

Many innovations featured the decade of the 'twenties. The Pan-American was inaugurated in December, 1921, and was one of the first trains to have radio. Loyall Yard was completed in the same month and the subsequent completion of the double-track between Wallsend and Harlan, Ky., 40 miles, in May, 1926, greatly facilitated the hardling of coal from the Harlan fields.

Following the return of the nation's railroads to private ownership in 1920, there was some egitation against them and various restrictive legislation was proposed. The L. & N. presented its case to the public through the medium of paid advertisements and bulletins issued periodically. Good will tours were also made to various cities along the line by L. & N. employees and other public relations activities were features of the period.

Wibb L. Mapother became president on March 17, 1921, and served until his death on February 3, 1926. During his presidency a safety department was formed, employe organizations were encouraged, group insurance was offered employes at a very low rate, and the Company's 75th anniversary on March 5, 1925, was commemorated by the inauguration of the L. & N. Magazine.

The years of the 'twenties were some of the most profitable the L. & N. had ever experienced and as a result it was able to purchase greatly-needed equipment and make many improvements to its physical plant.

Preparedness is the watchword today, but the history of the L. & N. has been distinguished by its effort to prepare for the future, not only when times were good, but when the going was tough as well. This far-seeing policy has borne gratifying fruit in the present emergency, which found the Old Reliable's physical plant in tip-top shape. It is constantly being improved and is ready to meet all reasonable demands.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

If the readers knew some of the troubles we had last week in getting the Advertiser out, amid carpenters, mechanics, plumbers, electricians and whatnot, besides all the ill luck we had with the press, folder and breaking belts, I'm sure you would appreciate the paper more.

—o—

I wish it were possible for you to have seen the boss feeding a job press Thursday night. We had a "rush" job to get out that night and had no motor for the press at that time. I furnished the "manpower" to run the press, by pumping the back up and down, while Mrs. Wallace operated it. It was kinda' slow procedure, but she did OK, it being her first time for anything like that.

—o—

Happened to see John Vest, prominent attorney, and George P. Nicholson, the contractor who built our new office, astride borrowed bikes the other day. They were doing OK, but I was afraid "Nich" was going to break the speed limit. He said it was the first time in 25 years he had been on a bicycle.

—o—

"Pop" Farris began to think he was going to have to hitch a ride home from Florence the other night. He and Sam Hudson, both loyal supporters of the Bearcat's, attended one of the games at Florence, and at the end of the game "Pop" got lost from Sam during the mad rush at the exits and didn't know where the car was parked. But luckily, he found Sam patiently waiting for his precious cargo.

—o—

Walter Vest seemed a little bit embarrassed the other night at the restaurant when someone called him on the phone and sang "Happy Birthday."

—o—

I was hanging around Friday night trying to find out some of the latest basketball scores, and was particularly interested in the Simon Kenton game. But as soon as I saw Mrs. Lucy Breeden come in the door I could tell that they had lost. Her expression spoke plainly encugh for itself.

—o—

Bill Green, popular Waltonian, who is now serving with the U. S. Army Air Corps, says he is kinda' disappointed in the folk "back home." Willie says "send more letters." That is the least we can do to help the fellows in service —write them and let them know you still think of them once in a while. Bill's address is: William H. Green, 408 School Squadron, Flight 1, Barracks 294, Shepard Field, Wichita Falls, Texas. Let's cheer him up with a whole flock of letters.

—o—

Mother Nature played a cruel trick on Mrs. Bruce Wallace the othed day. She was sporting a new headress. righ pretty too, when along came a big puff of wind, blowing it right into the path of an oncoming transport truck. When the heavy vehicle got thru smashing it, it looked like something that was supposed to have been, and wasn't.

—o—

The Army and Navy were well represented in Walton Saturday night, as far as "Connie" and Ernestine were concerned. They were all smiles when I saw them.

—o—

A tip to Mrs. Frank DeMoisey: The speed cops are still watching you.

—o—

Bob Smith, Burlington product, and petite Blanche Brittenhelm make a very charming couple.

—o—

This week is an anniversary for me—but one I don't like to remember. One year ago Monday, your Walkin' reporter nearly answered his last roll call in a motorcycle crash, which caused the death of my best friend, and butchered my legs up pretty badly, too.

—o—

Looks like Mayhugh's big Packard is ready to roll again after a 4-week rest period, due to a collision just beyond Ft. Mitchell.

—o—

In a column in the Princeton Leader, written by the editor, and former boss of mine, was a very nice compliment on me. He seemed to like WRWW pretty well. It made me feel great to be praised by a guy like him, who has been associated with some of the biggest papers in the country, former President of the Ky. Press Assn., and now State Director of Publicity.

—o—

Don't ever get close to Blanche Brittenhelm's fur coat. She says if you touch it, it causes friction, and is liable to burn.. I'm sure she wouldn't want that.

Time to Prune Your Grape Vines

If you have not already pruned your grape vines you should do it without further delay. After the middle of March when the weather gets warmer and the sap begins to flow the canes will bleed. If much bleeding takes place it is likely to weaken and injure the vines.

See your county agent and get a copy of University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, Extension Division cilcular number 209, Grapes for the Home. It tells you what you need to do to have a good crop of grapes on your vines.

How About Your Home Garden Plans?

Now is the time to make your home garden plans for 1942 if you have not already done so. Get out that seed catalog and visit your local dealer and get your seed.

You should have a copy of Extension Division circular No. 343, The Garden Month by Month, to help you make your garden program. Call at your Agricultural Extension Offic eand get a copy and study it.

Begin Now To Keep A Record For 1942

The indications are that all farmers will need to keep more records of their farming operations. Income Tax returns can easily be made if you keep farm records.

See your county agent and get a copy of the Ky. Farm Account book. It can be had at cost and it is up-to-date in every way for keeping records. The time spent in keeping records will pay you more than the same amount of time spent in any kind of farm work. Try it and see for yourself.

Oak Island Farmers Meet

Members of the Oak Island Farmers Club met at the home of Robert Hawkins, Wednesday nite, March 4 to study garden program.

Potato growing was discussed, both early and late varieties. The growers are getting seed supplies and making plans for the spring garden.

Reports on the methods of tobacco plant bed management was made.

Ky. Extension Circulars 343 and 354 were used in the garden and live at home discussion.

Northern Kentucky Insectary Committee Meets

The insectary committee for Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties met with W. D. Armstrong Experiment Station Horticulturist at Covington, March 4th to formulate program to help the fruit growers to receive timely spray information. The committee of growers from each of the three counties will cooperate with the horticultural specialists and extension agents in reporting the local condition of insects and diseases and the information will be made available to all the interested fruit growers in Northern Kentucky.

Through a cooperative arrangement of this kind spray information and disease and insect control can be made more effective and of help to all the growers. See your county agent for details about this insectary and spray service. Get a copy of spray calendar.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 15

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:23-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!—Matthew 8:27.

The mighty works of Jesus declared Him to be the Son of God—yes, very God Himself. Unbelieving men who would discredit the Word of God and deny the Godhood of the Son are at much labor and trouble to explain away the miracles, but without any success.

In our lesson for today we have Christ showing His divine power over the forces of nature, and over the demons of the evil spirit world. We find the disciples in the storm—

I. Fearful—but Not in Danger (vv. 23-27).

The Son of God—who had become Son of man—showed His true humanity by that weariness which made Him sleep through a tempestuous storm such as often came upon Lake Galilee. "Like a general in time of war Jesus slept when He could."

As He calmly slept, fear of destruction laid its deadly grip upon the hearts of the disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their craft, the hopelessness of their situation, apparently forgetting that with Christ in the boat they were in no danger, in spite of the fearfulness of their surroundings and circumstances.

Is this not clearly a lesson for us in this day so full of alarms and fears? If we think of circumstances and conditions round about us we shall be overcome with fear—and well we may, if we do not have Christ with us in the boat of life. But if He is there—if we are His in the kinship of regenerating grace—we are in no danger. Shall we not accept the tender rebuke, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" (v. 26).

The majestic scene of Christ stilling the tempest, reminds us not only that He can control any force of nature, but also that there is no storm of heart or mind or life to which He cannot authoritatively say, "Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). Will you trust Him with your problem?

On the other side of the lake Christ met another kind of need—and cared for it. He there delivered two men who were—

II. Demon-dominated, but Not Hopeless (vv. 28-34).

There is only one devil, but he has many demons who do his bidding. The evidence is clear that these demons were able to enter into the personality of a human being and take control of the life. This was not insanity or a sickness of the body, but devil domination.

These two men (Mark and Luke speak only of one—perhaps the more violent of the two) were so strong and wicked because of the demon in them, that their relatives and friends had given them up as hopeless and had sent them out to live in the wilderness.

How horrible is the power of the devil in the life of any man or woman. But let us never forget that while no man can control such a situation (Mark 5:4), God is able. "With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). We have not done all we can for our devil dominated friends and relatives until we have brought them to Jesus.

Notice that the demons recognized Christ as the Son of God (v. 29). They knew that He had the power to control them and that the day was to come when He would judge them.

The men were completely cured (Mark 5:15) as the demons were permitted to enter the herd of swine. Those poor beasts, apparently not content to harbor the evil spirits, cast themselves into the sea.

When the people of the land heard what had taken place they asked Jesus to leave. They evidently weighed the relative value of two men in their right mind over against a herd of swine and decided that they could not afford to have men delivered from the devil at such expense.

Unfortunately the "descendants" of those people seem to be in some of our churches today. They can afford anything in the way of luxury for themselves, but they are sure it costs too much to keep the church open — or to provide a preacher—or suitable equipment for the Lord's work. How unspeakably sad!

Perseverance

Soldiers must break step in marching over a bridge, for the vibration caused by their marching in step would shake down the most solid structure. And so it is with the spiritual obstacle you may meet: steady tramping, the plodding doing of your duty day after day, will in time tumble it over. In any task to which God sets you perseverance is all the power you need.

This Week On The Home Front

Production records of our speeding war machine are largely military secrets, but a good idea of the rapid progress being made in gearing the nation's stupendous industrial machine to all-out war production can be read in the ever accelerated activities of the War Production Board and its subsidiary authorities.

Orders governing priorities, rationing and prices flash from Washington hourly in ever increasing tempo. While everyone of them spell less and less for the citizen on the home front, there is behind them the heartening assurance that each is an effective step toward victory.

There is no aspect or circumstance of civilian life that is not being affected.

Sugar rationing is a week nearer, and so far as strategic rubber is concerned, it is beginning to look as if even the old tires we now have on our cars, may be requisitioned from us for military use.

Today you cannot buy a typewriter, either new or used, because the typewriter companies have been ordered to use their machinery to make munitions.

Tin cans are out for the duration for commercial canning, and your canned goods will soon be coming in glass jars, restricted to uniform shape and larger, to save labor and shipping costs. Only the army and navy will get tinned foods.

Rubber was taken out of women's corsets and foundation garments two weeks ago, and now the War Production Board has told the men and boys how their suits and overcoats must be cut. This for a 26 percent saving in woolen cloth. Banned is the extra pair of pants, suits for formal wear, the double-breasted tuxedo. On business suits there will be no cuffs on the pants, no pleats anywhere, no belted effects.

Speaking again of rubber, manufacturers of athletic equipment are trying reclaimed rubber for tennis balls, baseballs, squash balls. There may be fewer home runs and more tenni pellets afoul the net. There is yet no solution for the golf ball problem.

County quotas of tires and tubes are not altogether rigid, but are being revised on the basis of data being constantly collected by the Office of Price Administration. Original quotas were fixed arbitrarily on the basis of motor vehicle registration. County quotas are now being adjusted to meet local conditions, such as concentrated local defense activities, seasonal demands like harvesting and lumbering, and data on the number of registered vehicles eligible for tire purchase certificates.

Truck, truck-tractor and trailer sales, banned by "freeze orders" since Pearl Harbor, reopened this week by order of the Director of Industry Operations. Like passenger automobiles, they will be allocated. If you hope for a new truck you must apply to one of the nearby field offices of the Federal Bureau of Carriers of interstate commerce.

However, the government wants to keep the commercial and individual vehicles now in use, running, as a war necessity. During the last week it made possible continued supply of spare parts by raising the priority preference rating on parts. Orders apply to medium and heavy.

Farmers who have been longing for a new style phone, must continue going to the wall and cranking, and city folk who are waiting for dials will be disappointed for the duration. WPB has ordered stoppage of luxury installations.

All this adds up to two items of very good news. (1) midwest plant now has new "M-40" medium tank rolling off the assembly line, and WPB announces that the President's goal of 45,000 tanks will be passed this year. (2) Wm. L. Batt, director of materials, announces that there will be enough aluminum to make the 60,000 planes in 1942 and the 125,000 in 1943, the President's program demanded.

Up to now binder twine made of agave was restricted to farm use. Now the farmers will have to share it so some can be used to sew sand bags for defense.

Private manufacturers trying to commercialize sale of gas masks for civilian use are ordered to top. All masks to be made by order of government and to army specifications, and only for military and Civilian Defense use.

Cigaret manufacturers prices must remain where they are by OPA order. While rationing and priorities are causing civilian shortages, Mr. Henderson is squelching attempts to hike prices. For example, last week:

Practically every type of bedding adjuncts went under a price ceiling and prices were set back to February 23 figure.

Mr. Henderson warned rubber goods dealers against unwarranted price demands: "War in the Pacific—not—an excuse for profiteering," he told the dealers, and asked public to report cases.

Landlords in 20 defense areas in 20 states who have been upping rents were ordered to put their rates back, given 60 days to comply. Said Mr. Henderson "We're not going to let anybody profiteer on rents—". Government will step in if local rent committees can't or don't enforce. Akron, Youngstown-Warren, Cleveland, Canton and Ravenna landlords included. OPA plans to take similar action soon in 100 additional rent areas.

"Little business" will now have its important place in the nation's war production effort. From the office of Chairman Donald Nelson of the WPB come the following directives: (1) All supply contracts will now be by negotiation instead of by competitive bidding, unless specifically authorized otherwise; (2) In placing contracts, emphasis will be placed on speed rather than price; (3) Contracts for simpler articles will go to smaller firms; (4) Contracts go to firms where smallest quantity of new machinery is needed. These new rules, Mr. Nelson points out, will not only speed war production, but will make for "maximum utilization of the productive capacity of the nation."

MORGANSVILLE

"My Grace is sufficient for thee"

We need our Heavenly Father's guidance in these days of perplexity and confusion. He has never promised ease and freedom from trouble to those who love Him. But He has promised His presence, the presence that enables us to meet bitter experiences of life unshaken. But it comes only to those who want it, and it endures when death comes, and when peace is shattered by war for He alone is our strength and comfort.

"If we have planted hope today in any hopeless heart, if some one's load has lighter grown because we did our part, if happily we have caused a smile and chased the tears away and if our name be named when someone kneels to pray—the day has been well spent and not lived in vain."

The condition of C. Otis Morgan is unimproved at St. Elizabeth Hospital. Rev. R. F. DeMoisey of Walton and other friends paid him recent brief calls.

Mrs. J. N. Williams and daughter Miss Alice Jane, Mrs. Walter Maddox, Miss Ruth Schmidt and Mrs. Cecil Northcutt called recently on friends. Deeply appreciation were their lovely gifts; also of Mrs. Helen Connell and family.

Mrs. V. L. Stephenson was a recent guest of relatives.

'PLOW DOWN' METHOD HELPS PLANT FOOD BOOST CROP OUTPUT

More Bushels of Corn an Acre Plus Higher Fertility Are the Result.

CHICAGO.—How "plowing down" fertilizer before planting time has increased corn yields from 12 to 21 bushels per acre, was revealed in farm tests in which comparisons were made with results obtained from applying plant food in the row or broadcasting it on the surface.

Demonstrations on the farm of Ewald Kahle, of Bremer County, Iowa, were typical of results recorded. On one plot Kahle used 200 pounds per acre of 3-14-6 in a corn planter attachment and secured a yield of 78.9 bushels per acre.

On another plot he plowed under 400 pounds per acre of 10-6-4 fertilizer, prior to planting. Then he applied 200 pounds of 3-14-6 in the row in a manner similar to the first plot. From this treatment he harvested a yield of 100.1 bushels per acre, or 21 bushels more than from the row application alone.

On the farm of Floyd Gerkin of Oelwein, Iowa, a fertilizer treatment of 300 pounds of 10-6-4 per acre, plowed down before planting time, yielded corn at the rate of 90 bushels per acre, whereas 115 pounds of 3-12-12 applied in the row produced 78 bushels.

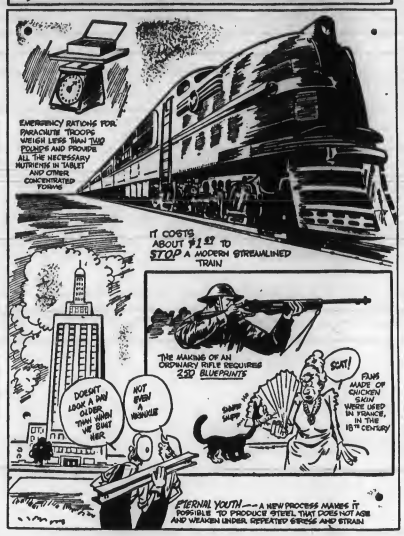
That "plow-down" methods are profitable even on highly fertile land was indicated by results of a test in Woodbury County. Four hundred pounds of 10-6-4 were broadcast and then plowed under in the latter part of April. Corn was planted about the first of June. This plot yielded 113.2 bushels per acre. An unfertilized plot on similar soil yielded 94 bushels. Thus an increase of 19.2 bushels per acre was obtained from the fertilizer treatment.

"The results of the foregoing tests as well as others conducted throughout the corn belt," says an agricultural report, "indicate that this 'plowing down' method of fertilization not only pays for itself but yields a good profit besides. Moreover, such treatment adds importantly to the fertility level of the entire field and bequeaths residual benefits that add to the yield of crops that follow."

Erosion Is Foe of All-Out Farm Effort for War Needs

CHICAGO.—With Uncle Sam demanding all-out farm production for the nation's war effort, soil erosion is robbing the land of three billion tons of vitally needed plant food elements every year, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The necessity for cutting down this menacing fertility loss is self-evident," the statement says. "Every farmer can do his part by conscientiously following a program of soil building. Such a program may include the raising of legumes, crop rotation, the intelligent use of fertilizer and pasture renovation.



"Of all these steps, that of putting back into the soil, fertilizer elements removed by erosion, by constant cropping and the feeding of livestock is the most important. Nature has given the soil a rich heritage of fertility. But this resource is not inexhaustible. Only by playing fair with the land and returning to it adequate plant food, can the farmer maintain its fertility level."

Sick Soils Will Respond

Nature itself provides the clues in diagnosing the ailments of soils, says a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. When vital plant foods are absent, the physical appearance of the growing crops provide tell-tale signs and make possible the remedy.

Halt Kentucky Soil Depletion

Farm land does a real crop producing job when the soil receives adequate nourishment.

CHICAGO.—In spite of tremendous improvements in farming methods and machinery in the past half century, crop yields have failed to keep pace with scientific progress and soil fertility has steadily declined, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Typical of the situation throughout the Middle West, the statement quotes a recent bulletin by Dr. C. E. Millar, head of the soils department of Michigan State College, who declared:

"The fertility of our soils has been greatly depleted as measured by crop yields in the last 60 years. In the case of a few crops such as potatoes and wheat, some increase in yield is shown, but on the whole, the average yields of the most generally known crops are about the same as they were more than a half-century ago.

"This situation is astounding when one considers all the improvements in farming which should have resulted in increased yields of crops.

"All Americans are concerned about this state of affairs, since an ample acreage of fertile land is a great national resource which should be conserved because it constitutes a strong stabilizing factor, both economically and socially. All persons should join in the movement to provide for the proper use and maintenance of our soil."

"Hope for stemming the steady drain on America's farm land resources," the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee's statement concludes, "lies in an ever-increasing program of education toward soil conservation. Future dangers of soil exhaustion are indicated by the fact that at the present rate of application on American farms, commercial fertilizer and manures restore only a fraction of the plant foods removed by growing crops. Only through an adequate system of soil management which includes the use of fertilizers can the problem be solved. Soil fertility, after all, is like a bank account. If withdrawals are constantly made without any deposits in the form of needed plant food, then bankruptcy is the result."

KENTUCKY SOIL NEEDS '3-SQUARES' SAME AS FARM'S LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO.—Placing plant food within handy reach of growing crops is as important to farm profits as setting feed within easy reach of hungry livestock, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Crops need a well-rounded ration the same as cattle," the statement points out. "A farmer's responsibility does not end merely in supplying his soil with fertilizer. His job is effectively done only if he places that fertilizer where it will do the most good in providing growing plants with ready nourishment.

"No soil contains an inexhaustible reservoir of plant foods. Constant cropping steadily reduces the fertility level. Unless a replenishment program is undertaken, the soil will become deficient in one or all of the three major feeding elements—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

"In such a situation the important thing a farmer must know and do is to carry the right kind of plant food to his crops, apply it in adequate quantities and avoid waste. The soil must be considered just as seriously as the crop because the fertilizer should perform the twofold job of nourishing the crop and helping maintain the productivity of the soil as well.

"Only by a steady program of fertility replacement and soil building practices can the continuous productivity of a farm be assured. The soil can and does wear out from constant cropping, just the same as a tractor will wear out from constant use without the replacement of important parts."

● The men who guard our coastlines are on the alert 24 hours a day. Aircraft spotters, naval patrols, and the pilots who range far out at sea maintain a constant watch for enemy movements. They know that upon their vigilance depends the safety of the nation.

● Unceasing watchfulness is also demanded of the men who provide your electric service. Theirs, too, is a 24-hour-a-day job . . . the job of maintaining a service vital to war production, to all industry, to business, agriculture and the home. They must be on guard against possible causes of service interruptions . . . quick to act in case of storms, floods or other emergencies. Day or night, they must be ready to uphold the tradition of the electric business: "The service must not fail."

Soldier of industry . . . guardian of your electric service . . . the lineman, like the men in uniform, is ready day or night to go where duty calls.

● On the power front, as on the coast defense lines, unrelenting vigilance is the watchword for the duration.

This demonstration will take place in the department of vocational agriculture in the school and is open to any person in the community who may be interested in attending.

Farmers Sowing Tobacco Beds

Farmers over a wide section of the county began in earnest to burn and sow tobacco plant beds the past week. Rains the latter part of the week forced many to postpone work on this task.

Boone County this year has 1123 tobacco growers listed under the AAA program, with allotments totaling 2261.8 acres.

Golden Burley (of which there are a dozen varieties, so called) is the most talked of variety. Experiment Station No. 16 is the next most popular. Where Fusarium Wilt in the river bottoms is a problem, the variety Experiment Station No. 33 is both the most popular and the most profitable variety. Experiment Station No. 48 is a new variety that is both root rot resising and Mosiac resistant.

Many growers last year, due to dry weather, used too much fertilizer on their plant beds and in many instances killed their plants after they came up. Not more than 40 to 50 lbs. of a good fertilizer per 100 running feet of a nine foot bed should be used.

Charles L. Hempfling of Taylorsport is one farmer who will have a cyanamid treated bed that will not have to be burned this year. He has used this method of fertilizing and treating to kill weed seeds for five years, with good results.

Growers who received Experiment Station No. 48 tobacco seed this week for small size demonstrations, are: J. G. Pennington of Walton; Will McCormick, Allen Morris and Walter King of Verona; S. B. Scott of Grant, and Kenneth Stephens of Hamilton.

Kite Flying Fun But Be Careful

With the coming of spring and the kite flying season, Community Public Service Company issues its annual appeal to children not to fly their kites in the vicinity of electric power lines.

"Kite flying is great sport and lots of fun for the children," states R. M. Hall, power company manager, "but it can turn into tragedy if the kites are allowed to come in contact with power lines. Every year scores of lives are needlessly lost in the United States, because children used wire for kite strings or came in contact with power lines while trying to recover kites tangled in wires. We solicit the help of parents and school-teachers in seeing that children of this community are warned of the danger in order that similar accidents can be prevented here."

To be on the safe side, Mr. Hall recommends that the following precautions be observed by kite flyers:

Fly kites in open fields as far away as possible from power lines and traffic.

Don't use wire or metallic string. This is extremely dangerous as wire is a conductor of electricity and the string may fall across a power line.

Don't use metal kite sticks or wooden kite frames braced with wire.

Don't fly kites with wet string or in wet weather. Water is a conductor of electricity.

Don't try to retrieve a kite caught in the wires by climbing poles, poking sticks or pulling on the tail. You may come in contact with a live wire.

If you see a kite caught in an electric power line, call the office of Community Public Service Co. A trained lineman will remove the kite as soon as it is possible to do so.

Salvage for Victory; America Needs Waste

America's war factories need more waste paper, old rags, scrap metal and old rubber. In our total effort for total victory, every pound of these materials must be salvaged, because:

Scrap metal makes the steel, brass, copper, lead and other metals for the guns, planes, tanks and ships we must have for victory.

Waste paper makes new paperboard to ship munitions, clothing and food for America's fighting men at home and over seas.

Old rubber makes new rubber for our motorized forces, planes, tanks, and battle ships, and for essential civilian needs.

Old rags make needed materials for emergency buildings, wiping rags for war industries and reworked textiles.

We must save and salvage and start these materials on their way to make weapons for our fighting men. Here is n opportunity for every citizen in every community in America to help turn out the weapons that can give the only answer to the treachery at Pearl Harbor.

How to Save

1. Flatten out all cartons and boxes; tie in neat bundles; keep dry and clean.

2. Pile newspapers separately and tie in separate bundles.

3. Keep rags, metals and rubber separately; in carton and bags if possible.

How to Dispose of Waste

For the present, call your local Salvage Chairman for instructions or you can sell your own junk to one of the Waste Materials Trade

In general, do not call a collector until your waste paper has reached 100 lbs. or a pile five feet high. Metals, including tin cans, rags and rubber should be disposed of at the same time.

A local Salvage for Victory headquarters in each community is our goal. Wherever possible, headquarters of the local defense council should be used. In Walton the Lumber Company has volunteered as headquarters. This central office could arrange for the pick-up of collections either by collectors or by charities.

We urge county authorities to recover waste materials normally burned or dumped by local agencies.

In many localities schools, Boy Scouts and other organizations have already started salvage programs.

It is not the function of Local Salvage Committees to supercede any of these efforts, but rather to assist such campaigns and coordinate all such activities, wherever possible.

We need cooperation from local volunteer committees. Each club and organization in the County is asked to appoint a chairman to represent them in salvage work.

Please send names of chairmen to me as soon as possible. It is a long task too. It is really not a campaign. It must be a continuing program, because we will need more and more materials, as long as the war lasts.

Mrs. A. E. Hue, Florence, phone 67 has had practical experience in disposing of salvaged materials and she will be glad to instruct any of the local chairmen, who need help. Mrs. Orville Willeford, president of the Florence Homemakers Club, is cooperating with Mrs. Hue. — Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Walton, County Chairman.

Bearcats Play Hartford At Louisville In State Meet Tonight

Coach Lewis Shields and his Bearcat basketball players have been the toast of Walton since last Saturday night—and justly so—In the finals of the Regional tournament at Dixie Heights High school last week, the local sharp-shooters gave Covington a sound trimming to gain entrance to the State meet, 40 to 21.

To reach the finals, Covington had defeated Newport and Dayton and Walton-Verona had conquered Hebron and Simon Kenton.

In the final tilt, the locals turned on the "heat" from the start—never giving the Bulldogs a chance. The winners led 10-0 at the end of the first quarter; 23-10 at the half; 27-14 at the third quarter, and at end end 40-21. At one time in the second quarter the Cats were on top 19-1.

The box score:

Coyle	1	0	2
Groger	3	1	7
DeMoisey	8	3	19
Welsh	1	0	2

Following presentation of the trophies to the winners and runners-up, individual gold basketballs were given the all-tournament team, chosen by coaches and officials. Walton landed three men in this select group. They were: Truett DeMoisey, Paul Simpson and Russell Groger. Other players named were: Smith and Hungler of Covington; Dorna and Perry of Dayton; Morgan of Simon Kenton; Johnson of Erlanger, and Rheinhardt of Alexandria.

Cats Play Hartford in State Tournament Tonight

Tonight at 8:30, Central War Time, the Walton-Verona Bearcats will square off against Hartford of Western Kentucky, in their first game in the State Tournament at Louisville.

This will be Walton's third visit to the State meet, and as yet, they have not won a game. In 1928 they were defeated, in their first game, by Car Creek, and in 1933 they were knocked off in the first round by Corinth. Maybe the third time will be different—we hope.

All the boys are in good shape for the gruelling task ahead of them. Monday and Tuesday afternoons they went over to the Simon Kenton gym. for practice sessions. The larger floor at SK was thought to be better for the boys, and we think it was quite nice of Simon Kenton to let them use the floor.

Wednesday evening, the locals entrained on the L. & N. Railroad for Louisville, and on arrival will be housed in the Kentucky Hotel. There they will relax—we hope—and await the opening gong of their initial battle.

Besides Coach Shields and their manager, Jess W. Thornton, those making the trip were Paul Simpson, Russell Groger, Stanley Lee McElroy, Clifford Ryan, Truett DeMoisey, Harry D. Mayhugh, Leon Pennington, Lawrence Welsh, Ray Coyle and Charles Holder.

The Cats have been selected as one of the four favored teams, and we believe that they do have an even chance of "copping the coveted crown." However, should they lose their first encounter, they are still a great bunch of boys and a good team. May the best of luck be theirs, is the wish of every Bearcat fan. Give them all you've got lads!

Quite a large following of local rooters are planning to go to Louisville, today, to see their favorites in action.

FAIR GROUNDS LAKE SURVEYED

Earl Welch, agricultural engineer of the College, completed the preliminary blueprint survey of the Boone County 4-H and Utopia Fair Grounds' lake last Friday, according to County Agent Forkner.

The lake, as surveyed, will cover 2 acres of land. The dam will be 15 feet high, 200 ft. long and the water level of the spillway will stand 11 ft. deep plus the depth dug out in constructing the dam, which will make 15 feet or more of water at the deeper point. The dam will back the water within one foot elevation of the old Hawkins spring and within three feet elevation of the low point of the road.

The war, no doubt, will postpone most construction plans for the grounds. However, the 4-H and Utopia Club Council is proceeding to make blue print plans for the lake, the building, and the landscaping of the grounds.

John L. Conner, treasurer of the Fair Grounds Committee, reports that all of the $3651 pledged has been paid, except $184. and that these pledges will probably be paid in the near future.

GET YOUR MATERIAL FOR RED CROSS SEWING

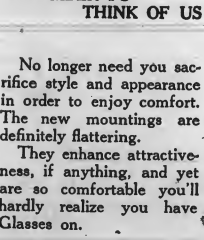
Please make arrangements to be present, so that plans can be made to control our highways.



On March 26th the Fire Watchers and Air Raid Wardens of the County will meet at the same place.—Harry D. Mayhugh, Coordinator.

NEW PASTOR TO BE AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH SUN.

Every member is urged to be present and an invitation is extended to the entire community to give his fine young couple a cordial welcome.

by JAMES PRESTON

The Administration and the farm bloc are having a tug-of-war.

It came to the fore at the time of the enactment of the Price Control Bill. The question then was the extent of the power of the Price Administrator to fix maximum prices for agricultural commodities. Round one ended in a victory for the farm bloc. Rigid standards set by the Price Control Act must be met before ceilings can be fixed for the products of farmers.

The farm bloc is now trying to bolster its position by supporting an amendment introduced into the Senate which prohibits the use of certain funds by the Government to buy farm products below a given price. This amendment is designed to plug a loophole in the Price Control Law which the President intended using to stabilize farm prices, according to its sponsor.

President Roosevelt and Price Administrator Henderson are bitterly opposed to this amendment. They favor the present set-up, under which the President can, for example, instruct Federal crop agencies to turn over thousands of bales of cotton to the War Department.

The War Department could then sell the cotton to a manufacturer for use in Army supplies at a price which, for the most part, would be below the designated price level. This procedure, Administration experts point out, will have the effect of decreasing the demand for cotton, or whatever commodity may be involved, on the open market and thus serve to keep cotton prices stable.

There is another angle to this battle in which both sides are adamant. The Senate farm bloc has succeeded in passing a bill forbidding the Government to sell below parity its huge stocks of cotton, corn and wheat, despite a direct appeal by the President for its defeat.

There is much conjecture in the corridors of Capitol Hill as to whether the President will veto the bill if it gets through the House.

Congressmen who disapprove of the efforts of farm Senators and Representatives to jockey farmers into a favored position cite official Department of Agriculture figures to show that in 1941 the cash income of farmers totaled almost $12 billion, and represents an increase of 29 percent over the agricultural income for 1940.

They insist that such Senators and Representatives are not indicative of the spirit of the nation's farmers. They point to 50 Indiana farmers who resolved at a meeting that they will permit no interest of their own to interfere with their war time duty to their country. These farmers, they insist, are typical.

A good deal of discussion among businessmen here is centered around a Bill introduced by Representative Boland of Pennsylvania. The bill attempts to modify the present capital-gains tax, which has long been regarded with disfavor in business and financial circles.

The present tax is levied on the transfer or sale of all assets, with enumerated exceptions. Most of the revenue comes from security transactions.

It is felt that the Government should follow the lead of other countries and abolish this type of tax entirely, because experience has shown that it discourages the investment of capital in business enterprises. The Boland Bill, by setting a flat rate of 10 percent on the net capital gains of both individuals and corporations, is hailed as a step in the right direction.

Proponents point out that the lower rate of taxation together with other corrective provisions of the bill will encourage transfers. This means that, although the rate is lower, there will be more taxable transactions. The result will be, according to experts, an estimated increase in revenue from $80,000,000 to $300,000,000 annually.

An additional $220,000,000 of tax revenues isn't anything to be sneezed at these days, say Mr. Boland's backers.

"I would not if I might, I would rather walk in the dark with God than go alone in the light. I would rather walk with Him by faith than walk alone by sight."

Improvement is noted in the condition of C. O. Morgan, under the skillful treatment of physicians and nurses of St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Deeply appreciated was the recent kindness of Robert E. Hawkins, Mrs. V. L. Stephenson, Mrs. Sherman Barberick and Miss Olen Douglas.

SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Our Allies are not only looking to this country to send them bombers and fighting planes, tanks, ships and fighting men, but they are also looking to us to feed their people. The new U. S. "food-for-defense" budget, set up by the Department of Agriculture, calls for increased production of nearly all farm products during 1942.

For example, our normal yearly production of milk is 106.6 billion pounds, but the Government is now asking us to increase it to 125 billion pounds in 1942. Normally we slaughter 63.2 million hogs each year, but since England is depending on us for foodstuffs, we are asked to raise and slaughter 79 million this year. Other crops, production of which must be increased, are eggs, cattle, peanuts, soy beans, chickens, oats, vegetables and fruits. The increased production of these ten vitamin-packed foods will not only improve the diet of Americans but will go far toward feeding the peoples of the United Nations who are fighting the Axis powers.

Increased production does not necessarily mean lower prices for farm products. On March 3, hogs on the average, brought $13.20 on the Chicago market. This was the highest price for 16 years. This is compared with $9.98 on December 1, 1941 and $7.59 a year ago. With wheat quoted at $1.29 a bushel, soy beans at $1.95, corn at 84c and oats at 56c, farmers are making more money than in any other year since 1919.

With many of the farmers of Europe in the fighting forces, America must redouble its effort to feed our Allies. American farmers are as necessary to winning this war as are American manufacturers. We must have food as well as guns. We must increase production of both if the United Nations are to win this war.

"God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth."

Rev. C. B. Love of Louisville began his pastorate at the Baptist church here Sunday by preaching two fine sermons. He and Mrs. Love were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cammack. Sunday afternoon they called on the sick of the community.

We had 98 in attendance at Sunday School Sunday and are striving to get 100 next Sunday—so come and ask someone else to come. Let's make this our goal and endeavor to reach it.

Mrs. Cull Thornton has been seriously ill the past few days, but is some better at this writing. Her many friends hope for her recovery.

Rev. Dunaway and Elzie Kemper of Glencoe attended the B. T. U. meeting here Wednesday afternoon and evening. Rev. and Mrs. Lafayette Walner, Miss Walker and Rev. D. H. Daniel of Louisville were present and gave us some very important information regarding our B. T. U. work. We regret that more people in the association were not present for these inspiring messages.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Furnish and daughter and Betty Ray Skirvin spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Kemper and family.

Orville Stewart accompanied his brother-in-law, Irone Bourne, to the Veteran's Hospital at Dayton, Ohio last week. Mr. Bourne is to take treatment there for an indefinite period of time.

Elzie Kemper of Glencoe visited Lonnie Kemper and family last Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Wilma Mattrews of Corbin is visiting Miss Gene Cammack.

Martin Agee Slaughter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Slaughter, left last Thursday for Ft. Thomas, where he was inducted into the army.

Mrs. John Greene was called to Hart county Saturday by the death of her brother. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Greene, Williamstown.

There's no doubt about it, the sow is the real center of hog profits. Feeders make or lose on what she gives in the litter. Sows need pig-building feed if they're to farrow big litters of heavy pigs — and Purina Sow and Pig Chow is built especially to go with grain to give sows what they need to produce big litters.

Come into the store and see us about Sow and Pig Chow. We'll show you records that prove it's a real-pork-making ration.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Burlington Homemakers held their regular meeting at the Court House on March 5th. The President, Mrs. Snyder, was in the chair.

The ladies who were at the meeting before lunch did Red Cross sewing.

In spite of the fact that there is so much demand upon women's time now, homemakers meetings are not being pushed into the background. There are three lines of defense: Sound Homes, Teamwork in Industry and a United Nation. Since sound homes is the first line of defense, a homemaker is automatically enlisted to help defend America and win the war Other things avail nothing if the people and the army are without morale. It was the spirit of the peopl ewhich caused France to fall. This must be had from the home.

It is a duty and responsibility for a homemaker to put her home and family first. The rest will not then be a burden to her. but will will a great gap in the line of defense.

America was made up of an honest, unselfish, neighborly, clean and free people. Homemakers must strive to keep America that way in order that she may be a united nation.

One way a homemaker may do this is to give of her time—her skill and her methods to other homemakers who are not enlisted as such. There are a lot of little "do's and don'ts" for instance which may help a neighbor—then too, just a hint about such a little thing as planting seeds can be a big help and even the exchange of seeds.

The Live at Home Chairman stated some interesting facts. She said that sixteen percent more eggs were bein gasked for in this county. which means that the county's goal is eighty-one thousand dozen. It is advised that chicks be bought rather than hatched,. Many reasons were given for this being the better and the cheaper way.

Farms on which poultry is not one of the main enterprises, that is flocks from 200 to 500, should keep flocks of only 30 to 40 hens. The smaller flocks given only a little attention would be found more profitable than flocks of 60 to 80 hens under similar conditions. Five hens to a person is what it takes for one person's quota of eggs.

Anyone interested in a homemade brooder can get splendid plans for same from the Home Demonstration Agent or from Mr. Forkner's office. It is called the Lantern or Lamp brooder—made very simply and easily. It can be made from scrap material found on most every farm. This type brooder will take care of 75 to 100 chicks.

The Exterior Beautification lesson was given by Mrs. Garnet Tolin in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Courtney Kelly.

England. she said, has not abandoned her gardens but rather is striving for more. Mrs. Elliott from the University of Ky. suggested that more seed beds be made. A very important thing is to sterilize the soil. If planting just a few seeds in flats in the home, sterilize the soil by baking well in the oven and then letting it stand awhile. This holds good for both flowers and vegetables. Since recreation is oing to be limited one should grow flowers for recreation.

Flower beds may be made patriotic by planting red, white and blue flowers and also in making V-shaped flower beds. The yellow cosmos and blue morning glory will delight anyone who tries them.

There is a shortage of shade trees in Kentucky. While fall planting is desired it is hoped that five hundred thousand trees will be set in Kentucky this spring.

The community project of planting the old school campus has been approved. The utilities compan ywill cooperate with the planting project. They will prune all trees carefully and properly. Persons desiring shade trees of quick growth will do well to plant the Chinese elm. If pruned correctly, it will live a long time. This tree is especially good for screening.

This particular club voted to have a tulip show in the spring; to help needy 4-H girls.

A timely hint is: dustless dust clothes. Three tablespoons of linseed oil—one pint of gasoline mixed together makes fifteen fair-sized cloths. Old underwear is good for these cloths. They are permanent and practical when hemmed. These cloths are very satisfactory even after washing.—Pub. Chairman.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

2 Do not use wire or metallic kite strings.
3 Do not climb poles to retrieve tangled kites.
4 Do not use metal kite sticks or wooden sticks bound with wire.
5 Do not fly kites with wet string or in wet weather.
6 Do not poke sticks at kites caught in wires or try to pull them down by their tails

If you see a kite caught in an electric line, call our office at once. Our employees know how to remove kites without endangering anyone or causing an interruption to electric service.

Seed Corn

Good Seed Corn is of vital importance to every farmer. To have a good stand and a good crop, you must have good seed.

This corn is carefully selected, butted and tipped according to our specifications. This corn may cost you one dollar a bushel more than ordinary corn, but that would mean only 15 cents extra per acre for seeding and you know how little corn it takes to sell for 15 cents.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Lawrence Welsh is the newest addition to the Advertiser staff. "Katy" the flashy Bearcat forward, shows much promise of becoming a good newspaper man some time.

—o—

Art Kent thought a time bomb had been handed him the other night when someone gave him a cigaret with a small firecracker inside. The explosion was terrific but no damage was done.

—o—

I have been reliably informed that Blanche Brittenhelm will be wearing Orchids Easter. Although very expensive, they do add to ones appearance.

—o—

Tommy Kephart says he is a perfect speciman of American Youth. I think young Tom is mighty small to be saying such big words.

—o—

Walton's loss will be a gain for Uncle Sam when the congenial Ray Glore enlists in the Naval Reserve. Ray is one of finest fellows I have ever had the pleasure of meeting. I am sure he will make a splendid addition to the Navy.

—o—

Doc and Mabel Maddox, so I have been told, were really set on having a seat the night of the Simon Kenton-Walton game. They got there at 5:30, the game starting at 7:30.

—o—

Covington's theme song when they came to Dixie to play the Bearcats was "We did it before and we can do it again," but after getting one of the worst defeats of the year, they went out singing, "Blues in the Night."

—o—

Bill Green's address appearing this column last week evidently did some good. I have heard several people say that they wrote him, and the only reason they hadn't before, was because his address was unknown to them. For the price of a stick of gum, and very little effort, you can make some member of one of the Services happy. Lets all get together and try to make the boys that are away feel that we do think of them often. Write, write, write!

—o—

When you see these guys wearing these short-legged pants, some of them are doing it for National Defense, no doubt. But when you see some of the "loud" sox, along with them, they are doing it for sox-appeal.

—o—

When Walton got through walloping Simon Kenton the other night, for the third time this season, Mrs. Lucy Breeden reminded me of a person who had just lost a member of the family—instead of a fan who had just watched her team go down.

—o—

Friday, the 13th may be unlucky for some people, but the Bearcats say it is their lucky day. They have nosed out SK twice on that date.

—o—

I think about every one I've seen lately are going to Louisville to see our boys play in the state turney. That's the ol' spirit, too. It helps make them play better when they know the fans are backing them to the limit.

—o—

The SK boys are a pretty good bunch of fellows — even though Walton slapped 'em out of the race — they turned right around and became some of our strongest rooters.

—o—

One of the most industrious people I've seen recently is Dora Stephenson. I happened to be a witness the other day when she was shoveling ashes, just before hubby Don was getting ready to construct a new garage.

—o—

Joke of the week, this week, is on the lady from Burlington who purchased a new radio from De-Moisey Electric, and after it had been installed, tried and tested, and the service man had returned home—had to return to the home of the purchaser and turn it off short wave so she could get some music.

—o—

I believe that whole Advertiser staff is glad to get up on the main stem, along with the rest of the business houses. We have a much better view from here.

Tomato growers in Hancock county have been advised to make no contracts for less than $15 a ton.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS AWARDED VICTORY BADGES

Victory Badges were awarded to more than 80 4-H club members last week, who have started projects in agriculture or home economics, according to Franklin Frazier, Assistant County Agent. These badges were presented at community 4-H Club meetings.

Other 4-H boys and girls will be eligible to receive this award just as soon as work on their projects is under way. This recognition is given by leaders of 4-H clubs in the county to encourage better and more efficient work among rural youth, since each 4-H project is directly related to the Victory effort.

METHODIST W. S. C. S. HAS ALL-DAY MEETING

The Womans Society for Christian Service of the Methodist Church held an all-day meeting in the church last Saturday. Mrs. W. O. Rouse was devotional leader with Mrs. Lula Hudson leader for the program.

The noon hour was pleasantly spent together, while partaking of the bountiful dinner.

ENTERTAIN HAPPY HELPERS AT CHURCH TUESDAY NITE

Rev. and Mrs. James H. Talley entertained members of the Happy Helpers Class of the Walton Methodist Church with a St. Patrick Blarney party on Tuesday, March 17th in the church basement.

The party was greatly enjoyed by the following: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall and daughter Marianna of Covington; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephenson and son Joe; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Carlisle; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pduett; Mr and Mrs. Scott Lancaster; Mrs. Fay Conner; Mrs. Lucille Hudson; Mrs. Helen Bedinger; Rev. D. E. Bedinger; Mrs. Nancy Cooper; Clay Myers; Miss Emma Jane Miller, and the host and hostess, Rev. and Mrs. Talley.

FARMERS URGED TO INCREASE SORGHUM ACREAGE

The increasing of sorghum acreages has been suggested by several farmers as one means of meeting the sugar shortage, according to H. F. Forkner, County Agent.

Good sorghum molasses along with honey, have been recognized by food authorities as wholesome sources of sweet foods, rich in minerals and vitamins.

Sorghum, sugar tree molasses and honey all form a basis for supplementing part of the extra sugar needs. Farmers in many parts of the State are specializing in producing high quality products of this class. Several local farmers are experienced producers of these crops.

IN MEMORY OF OUR DEAR SON, HOBART L. DUNN

Hobart Lee Dunn, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dunn was born December 5, 1898 at Dry Ridge, and passed away while on duty, in an accident, March 4, 1942.

During his childhood and youth he acquired the desire to become a railway trainman and after completing his education at Dry Ridge High school, he went to Buffalo, N. Y. to engage in his chosen profession, and continued there until his accidental passing.

In a few days after his arrival in Buffalo, he went to live with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Malone, and with them, because of his good nature and sunny disposition, readily endeared himself, and he continued to make that his home during his long career.

In his early life he joined the Dry Ridge Christian Church, of which his father is a deacon and his mother a faithful member, and remained a member until his passing.

Hobart spent his vacation at home with his parents and friends each year and on occasion they spent several days with him in his adopted home. He never failed to keep in constant communication with his parents, by way of mail and telephone, and was always anxious as to their well being, never failing to send them a letter, arriving at home each Saturday.

Hobart had a wonderful personality and disposition, and endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and left to mourn his passing only the kindliest of relatives and friends.

It seems so hard to part with loved ones, but it's the working of God's hand. Why we had to give up Hobart, somewhere, some time, I'm sure we will understand. Our home is broken, our hearts are sad. Could he have stayed, we would have been glad, but God in his wisdom called him away and in Heaven we hope to meet him some sweet day.

He left only his mother and father, to whom he was very devoted, and aunts, uncles and cousins. His funeral was one of the largest to be held in this county, conducted from the home of his father and mother at Mt. Zion, Grant County, last Saturday afternoon a 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. Ralph Tillery, Rev. J. O. Carter and Rev. C. L. True.

Active pallbearers were John Martin, Frank Barker, Robert Adkins, Carl Baird, Frank Clara and Jake Sanders. Honorary pallbearers were Claude Neal, Dan Baird, Virgie Franks, Clyde Franks, Walter Conrad and Earvin Baird. The flower bearers were Mrs. Roy Butler, Mrs. Edna Barker, Miss Lois Martin, Sallie Dunn, Emogene Beach, Mrs. Bennie Dunn, Miss Mollie Chapman, Bernice Beard, Mrs. Irene Renaker and Ruth Franks.

Burial was made in Hillcrest Cemetery, Dry Ridge, Ky.

CARD OF THANKS

While the dark shadows hang low upon us, we are not unmindful of the many acts of kindness that was bestowed upon us during the sudden death of our darling son, Hobart. To our many good friends and neighbors for all of their help and assistance in any way, to Dr. Marshall for his constant care of us, to Revs. Tillery, Carter and True for their words of comfort, to Mrs. Arnold Faulkner, Mrs. Harry Bishop, Mrs. J. H. Blackburn, Willie Stone and M. J. B. Belew for their sweet songs, to the donors of the many beautiful flower offerings, and to Coates & Stewart for the manner in which they handled the funeral, we express our deep appreciation. All these things will remain with us for time to come.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dunn.

— A TRIBUTE —

It's up in Kenton County
Where they never have the blues,
And it's out at Bracht Farm Club
Where people are social too.
Here is to Tom Powers of Kenton County,
Whose friendship we all crave,
For in the cause of purebred live stock,
We know he has been brave.
His hogs are big type Polands
His sheep are Oxford Downs,
His horses are the saddle type,
And beauties to drive around.
His farm is rolling blue grass,
And his hogs roam o'er these hills
And if you have them on your own farm.
It is a sure cure for all ills.

(If any one knows the author of the above poem, I would appreciate it if they will kindly let me know.—Cynthia H. Powers).

4-H Club Members on Rotary Program

Assistant County Agent, Maurice Williams and 4-H club members, Charles Brown and Wallace Gabriel, gave short talks on the 4-H club program and activities at the Covington Rotary club meeting, Chamber of Commerce building, Covington, March 10th.

Mr. Williams told about National, State and County 4-H Club programs and the part that 4-H club members are taking in the food for Victory program, through the production and conservation of foods. Also how they helped in the collection of aluminum, distribution of Defense Bond booklets, collecting scrap metal and other materials needed in the war effort.

Charles Brown gave a short outline of his several years of 4-H club work and his experience in the garden project, tobacco and livestock.

Wallace Gabriel told about his calf projects and how he is now engaged in building up a herd of beef cattle as an outgrowth of his early 4-H work.

Both Brown and Gabriel told about the local club activities, such as county contests, judging teams, demonstration teams and Junior Week at Lexington, and trips to the State Fair at Louisville.

4-H National Mobilization Program Soon

According to J. W. Whitehouse, State Leader in 4-H Club work, M. L. Wilson, Director of Extension, Washington, D. C., a National 4-H Mobilization Program is scheduled for the week of April 5th to 11th. The purpose of the program is to increase participation in 4-H club work, and to inform 4-H club members more fully about their part in the great war effort.

A. A. A. to Change Community Boundaries

Communities to elect committeemen and delegates for various communities in Kenton county, at 8:30 p. m., Eastern War Time, on Thursday, March 26th.

Persons who have signed a 1942 farm plan and are participating in the Soil Conservation Association program are eligible to vote for committeemen, delegates and alternate delegates in their community. Notices are being mailed by the AAA office to eligible voters showing the community meeting place for election.

Kentucky Farm Account Book

More and more farmers every week are obtaining copies of the Kentucky Far mAccount book for keeping records of their farm income and expenses. The book can be had at cost by calling at your county agent's office. It is indexed and saves much time in recording. It has a place for recording the breeding record of your livestock. Last week, a farmer lost a litter of pigs because he was not sure about the farrowing date. Records pay.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to all our neighbors and friends for their kindness and consideration during the illness and death of our beloved mother, Mrs. E. P. Pennington.

Especially do we wish to thank Drs. Ryle and Bedinger; Rev. C. J. Alford and Rev. D. E. Bedinger; those who furnished the music; the donors of the flowers; those who prepared the grave, and Chambers & Grubbs.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS THE MESSIAH FORETELLS HIS DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8:35.

Jesus came into the world as the Redeemer of men—and that means He came to die. The prophets who wrote centuries before His coming presented Him as both the suffering and the reigning Messiah. However, to the minds of the Jewish people only the idea of His glory and kingship was acceptable, not of His suffering and death.

Apparently His own disciples had this same impression and it therefore became necessary for Jesus as He came to the last months of His earthly ministry to speak plainly to them about these matters.

I. Recognition of Christ by Faith (vv. 27-30).

As a foundation for right thinking on any spiritual question there must be recognition of Christ's deity. He drew forth such a confession from the disciples by asking who men said that He was. Notice that while there was difference of opinion, all had a high opinion of Him, calling Him John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets. They knew that a great man was in their midst, and had to admit it, even though they hated and opposed Him. But it is not enough to accept Christ as a great man, as a teacher, a prophet, or an example. Nor is it enough to tell what others think of Him. The question quickly becomes "Whom say ye that I am?" Have you answered that question? What will you do with Jesus Christ?

Peter responded with a straightforward, heaven-born confession of Christ as the Son of the living God (cf. Matt. 16:16-18) upon which Christ established His church.

II. Rejection and Crucifixion Prophesied (vv. 31, 32).

The foundation of faith in Him having been laid, Christ plainly laid before the disciples the fact of His coming rejection and death. Notice the word "must" in verse 31. "There was an imperative necessity for these things. But why must He die? This question is fully answered elsewhere in the Bible (John 3:14; Heb. 9:22; Isa. 53:4-6; II Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13; I Pet. 2:24). There could have been no salvation for any sinner if He had not died (Gal. 3:10, 13; II Cor. 5:21; Rom. 3:20-26)" (John W. Bradbury).

Note also that He "must rise again" (v. 31). He died for our sins, but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25).

III. Rebuke of Unbelief (vv. 32, 33).

Peter, quick to accept Jesus as the Son of God, permitted Satan to blind his mind to the necessity of the cross, and thus became a stumbling block of unbelief, calling forth a severe rebuke from Jesus.

It is a striking and humbling thought that the very one who a moment before spoke such acceptable words of recognition of Christ's deity could by unbelief so quickly become the tool of Satan. "My soul, be on thy guard" lest such temptation overtake thee!

May we also learn from this incident that we do well to weigh the words of even good men lest in a moment of weakness or unbelief they say that which may lead us astray. God's Word alone is sure!

IV. Requirements of Discipleship (vv. 34-37).

Following the Christ of Calvary calls for a willingness to say "no" to self (literally, to deny any connection with self-life) and to follow through with Him on the path of shame and crucifixion. No self-will and no compromise are permissible to Christ's disciples.

Foolishly to attempt to hold one's life for self is to lose it. That painful loss has left brokenhearted, wrecked lives all along the path of man's history. But why should any one do it? Equally foolish is the one who supposes that this world has anything to satisfy the human soul. Assuming the possibility of the impossible—that is, attaining the whole world as one's own possession—to do so at the cost of one's soul would be an indescribably poor bargain.

What then shall we say of those who barter their eternal souls for a mess of pottage, a moment of sensual satisfaction, or for a few paltry dollars? "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" It is the unanswerable question.

Right Endures

When Christ preached the Sermon on the Mount he was mocked and later crucified; but the inspired truths that he uttered continue to live through the ages, defying crucifixion. We may doubt the divinity of the Christ, for the proof lies in the hereafter; but only by stultifying ourselves can we doubt the wisdom of the moral precepts he uttered.

This Week On The Home Front

Donald Nelson's recent speech was vibrant with confidence and accented with a stern determination that American industry, management and worker, will be rapidly mobilized for all-out war.

The strategy on the "Home-Front" no wstands out in bold outline: conversion of industrial plants to war purpose—hard work for farmer and laborers—conservation and priorities to insure supply of materials—price fixing and rationing to protect the consumer.

For everybody it looks like labor and patches and taxes for the duration.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson put price ceilings on 90% of pork products to stop profiteering. Order applies only to packers, wholesalers, processors and slaughterers. OPA found Chicago prices to farmers already above 110 parity. With canned fruits and vegetables already ceilinged, much is already done toward cutting the nation's grocery bill.

February 28 price ceiling on domestic wool, applies to wool on a clean basis only and does not establish a 37.1-cent ceiling for prices growers can receive for grease wool sold on the farm. This statement is made jointly by C. R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, and Price Administrator Henderson, because of evidence that certain wool dealers have been deliberately misrepresenting the facts in their negotiations with wool growers and claiming the regulation prohibits them from paying more than 37.1 cents for grease wool on the farm.

The figure represents the average farm price for grease wool as of December 15, and was used merely as a statutory basis for calculation of the clean wool maximums established.

"The deliberate misuse of the 37.1 cents base figure to deceive farmers into selling their grease wool without free negotiation is reprehensible," said Mr. Wickard and Mr. Henderson.

Home radio manufacturer is stopped after April 22, but plans are being devised to main stocks of materials and parts to keep the 60 million sets no win 87% of the homes in repair.

Manufacture of rubber tired farm tractors ends May 1 by War Production Board order: rubber shortage.

WPB is thinking about ban on new home washing machines: for big manufacturers April 15, for the small ones, May 15.

Rationing of all kinds of trucks and trailers started March 8. WPB and Office of Defense Transportation will handle the work.

Mr. Henderson moved to halt "inflationary and unfair" wholesale and retail profiteering on home refrigerators following freeze of stocks Feb. 14. He "requested" that prices be set back to February 2 quotations.

After taking cuffs off pants for men, WPB announces intention to "freeze the existing silhouette" of ladies 1942 apparel to save material. Idea is to keep dresses now in use from going out of style. Order is expected any day.

Store and restaurant owners worried about repair parts and material for their refrigeration will be provided for.

Mr. Henderson denies that Brazil's order stopping her ships from carrying coffee and cocoa to the United States will affect coffee supply, says American ships can handle it, and warns against panicky hoarding.

Government asks that totally worn out tires be turned in to junk dealer or charity organization. Mr. Henderson thinks farmers may have a lot of them lying around.

Military and war industries need all the 16-millimeter sound projecting movie machines obtainable and government is appealing to all individuals and organizations, even schools, to sell them to the government.

Donald M. Nelson, WPB Chairman, announced a plan for monthly checkup to ascertain how rapidly industries are converting their plants and how closely their production is to contract schedule. If a plant drops behind, reason why is asked. War agencies won two court victories, against evaders.

War Production Board went into Federal Court in Chicago and obtained an order forcing Chicago Alloy Products Co. to let WPB agents see its books relating to priority order violations. The court jail sentence to company officers if they continued violation of orders issued by Director of Industry Operations Company was charged with dealing inscarce metals, and the court injunction was the first of its kind since war emergency.

In Norfolk, Va., the Federal District Court upheld the tire delivery freeze order of Dec. 11. One company tried to mandamus a dealer to sell it some tires without Price Administration approval. The count upheld the validity of tire rationing.

Profiteering by wholesalers of nylon hose brought threat of prosecution from Mr. Henderson, the Price Administrator.

Conservation and substitution Branch of the Bureau of Industrial Conservation lists materials which are scarce. In all 126 are listed as scarce or unavailable for civilian use: 64 must be substituted, 62 must be conserved. The two groups cover nearly all essentials. Clay products like bricks for throwing or building are still plentiful. There is still a supply of Cellophane.

Those capsules of Vitamin A they sell in the drugstores are made from the concentrated oils of fish livers, like cod liver. Japan and Nonway were our principal pre-war sources. Defense needs and stoppage of imports moved the government this week to urge less use of the capsules. Consumers Division points out that certain vegetables contain Vitamin A, wrapped in yellow and green. Almost any yellow or green vegetable has it.

In connection with vegetables as war diet the city people are being urged to cultivate victory gardens, to put away the midiron and the mashie and the niblick for the plain old hoe! War may teach many lessons, not the least important of which is to know the distinction between a green pea cooked fresh from the vine, and one which traveled all the way from Texas!

Anti-trust laws are waived for businessmen who want to plan together to meet shortages in local delivery facilities. "It is not conspiracy" ryked the Office of Defense Transportation, "so long as it follows a plan approved or requested by the appropriate government agency.

Members of homemakers' clubs in Daviess county are backing a move to build a freezer locker plant.

Modernization Triples Value

Nowhere does lack of imagination cost more than in old house ownership. If owners of Grover Cleveland period homes, like this, could shut their eyes and visualize the attractive, modern cottage that could be created from such an old homestead, there would be less value lost in real estate depreciation and money spent on wrecking operations.

The complete transformation of this old house was accomplished through the use of more imagination than money. On an average, a dollar spent on modernization jobs like this can represent three dollars earned in increased real estate value. Many old homes can be instantly improved merely by changing "dated" lines and by replacing old-fashioned millwork.

OUR DEMOCRACY—by Mat

FOR THE CHILDREN'S FUTURE

PARENTS IN THIS COUNTRY NOW KNOW THAT MOST CHILDREN WILL LIVE TO HAVE A FUTURE—A BETTER FUTURE THAN THEY ENJOYED. THAT'S ONE OF THE REASONS FOR THE INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES AND SAVINGS ACCOUNTS.

CHILDHOOD DEATHS FROM DIPTHERIA, FOR EXAMPLE, HAVE BEEN CUT MORE THAN 75% SINCE 1920, AND SIMILAR ADVANCES IN MEDICINE WILL BE MADE IN THE FUTURE.

THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY AS A WHOLE, CHILDHOOD DEATH RATE HAS BEEN STEADILY DECREASING, AS MORE AND MORE PARENTS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF MEDICAL PROGRESS AND FACILITIES.

What Should You Save To Help?

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following table issued by the Treasury Department is intended as a savings yardstick for the average income-earner. It suggests how everyone of the 48,000,000 employed persons in the United States may participate in the war effort through the systematic purchase of Defense Savings Bonds.

"The job ahead of us is far bigger than most of us realize," Secretary Morgenthau declared in making the table public. "I know that the American people are ready to do their part to win the war. One of the ways we can do much more is by intensifying our effort in the purchase of Defense Bonds."

While persons without dependents may be able to set aside more than the suggested figures, persons with several dependents, or with other heavy family obligations, may be unable to save at the suggested rate, the Treasury Department pointed out.

Request Farmers To Grow Hemp Seed

Kentucky has been asked to grow between 33,000 and 35,000 acres of hemp seed in 1042. Boone County farmers who may be interested in growing hemp seed should contact the County Office for information on growing and requirements for securing seed, it has been announced by County Agent H. R. Forkner.

General information as to the growing requirements are as follows:

1. Use only well drained creek produces fifty or more bushels of corn per acre.

2. The seeding rate of 4.4 pounds or river bottom land that normally or one bushel to 10 acres allows for replanting.

3. Seed in hills 4x4 or 5x5 feet.

4. Federal Narcotic permits are required. They cost $2.

5. Secure seed through County AAA office from Commodity Credia Corporations. Cost is $12.60 per bushel.

6. Sign a contract to sell all seed back to Commodity Credit Corporation at $8 per bushel. Yields of seed varied from a last year's average of around 12½ bushels to as high as 30 to 40 bushels per acre.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKERS HAVE PARTY AND SUPPER

The St. Patrick's Day party and jitney supper on March 16 was a disappointment in the matter of the size of the crowd, but not in the quality of the supper. However the men ate heartily and, as there was almost no expense, we cleared a little over $5.

Owing to much sickness and various other good reasons, the attendance at the regular meeting Friday, March 20 was small, only 15 being present. The household hints were timely and good, a lot of business was disposed of, the Style Trent lesson, given by Mrs. Laverna Willeford, was interesting and Mrs. Moore's talk, as usual, was sprightly an dworthwhile. A most delicious luncheon was served. It consisted of salmon loaf with a dressing of pear and carrots in white sauce, parsnips, a green spring salad with french dressing, and a dessert of cherry jello with whipped cream. Altogether, we felt the day had not been wasted.

Walton to Participate In Sesquicentennial

Mayor D. L. Lusby today announced that Walton would take part in the Kentucky Sesquicentennial observance of Kentucky's one hundred and fiftieth birthday on June 6, 1942.

The announcement was made in response to a request from H. I. Miranda, Executive Director of the Kentucky Sesquicentennial Commission which was appointed by the Governor to form a fitting observance for the states celebration.

Mayor Lusby said that Miranda had advised him that his action on mayors part would give the town of Walton a place in the official program which would be printed in the Souvenir Book to be published by the Commission.

The exact nature of the celebration will be determined at the next regular meeting of the Town Council on Friday, April 8 and all citizens interested are invited to attend this meeting and make any suggestions they deem proper.

NEW HAVEN 4-H CLUB NEWS

Those taking part were Hazel Stephenson, Evelyn Franks, Crystal Masters, and our community leader for girls, Mrs. Masters, who read one of James Whitcomb Riley's poems about spring.

Reports were made by the various group captains and it seems that our clothing and foods leaders, Mrs. Harry Moore, Mrs. Woods Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Pennington are very busy with the girls and all are interested in their new projects.—Ella Ruth Black, Rep.

Many Local Fans See Bearcats Lose

You've probably heard the story of Casey and the gloom that fell on Mudville when he struck out. A similarity of this existed in Walton last weekend. Of course there was no baseball game, and no one had struck out, but the beloved Bearcat basketballers had lost their first game in the State meet to Hartford 47-42 Thursday evening. Some 150 or 200 locals had made the trip to Louisville to see the locals perform, and they were justly down-fallen at the results.

BEARCAT COACH MAY BE CALLED TO ARMY SOON

Lewis Shields

The Cats were, no doubt, a bit "jittery" as the game started, and this combined with the ability and size of the Hartford lads proved to be their downfall. They began to "find themselves" in the late stages of the contest, and in the fourth quarter, led by Welsh, put on a spirited rally, but the game was over before they had caught their prey. Going into the final period, Walton was on the short end, 40-24. Highlighted in the final drive by the losers, was the brilliant play of Lawrence Welsh, who tallied 14 points during the game, 8 in the last quarter. DeMoisey was tied with Welsh for the scoring honors, with 14 points also, he too played a bang-up game of ball. In fact, the whole team did their best, and we have nothing but praise for the Cats and their coach, Lewis Shields.

We were talking to a Northern Kentucky official after the Saturday afternoon semi-finals, and he stated that he thought that Walton was as good as any of the teams in action that afternoon. We are prejudiced enough to agree.

A flashy little team from Lexington Lafayette were in the winners of the State crown, defeating Harlan in the finals 44-32.

Local CCC Camp To Have Birthday

The 9th anniversary of the CCC will be celebrated on Saturday and Sunday, March 28 and 29.

All those interested in the part the CCC is playing in the National Defense effort are cordially invited to inspect the camp, the activities of the Soil Conservation Service and the intensive defense training program now in operation.

The public is urged to participate in this anniversary celebration. Guides will be on hand to assist in the tour and to explain the activities.

MUST HAVE SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT CARDS

Women who replace men in stores, offices and in factories must have social security account cards, as all employment of this character is covered by old-age and survivors insurance. Many women are now taking such jobs after having been idle for several years or after having worked in domestic service. As a result these women have had no need for social security account cards, it was said today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Covington field office of the Social Security Board Many employers will not hire women until they show their social security cards, he added. Cards are issued at the eCovington office daily from 8:30 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a. m. until 12:30 p. m.

SPECIALISTS RECOMMEND ALFALFA ACREAGE INCREASE

William Johnstone, field agent in crops, and Encil Deen, State Seed Inspector, addressed county farmers in a meeting in Burlington last Friday afternoon, according to County Agent Forkner. Both speakers rendered interesting and profitable discussions.

Mr. Johnstone recommended increased alfalfa acreage in Boone county, both as a National Defense measure and as a means of more profitable farming. He stated that alfalfa was the surest and best method of getting a good blue grass stand.

Encil Deen gave the most interesting farm talk that Boone farmers have heard during the year. No seed short of the best is good seed, said Mr. Deen. No farmer should buy seed except from a reliable dealer and then he should read the Kentucky seed tag on both sides. A dealer can sell any kind of seed in Kentucky, provided it is properly labeled. Heavy penalties are provided for improper labeling, and convictions are not uncommon. No seed should be bought that contains noxious weed seeds.

REV. ROY JOHNSON ADDRESSES UTOPIANS

Rev. Roy Johnson, pastor of the Burlington Baptist Church, addressed the general Utopia Club meeting last Thursday evening on the subject "Supporting Victory Needs." The subject was strongly presented in both an educational and inspirational manner.

Rev. Johnson, himself an ex-Service man in the last war, presented the present challenge the greatest this country has faced. He pleaded that now is the time for all to act and that personal and class differences be forgotten in the unified duty of every citizen to support his Government in the all out effort to win the war.

Food production goals were also discussed by Mrs. Vernon Pope and J. O. Griffith.

Victory is the themes of all Utopia meetings in 1942. Victory practices in poultry production, clothing and style selection will be discussed at the next meeting, by John Conner. Betty Williams, Utopia members, and Miss Iris Davenport of the College of Agriculture. The next meeting of the club will be held in Burlington at 9 p. m., EWT, Thursday, April 23rd.

W. G. Snyder of North Madison, Ind., was visiting his sister, Mrs. Cecil Gaines, and family last Monday.

Purpose of Civilian Defense

If America is going to survive the present world holocaust, it is going to be up to us as American citizens.

America can — America MUST win this war, else the world will not be a fit place in which to live. This war will test every straightforward thinking citizen of the world; it is a war that involves every man, woman and child. It is a war that knows no combat zones, it recognizes not race, religion or politics. It involves YOU and YOU alone.

You who are at home are just as important cogs in the huge machine that we must mobilize and train if we are to win. Fortunately, the war has not struck as close to home as it may. We are a long way from victory and unless every person takes it upon himself to do his part to win, then we will fail. It is the hope of every American that America will win and the Democracies will survive, but we can't do that unless we roll up our sleeves and get busy now.

I want to explain to you as best I can the purpose and the necessity of Civilian Defense and your part in it.

The Office of Civilian Defense is the defense agency entrusted with the task of preparing the American people for defense against any emergency that may develop on the civilian front. The mobilization of the civilian morale and resources in virtually every field is the task assigned to it.

From the functioning standpoint the Office of Civilian Defense is divided into two main sections — volunteer participation in civilian protection to train civilians for effective self-protection in the event of military invasion and disaster in the community, and volunteer participation in Civilian Mobilization to deal with the welfare and long-range planning necessary to make America strong today and in the days to come.

Civilian Defense is composed of all citizens in a community, these people volunteer to serve on your defense council. This council outlines your program for all activities of all registrants who have volunteered their services as air raid wardens, fire watchers, auxiliary police and first aid. The executive council selects instructors from your school to study the different subjects which have been handed to your coordinator for distribution. One instructor studies one certain subject. When he has mastered the subject, he then calls in the warden and instructs him in this particular branch of service. The warden, then calls in all volunteers for this service; they are instructed and each man is given a post to guard or watch. If for instance he is a fire watcher, he is given a post on the roof of a building which is high enough to be able to see every building in his particular area. This area may be a city block or more.

Instructors will teach all wardens the different kinds of bombs that are used by the enemy, how to combat them, how to put out fires caused by incendiary bombs or fires caused by other means.

The Auxiliary police will train to control highways, such as stopping traffic during blackout, seeing that all lights on cars and trucks are turned out, holding cars until all clear signal is sounded. Guard entrances on streets in War Production Board officials receive thousands of inquiries from small manufacturers asking: How can I get war work? The answer to the problem is tied up with sub-contracting and conversion of plant facilities to some type of war production.

It is the declared objective of War Production Chief Nelson to get every possible small and medium-sized manufacturer into the of his Spring Production Drive, which is aimed at a 25% increase in the output of all factories engaged in war production.

That our businessmen are cooperating in good faith is accepted here as a truism. A few days ago William P. Witherow, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, addressed an open letter to the members of his association (about 7-8 thousand in number) recognizing their response in this crisis, and calling upon them "to give our all in personal energy, plant production and taxes now—"

—o—

Action to aid the little fellow to get into the picture has already been taken.

The War Production Board has worked out and is publicizing a blueprint for factory conversion. It is a step-by-step account of what to do about getting a contract for war work. Not without its rough spots and delays, the procedure outlined is regarded by manufacturers as much needed activity in the right direction.

In addition, emphasis and more emphasis is placed on sub-contracting large defense orders awarded to large plants.

Another break for the small manufacturer lies in the fact that Donald M. Nelson has initiated a system of negotiating war supply contracts. Hitherto, the traditional practice of placing contracts by competitive bidding has been followed.

The new method means that many a small manufacturer who previously spent a considerable sum of money to prepare a bid only to come out second best, will now get his contract.

According to WPB announcements, he will get a chance at contracts for standard, easy-to-make articles. This will free the facilities of larger, better equipped factories for the more difficult war production jobs.

—o—

Interest on the conversion front is centered on Connecticut, which is conducting an experiment with the support of the WPB. Ten small Connecticut manufacturers are to be the guina pigs. The object is to determine how the nation can best put its small manufacturing plants to work.

Many of the country's plants have not waited to be shown how, but have gone ahead and converted on their own. Daily reports to the nation's capital reveal many interesting patterns.

Selected at random: manufacturers have turned from footballs to gas masks — from merry-go-rounds to hooks for airplane packing cases — from washing machines to bomber parts — from wall paper to incendiary bombs — from small-time carpet manufacturing to sub-contracting on gun barrels — from orange squeezers and metal games for children to gauges dies and bullet punches.

—o—

Much talk in labor and business circles here centers around important labor history which is being interpreted by the Federal courts.

The Wisconsin state labor relations act is one of the few not modeled after the Wagner Labor Relations Act. Under the Wisconsin Act, picketing and boycotting by a union are illegal unless a majority of employees have voted by secret ballot to strike. Attacked by labor unions as an invasion of free speech, this provision is upheld as constitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

In another case, the same court ruled that labor unions, in certain instances, are exempt from the prohibitions and penalties of the Federal anti - racketeering law. Thus, the Supreme Court decision gives carte blanche, in the absence of other Federal regulation, to the union involved in the case, and others like it, to continue its practice of levying a fee upon trucks passing into New York and New Jersey.

This latter decision resulted in a Congressional effort to amend the Anti-Racketeering Act so that it will apply to labor.

VERONA R-1

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Webster are rejoicing over their little grandson, Michael David, who was born Sunday, March 8th to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Long at Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati.

Though the number of hogs have dwindled to an all-time low on Knott county farms, replacements rapidly are being made.

Leslie county 4-H'ers are obtaining loans to start raising pigs, chickens and potatoes.

In Livingston county, 450 to 500 school children were fed hot school lunches during the winter.

In Fleming county, 5,000 acres of old pastures will be "patched" by 500 farmers who want to grow more food for defense.

Planning for maximum use of land for war, Washington county farmers have located 60,000 acres that may be improved by cover crops.

This Week On The Home Front

The Proces of converting our peace time fat into energy for war moves forward rapidly as fields grow greener and the days lengthen. Last week brought many changes by governmental act, and foreshadowed many more.

The WPB this week is stepping up production in the defense plants through a series of management-labor conferences. The more it is stepped up the more materials and supplies and services the war machine will eat up, and the more the civilians on the "Home Front" will have to conserve and skimp and substitute.

War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson is demanding more and more and faster and faster production. The February monthly shipping record for steel is still not enough.

Office of Price Administrator cracked down on a Chicago auto junk yard operator, who refused to sell hiss scrap cars for the Government price of $18.75 a ton. He wanted $22. Bureau of Industrial Conservation simply issued a requisition order, sent a squad of U. S. Marshals and some trucks and took Dealer Frank Schumak's 150 tons of old cars away. He'll get the Government price, no more.

The first tire "bootlegging" case belongs to Albany, N. Y., where a dealer was caught selling tires to unauthorized persons. After hearing held publicly, an order was issued preventing him from purchasing any tires until June 30th. "There is no room for persons of this calibre in the business life of a nation united to win a war," Acting Price Administrator John E. Hamm, commented.

In Ohio OPA is conducting a probe of tire bootlegging and of profiteers.

New fuel oil burning equipment is being discouraged, by Government order. If you have other heating facilities and are not using them to the limit, you can't get oil, unless it is gas and electrical equipment. Order affects 17 eastern states (including West Va.) and Washington and Oregon.

These states now have a 20% restriction in the use of gasoline

During the week the service prices in the same region were frozen by the Office of Price Administration at levels of March 13. Acting Price Administrator Hamm warned operators against violators and threatened penalties.

Issue of th elarge steel auto license plates are banned. They will be available only to new licenses and those who have lost or had their old ones destroyed. A small date "tab" not more than two-by-two inches, will be attached to the 1941 plate. It saves steel.

WPB is recommending construction of 350,000 defense housing units to the National Housing Agency. This more than doubles the defense home program of last September. Home owners and prospective builder landlords must comply with regulations to obtain the high preference rating for the materials. Among other things they must keep the same rent for one year, charge no more than $50 a month rent, and sell the house for no more than $6,000.

House trailer industry is booming because the trailer has been found a quick and temporary part solution to defense housing problem. 50,000 will be produced this year. The tire problem is solved. You get your trailer with tires, move to work, take off the tires and prop the trailer up. Tires go back to the manufacturer to be used on another trailer's one-way trip.

Office of Defense Transportation moved to elminate wasteage of tires, gasoline, machine, work and manpower, by duplicate home milk delivery service, by asking all local distributors to submit a plan.

Rubber goods manufacturers are asked not to hike prices of sundry articles, including medical and hospital items, and to preserve standards of quality.

Price raises in cotton, rayon piece goods and their mixtures brought a temporary ceiling, not affecting retail. Order should prevent further rises in clothing made of those materials. Prices are now believed "entirely too high," by the Office of Price Administration. The permanent ceiling may lower them.

You can still have plenty of rubber heels; WPB's Rubber Branch explains. Reclaimed rubber has been used for the heels anyway, and no shortage for the purpose is in sight.

There will be no more noisy juke boxes and vending machines for candy, cigarets, chewing gum, etc. made. The making of them consumed too much of the vital and strategic war metals and materials. Stamp machines can still be made.

Manufacture of home washing machines stops May 15. Larger companies must cease making them April 15. That was predicted two weeks ago.

Auto rationing order is now amended to permit draftees to sell their cars without restriction. If a draftee has already been inducted he can have an agent to do the selling. Transaction must be authorized by certificate of local rationing board. Order affects all 1942 passenger models.

Sales and rentals on nearly all kinds of new office machinery is halted temporarily, until War Production Board can work out a general production and distribution system for the industry.

Those new model shoes styled with super-thick soles are to be eliminated by request of the WPB textile branch. The armed forces need all the thick sole leather.

Don't count too much on a long-distance vacation this summer, J. B. Eastman, Defense Transportation Director, warns. No rationing of rail and bus tickets is now contemplated. But troop movements and essential war travel are taxing all facilities more and more.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

MAJOR PAUL ALBERT PUTNAM

U. S. Marine Corps, Commanding Marine Fighting Squadron VMF-211 at Wake Island

Darkness had brought its brief reprieve to Wake Island. It was the night of December 20, 1941. Two men stood on the beach near a waiting patrol-bomber. Major Paul Putnam, the Marine Corps squadron commander. And Bayler, a second major, who had fought through thirteen days of hell on Wake; now flying back, under orders to report at Pearl Harbor.

Putnam held out his hand, "Time to shove off, Walt. Good luck. You have my report."

But Bayler hesitated. "No other message, Paul?"

Putnam knew what he meant. Some personal word for Virginia, his wife; for the three children, in Coronado. "Yes. Tell them everything's all right."

Everything's all right . . . Back in the shadows, Bayler saw the last remaining fighter, built from bullet-torn wreckage. Before the Japs returned at daybreak, Putnam would take off in the lone ship. Carrying the Marine globe, anchor and eagle aloft for one hopeless, gallant fight.

For their heroic stand, Putnam and his full squadron, WMF-211 have been cited by the President of the United States.

ALOYSIUS HERMAN SCHMITT

Lieut. (J. G.) U. S. Navy (Chaplain Corps)

It was an hour to church call at Pearl Harbor. Aboard the battleship Oklahoma, young Chaplain Schmitt was reading his brief sermon when the clamor "battle stations" shattered the Sunday quiet. Then the crescendo roar of Japanese divebombers. Schmitt hurried below to his post, the dressing station for wounded.

An explosion shook the old dreadnaught, as a torpedo pierced her side. The stricken battleship shuddered, slowly began to roll over. In a rush of panic, a dozen men jammed the compartment door. Through the din came the young chaplain's voice. Quiet, bringing back reason. Schmitt opened the door, bracing himself as water swept in. Two men carried out an unconscious sailor, and a few more escaped by the passage before the swift-rising water cut it off.

Now only the narrow portholes were left. One man crawled up the tilting bulkhead, twisted through to safety. A petty officer caught Schmitt's arm to help him up, but the chaplain shook his head. He was the senior man. Lieut. Schmitt went down with his ship.

NICHOLSON

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

"He stands within the shadow at our side where our earth-blinded vision cannot peer. He walks beside us over roads untried and though we see Him not, we feel Him near. We trust the pressure of His hand, guiding and staying where the way grows rough. We hear a gentle voice and understand, for He is with us and that is enough."

C. O. Morgan is convalescing satisfactorily following an operation at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Most heartily do we thank Mr. Bravard for his recent kindness. Truly, a thousand words do not make as great an impression as one deed.

Recent callers were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rankin; Mrs. Hugh Hemingway; Mrs. Harry Fisk and infant daughter Janet; Little Miss Nellie Fisk and friend; Mrs. Ellery Vallandingham; and Mrs. Nell Rankin White. Deeply appreciated were their lovely gifts, as were also those of Mrs. J. N. Williams, Mrs. Helen Morgan Connell, a former Kentuckian, now residing at Reno, Nev., Mrs. C. W. Salmons, an anonymous friend, Walton, an anonymous friend, Shelbyville, Mrs. Amos Lawson and Mrs. Joseph Maddox.

WHEN you read your metropolitan newspaper today, the chances are it was brought to you by GREYHOUND!

To thousands of communities the country over . . . communities not served by any other means of transportation, (and to many that are) GREYHOUND is newsboy, mailman, and expressman—as well as the most popular public conveyance of Mr. and Mrs. America.

Whether for people, packages, or papers, GREYHOUND serves the need for fast, dependable transportation linking the interests and activities of the nation.

Its operations are geared to fill the requirements of peace times . . . flexible to meet the emergency needs of war.

Thus today, GREYHOUND is doing double duty by serving two great armies—selectees and trainees, the fighting forces in troop movements and on furloughs . . . and the civilian army of defense workers who are backing them up. And while the role of "newsboy" is, by itself, a minor capacity, it indicates the wide range of GREYHOUND'S indispensable services in the nation's daily life.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Walton looked like the gathering place for a street cleaners convention last Thursday afternoon, when Pop Farris, Jimmie Bolington and Tom Percival were all sweeping their respective sidewalks at the same time.

—o—

Looks like Nelda Campbell will be the one wearing orchids Easter—Bob Smith seems to be a permanent fixture in her parlor now.

—o—

Art and I were going to have something unusual the other nite. We had the front page of a special edition of the Advertiser all made up and on the press, with 2-inch headlines saying, "Walton Victorious," but after we heard the sad news broadcasted, our plans fell thru.

—o—

I asked Sam Howard the other day, after telling him some of my hardships, if he by chance knew what one was. I got a sweet answer to that — Sam says a hardship is a "concrete boat."

—o—

I have been asked to do some awfully big things in my time, but the other day when the boss asked me to write a personal letter to the President of the United States concerning some National advertising, I was shocked out of my wits.

—o—

Tommy Kephart says there is one advantage of being small. One nite when he was in Louisville with the rest of the boys, and had no place to sleep, someone fixed him a cozy little bed in the dresser drawer, where he had one of the most comfortable places in the hotel.

—o—

I saw something very odd while in Louisville. Penny, hotshot forward, had a gal. I don't remember having ever seen him with one before. He says it's lots of fun, but too expensive — $3.50 to get her home via taxi.

—o—

Katy said a very dumb thing, too, when he was at the table. I don't know if he was kidding or not, but I think he meant it. It had the times for breakfast, lunch and dinner listed at 9, 12 and 5. Katy wanted to know why lunch cost $12 and dinner only $5.

—o—

Georgia Rouse and Jimmy Falls, I understand, are going to start seeing a lot of each other. I think they will make a lovely couple—if size comparisons do not count.

—o—

I have often heard that if you stand on Times Square, New York long enough you will see everyone in the city. I believe that is just about right about Walgreen's drug stores. When I first got in Louisville, I couldn't find anyone from Walton, so disgustedly, I went into one of the drug stores, where the first two people I saw, that I knew, turned out to be the County Judge and the County Clerk from the ole' home county.

First time I had seen either of them since Xmas.

—o—

Walton lost another charming couple and I lost a very good friend, when Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stephenson were called to Columbus (Ohio) to work. This column wishes them both the very best of luck on the new job.

—o—

As I write this nonsense, as it has been called several times, I look out on the street and see a lot of exciting things. For instance school children trudging up to get their daily knowledge, which reminds me of some of the fun I had while in school. I also see a beautiful spring afternoon, that makes you feel like you want to go far away from so much commotion and noise—take a hike thru the woods and romp over the countryside, and maybe take a little lunch and sit on a creek bank wishing for a bite, from the biggest fish in the stream. (It must be love or spring fever.—Ed.)

—o—

Powers Conrad has made a new addition to his already attractive store. A new and larger awning has been installed, making a big improvement in appearance and also will keep out some of the hot summer sun, we are bound to have soon.

—o—

Thursday nite would have been a bad time to take the census of Walton. I think there were about 40 people in town after 7:00 p. m.

I heard one fellow say he left Walton at 6:30 and got in Louisville at 7:00. Some people might accuse him of telling an untruth if I did not explain that our time in an hour ahead of Louisville's.

—o—

Don't every play billiards with McElroy. He is a wizard on the billiard table.

—o—

Got a cute card from Bill Green. He is another that seemed to like WRWW. He still wants more letters too. There has been a change of address though, from the one I had last week. It is: 406 School Squadron, Flight No. 4, Barracks 297, Sheppard Field, Texas.

THE TRANSFIGURED CHRIST MEETS HUMAN NEED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:28-43a.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.—Luke 9:43.

Glory and grace go together. Spirituality finds meaning in service. Holiness is faith in action. Every fine emotion should be translated into conduct.

This is the message of our lesson as it presents the transfigured Christ and the disciples, moved beyond intelligent words by His transcendent glory, going forth into the valley to meet the need of demon-ridden humanity.

I. Amazing Glory (vv. 28-36).

To three of the disciples came the privilege of seeing in the mount the outshining of the deity of Christ through the humanity of the flesh in such amazing glory that Peter could think of nothing more wonderful than to prolong the experience by tarrying in the mount.

One could wish that it were possible in presenting this lesson to get over into the thinking of those who read or hear, a proper conception of the glory of our Christ, but words seem to be such weak and insufficient instruments. One would cry out—"Look at Him—the Son of God with the transfigured face—and the light of heavenly glory shining forth in a dazzling whiteness" (literally, like lightning).

If men would only look upon Him, they would see how untrue are those who take from Him His deity, who speak of Him as only a good man or a great teacher. He, our Saviour, who took upon Himself the limitation of our flesh, was and is eternally God.

Significant it is to note that with Him on the mount were Moses and Elijah. The former had died (Deut. 34:5, 6) and the latter had been translated without death (II Kings 2:11), but both were alive, recognizable, intelligent, interested in the redemptive work which Christ was to work out on the cross (v. 31). This definitely denies such false theories as soul-sleep or annihilation at death.

But the vision of glory becomes a means of blessing as we see

II. Amazing Grace (vv. 37-43a).

Like Peter, there are many folk who think that the thing to do is to remain on the mountaintop, just enjoying the vision of glory and the delightful fellowship of Christ and the redeemed. They do not learn such things from Christ or from the Word of God. The next day (v. 37) He and the disciples met the cry of an anguished father whose boy was possessed of a demon and who had found no help (v. 40). Look then upon the one whose unspeakable glory has just been revealed in the mount, who has just had the approval of God the Father (v. 35), who now in amazing grace meets the need of this humble child! There is the grace of God, manifest in the One whom we as Christians profess to follow. Let us like Him bring the glory of God and (in His name) the power of God to bear upon the need of men.

It seems to the writer of these notes that God is waiting to do a new thing in the midst of human suffering and sorrow — working through His disciples. We need first of all to know Him ourselves, as our own Saviour and Lord. Then we need a vision of His glory, flooding our souls and transforming our lives (Rom. 12:1, 2). Then, we must put that glory and that power to work through our lives. The one who follows Christ cannot be satisfied to rejoice in his own salvation and not reach out to win others. He cannot rest in the peace of soul which Christ gives and not put forth his hand to those who struggle in "life's wild restless sea." He must (as Matt. 5:16 puts it) let his light so shine in the darkness that men may find their way to the Father's house and thus glorify the name of God.

God does His work in the world through redeemed men and women. He is always seeking those who, having seen the glory of Christ and with His grace upon them, are ready to be used of the Holy Spirit for His glory. "What the church needs today is not more machinery or better, not new organizations or more novel methods, but men whom the Holy Ghost can use—men of prayer, men mighty in prayer. The Holy Ghost does not flow through methods but through men. He does not come on machinery, but on men. He does not anoint plans, but men" (E. M. Bounds).

Need Compassion

I do not know how any Christian service is to be fruitful if the servant is not primarily baptized in the spirit of a suffering compassion. We can never heal the needs we do not feel. Tearless hearts can never be the heralds of the Passion. We must pity if we would redeem. We must bleed if we would be the ministers of the saving blood.—J. H. Jowett.

Study Your Spray Program For 1942

The following spray service pointers has been assembled and furnished by W. D. Armstrong and W. W. Magill, Horticulturists in the Kentucky Experiment Station. The cooperotion of the departments of Horticulture, Plant Pathology and Entomology of the Kentucky Experiment Station, co-operation of federal agencies, county agents, Kentucky fruit growers make this service possible.

The season has advanced rapidly and caused a rush on the part of growers to get on the dormant sprays ahead of growth.

Spray Suggestions: San Joe Scale increased rapidly ove rmany parts of the state in 1941. Fruit Committee and leaders from Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties at their Covington meeting recently reported that San Joe Scale was increasing and that a thorough dormant spray should be applied to all orchards to check this serious pest.

According to Mr. Magill, many apple and peach growers plan to put on a 3% oil dormant spray this time as is recommended for serious scale attacks instead of the 2% oil that is usually used.

Peaches: Many peach orchards over the state will not bear because their fruit buds were killed by the sub-zero weather of early January. Where this condition exists the dormant spray will be the only one needed during the year for peach trees.

Apples: If the present wet weather continues thru the prebloom and blossom period of apples, the apple growers are almost certain to have serious apple scab trouble on their scabby varieties such as Red Delicious, Ben Davis and Winesap. Study conditions and spray when you think it should be done. Pay special attention to the pre-bloom apple scab spray. See Spray Leaflet.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR

This, the highest decoration awarded by the U. S. Government, can be given to any officer or enlisted man of the United States Army who shall "in action involving actual conflict with an enemy distinguish himself conspicuously by his gallantry and intrepedity at the risk of his life, above and beyond the call to duty." It was first authorized by act of Congress in 1862, and presented "in the name of Congress"; hence the frequent allusion to it as the "Congressional Medal."

The present design was adopted in 1904. A bronze five-pointed star, surrounded by a laurel wreath in green enamel, suspended by two links from a bronze bar bearing the inscription "Valor," and surmounted by an eagle. In the center of the star is the head of Minerva surrounded by the inscription "United State of America." Each ray of the star bears an oak leaf in green enamel. On the reverse of the medal is engraved the name of the recipient. It may be worn with a neck band. The ribbon is of light blue watered silk. Midway between the neckband and on the ribbon supporting the medal are 13 white stars arranged in the form of a triple chevron.

. . . between an unregulated traffic contributing nothing in state, county or local taxes, and Kentucky's $20,000,000 legalized beer industry which has paid more than $7,000,000 in taxes to the state alone during the past seven years!

But occasionally some people, losing sight of this difference, would unwittingly deprive state and county treasuries of this revenue, thereby increasing their own tax burdens as well as inviting a return of the anti-social conditions resulting from unlicensed, unregulated outlets.

Through our Committee's self-regulation program, the Kentucky beer industry is cooperating with law-enforcement officials to preserve these benefits by helping maintain wholesome conditions in licensed retail beer outlets in counties where the sale of beer is legal.

YOU can help by (1) patronizing only law-abiding beer outlets; and (2) reporting any abuses to the proper authorities.

Safety Suggestions

1. Select now, that place in your home which you think safest.

Fix up that place so that in the event of a blackout you can leave a light on there which will not be seen from the outside.

So far as possible, for the purpose of economy, use such shades, blinds, curtains, blankets, screens, paint, paper cardboard or other materials as you already have on hand.

Do not go to the expense of blackening out your entire house, but do not forget that all lights, other than those which are indivisible from the outside, MUST be turned out in case of an air-raid warning or blackout.

2. In case of an air-raid warning or blackout:

(a) Keep calm and avoid hysteria.

(b) If you are at home, after you have complied with the rules on lighting, turn off all lighted gas burners on the gas range and turn off all other appliances which are ordinarily lighted and turned off by the user, such as hand-controlled gas water heaters and individual gas room heaters. Then go to that place which you have selected as the safest.

If explosive bombs drop near-by, LIE DOWN.

Do not turn off any pilot light.

(c) If you are outdoors, seek shelter in the nearest building and avoid the crossing of any street, lane or alley.

Get off the street as quickly as possible.

(d) Explosive bombs falling near a building may shatter window panes; therefore, keep away from windows and avoid flying glass.

Unless absolutely necessary, do not use the telephone. Help to keep the telephone lines clear for emergency calls.

Do not pull the main electric switch in any building.

Radio receiving sets may be left on to receive any instructions which may be broadcast.

In all apartment houses, office and other buildings, elevators should be kept running.

(e) If an incendiary bomb drops on your home or on any building you are helping to protect:

1. Put it out with a fine spray of water. Do not throw a stream or a bucket or a pitcher of water on an incendiary bomb, as that will scatter the fire. If no spray of water is handy use DRY sand.

2. Smother the bomb in DRY sand by putting sand around it and on top of it. Then shovel it into a bucket of sand and carry the bucket outside on the shovel.

3. If no bucket is handy shovel the bomb onto DRY sand, and put DRY sand around and on top of it.

4. Do not use an ordinary chemical fire extinguisher on an incendiary bomb. THIS IS HIGHLY IMPORTANT, as many of the ordinar yfire extinguishers contain chemicals which will generate gases in dangerous amounts on contact with an incendiary bomb.

3. These suggestions are mainly applicable to homes. They should be followed, whenever practicable in other buildings. Those responsible for the operation of large buildings should adopt measures in accordance with the ordinances of your city.

CHRISTIAN LADIES AID SOCIETY MEETS

The Ladies Aid society of the Christian church met Thursday, March 12 for their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Lydia Vallandingham on the LLL Highway. Those who enjoyed a lovely dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Percival; Mrs. Clara Cooke; Mrs. Northcutt; Mrs. Ora Fry; Mrs. Lena Mann; Mrs. Bertha Fisher; Mrs. L. A. Gardiner; Mrs. Irene Bush; Mrs. Marie Pennington; Mrs. Bessie Moore; Mrs. Charles Dorsey, besides Mr. and Mrs. Vallandingham. After the business session, a very appropriate program on "Prayer" under the leadership of Mrs. Bessie Moore was given. Several selections on prayer and what it means to us as we approach the Easter Season was given by various members.

A paper written in honor of the oldest member, Mrs. Polly Pennington, who went "home" a few days before, was given.

She Believed in Prayer

We should not grieve because God called
Mrs. Pennington rest.
We know 'twas what she prayed for,
God answered as he blessed.
We do not feel that she's alone
On that far distant shore,
For husband must have met her
As she passed inside the door.
We think of them as happy now
Companionship regained,
And through our tears we view with hope,
The goal they have attained.
We join with them in memory,
Of happy days long past
An' visualize in Christian faith,
Reunion that will last.
We'll carry on as we've been taught
In God a strong belief,
And through His Son, for every care
A sure and sound relief.
What e'er betides, what e'er our cross,
We'll strive till victory's won
And pray that we shall hear with them,
On that last day "well done."

Some Figures On Past Net Season

We know the basketball season is over and we don't intend to keep "the old boy" revived until next fall, but here are some figures, released by the genial Bearcat scorer, Bob Gordon, we thought might be of interest to you.

In these games the locals scored a total of 1361 points and their opponents registered 759 points. The Cats averaged 45.37 points per game, as compared to their opponents 25.3 points.

Individual scoring record for each of the first ten players, is as follows:

Player—	—Pts.
Simpson	216

FUND RAISING DRIVE FOR KY. CRIPPLED CHILDREN

"The need for the Easter fund raising drive of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children is realized when we consider that one out of every 400 children in Kentucky is born crippled," said Dr. W. Barnett Owen, Louisville, Chairman of the Orthopedic Division of the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission.

The drive for $40.000 ends on Easter Sunday, April 5th. Since its creation in 1924 the Commission has treated 8,619 cases, representing children from every county in the state.

ADMINISTRATION OF RATIONING

This war has introduced a new volunteer to America—the man on your local rationing board. There are more than 21.000 fellows like him through the country—almost enough for two modern Army divisions. His station may be Park Avenue in New York, the ranch country of Montana, the Texas Panhandle.

You may not have seen him, because he works quietly, frequently at night. He doesn't make many speeches. He doesn't wear a uniform. But the public is aware of him because since January 1 he has kept it from getting new automobiles and new tires as usual. It is his job to say who can and who can't, have the less than half a million new cars now on reserve. He decides who is eligible to get new tires now that there are only a few million in stock. He is also Uncle Sam's agent in the rationing of sugar, which brings him in contact with every man, woman and child in the country.

The job these men do to conserve rubber, metals and other vital materials for guns, tanks, ships and planes, could not be done in Washington. It takes a field force, a big one organized to execute plans and instructions almost the day they are made. Such a force is now in operation.

UNION SUNRISE SERVICES AT METHODIST CHURCH

There will be Union Sunrise services at the Walton Methodist Church, Sunday morning at 7:30. Rev. George S. Caroland, pastor of the local Christian Church, will speak. Special music by a Union Chorus. Everyone is cordially invited to this service.

4-H'ers Organize For Salvage Work

Local 4-H club organizations in nine communities have made plans to cooperate in the "Salvage for Victory" work in response to an appeal of the Boone County Agricultural War Board at their meeting Thursday for a greater movement of salvage from rural areas.

These organizations are now active in many communities and work in all committees should be under way before the end of this week, according to Franklin Frazier, Assistant County Agent.

4-H leaders plan to use either of two general methods in organizing this salvage work. Most clubs prefer the plan of having a salvage chairman on each school bus whose duty will be to secure information as to scrap materials available along the route followed by that bus. This information will then be given to 4-H Victory committees of the local club that will find junk dealers who will make farm visits to collect the scrap materials.

Salvage stations will also be maintained by some 4-H organizations.

Farmers who wish to dispose of scrap metal, paper, rags, old rubber tires, etc. are urged to sell it direct to junk dealers or contact their local 4-H organizations for complete plans as to how it may be removed.

KY. TO OBSERVE ARMY DAY APR. 6

Blaring bands, marching men and patriotic speeches will mark Kentucky's observance of Army Day, April 6, J. J. Greenleaf, Director of the State Defense Council, announced as he coordinated plans to celebrate the day set aside to honor the Nation's land fighting forces.

Proclamations urging citizens to participate in the celebration of Army Day have been issued by President Roosevelt and Governor Keen Johnson.

Director Greenleaf's plan for Kentucky calls for cooperation between each local Defense Council and all clubs, chambers of commerce, state guard units, veterans' organizations and all such groups in any community for participation in the parades and other ceremonies.

Mayors and school officials have been urged to declare a half holiday for the occasion and it has been suggested the parades be held in the early afternoon.

BEARCATS ENTERTAINED TUESDAY EVENING

The Bearcat basketball team was entertained Tuesday evening at a dinner given at Farris' Restaurant. The menu consisted of salad, steak French fried potatoes, peas, Spanish rice, tea, coffee, vanilla ice cream with strawberries.

Those present were Harry D. Mayhugh; Stanley McElroy; Leon Pennington; Truett DeMoisey; C. Ryan; Charles Holder; Lawrence Welsh; Paul Simpson; Russell Groger; James O. Dudgeon and Jess W. Thornton, managers; Coach Lewis Shields; Bob Gordon; Desha McElroy; Walter F. Coop, Supt.; Charles Carlisle; Florian Lusby; Al Warner; J. B. Johnson, and James R. Allen.

Those serving the meal were Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeMoisey, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Farris, Mrs. James R. Allen and Mrs. Al Warner.

Coach Shields acted as toastmaster, and each one presented was asked to say a few words, and all responded.

The Seniors, who leave the Cats this year, are Simpson, Groger, Pennington, Clifford Ryan and Stanley McElroy.

At the conclusion Coach Shields brought up the question of having a baseball team. With the proper cooperation from citizens, the boys should be able to realize their ambition.

Friends of Miss Thelma Moore are glad to know she is improving at home after spending some time in St. Elizabeth Hospital, with the flu.

GEORGE P. TILLETT PASSES MARCH 27th

Funeral services for George P. Tillett, Independence Road, Kenton County, who died last Friday at his home after a long illness, were held Monday at 2:30 p. m. from the Allison & Rose funeral home, Covington. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Mr. Tillett, 54, operated White Towers Inn, Kenton County, and was formerly with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, in the car department.

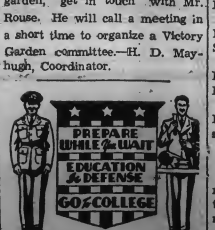
Sugar Sales Are To Be Suspended

Sugar sales in the United States will be suspended for one week beginning at midnight, April 27, as a preliminary to the rationing program. Sugar will go off the market the day that registration of industrial and commercial consumers is started. These consumers will register April 28 and 29 in all the high schools as directed by Supt. D. H. Norris in the county high schools and Supt. W. F. Coop in the high school of Walton-Verona school district. All wholesalers, retailers, restaurants, hotels, lunchrooms, etc., must register during these two days.

Sale of sugar will be resumed May 5, the second day of the four-day period of registration for individual consumers. Individual consumers will register May, 4, 5, 6 and 7 in the elementary schools of Boone County. All individual users of sugar must register during these four days. Only persons living in Boone County will be permitted to register in one of the elementary schools, except persons traveling and who are not able to reach their home county.

The housewife or head of the household or any person 18 years old may register for the entire family. The separate application for each and every member of a Family Unit must be made by one, and only one, adult member of such Family Unit. However, any married person under 18 may register as a Family Unit.

The registrant must declare the amount of sugar the family has on hand. Stamps will be torn from your Rationing War Books representing amounts in excess of two pounds per person.. Any family having sugar in excess of 11 lbs. per person in possession must register with the Boone County Rationing Board at Walton.



The person who registers for the entire Family Unit must know full name, height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair and age of each member of the family, since each member of the family must have a War Ration Book.

This sugar rationing program will serve as a "basic registration" for all future rationing, including gasoline and other items that may have to be conserved.—Boone County Rationing Board, No. 8, R. E. Brugh, Chairman.

Victory Garden Chairman Named

The Walton-Verona Civilian Defense Council has appointed W. O. Rouse as chairman of the Victory Garden committee. He will obtain garden space for those who would like to raise a garden and do not have space. He will also advise you what to plant and how to tend your garden. How to get the most from your land.

All those who intend to raise a garden, get in touch with Mr. Rouse. He will call a meeting in a short time to organize a Victory Garden committee.—H. D. Mayhugh, Coordinator.

Bearcats Want To Play Baseball

After a successful basketball campaign, and with the coming of Spring, the Bearcats desire to have a baseball team. Last year they had a team, and a fair one, winning one, tying one and losing two games. This shows that the boys have good possibilities, although they are not able to get but little practice because of the small lot behind the school. They can't get hitting practice because the field in small and rough, and fielding practice is somewhat of an impossibility for both infield and outfield.

The Cats have a fine battery and the rest of the squad should be well rounded. All the boys want is the cooperation of the school and a chance for them to get practice together. The boys want to participate against other schools in this section.

We think this is a good idea; how about you? Some day we may pay to see the boys perform in the Big League. Come on citizens and school authorities, give the boys this opportunity and they will make us proud to say that the Bearcat baseball team is from Walton, and composed of Our Boys.

We urge you all to help the boys gain this coveted desire and to play for the school and town. This is not asking too much, so why not help these young men play ball.—Pub. Com.

FIRST TO COMPLETE 4-H CLUB PROJECT

Tommy Atha. 12 year old boy from the Hamilton 4-H Club, is the first club member in Boone County to complete a project this year. Not long ago Tommy sent the 200 pound pig he had raised as a 4-H club project to market and with proceeds from this sale he purchased a $25 Savings Bond and had sufficient money left to buy another pig.

When Tommy started his swine project last fall the pig weighed only 25 pounds. To get it home, he had to bring it a distance of 18 miles, so he put it in a sack and held it on his lap; but added he was "plenty tired" when he got there. Records young Atha kept show the pig gained an average of 1½ pounds per day over a feeding period of 120 days.

LOCAL YOUTH NOW IN AUSTRALIA

Mr. and Mrs. John Gault received a cablegram Tuesday morning about 2 o'clock, from their son Johnny, who is in the Air Corps of the U. S. Army. It read, "Arrived in Australia safely, well and happy. Don't worry, will write soon."

Johnny's many friends, as well as his parents and relatives, are pleased to learn that he is OK.

REMEMBER OUR BOYS

Do we think when we lay on our beds of pain
Of our poor Soldier boys in the War;
Why they're probably fighting right out in the rain
Away from their homes so far.
We fail to be thankful for blessings here
For our homes and our comfortable beds;
We don't even realize their terrible fear
When a plane goes over their heads.
"Remember Pearl Harbor," we hear folks say,
Oh, yes, I know that we should;
But our Soldiers and Leaders need us to pray,
I know they'd be glad if we would.
So don't let us grumble when they ration us here,
Let's be willing to do what we can;
For we'll win this War and have nothing to fear,
How thankful we'll be for each man.

4-H members, leaders and parents in every State are making plans for National 4- HMobilization Week, April 5-11, during which effort shall be concentrated on strengthening the National 4-H program.

President Roosevelt commended the work of 1.500,000 4-H members in the United States for their worthwhile accomplishments, particularly in National Defense, and asked 4-H'ers to do their part in maintaining our Nation as a grent democracy. Secretary Wickard said only recently that 4-H members have a most important and strategic part in meeting war time needs.

War time needs met through 4-H organizations not only build future leaders, but also put steam into the production of food and fiber on the Rural Front.

Boone County Clubs to do their part in strengthening the National organization during National 4-H Mobilization Week will secure additional members, sponsor special 4-H discussions and develop even better community organizations.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

A COUPLE of the Washington newspaper correspondents were talking about the war the other day — nothing specific — just "the mess we're in" as one of them put it.

After some lamenting, some dragging over the coals, and lots of theories about what's wrong, one of the boys with his ear to the ground picked up a well-known Washington daily.

News was depressing — hard to be a Pollyanna about, everyone had to admit. But there were bright spots — "straws in the wind," our friend called them. Here are a few he found in that one paper.

An expanded program of aluminum production was announced by William L. Batt, head of the materials division of the War Production Board. The program is scheduled to reach an annual production of more than 2,500,000,000 pounds — enough aluminum to build 60,000 airplanes this year and 125,000 planes next year —

Within a single year one of the nation's small-arms manufacturers is scheduling production so that it can turn out more small-arms ammunition than was produced by all manufacturers in the United States throughout the four years of the World War —

A large automobile company, converted to the production of war materials, built three new plants to make aircraft engines. The number of workers in these new plants will exceed the total employment of the company's entire peacetime staff —

Another well-known manufacturer announced a plan for giving employees defense bonds and stamps for workable suggestions. Any suggestion dealing with increasing production on the employee's own job, or for improving quality, saving material, reducing waste, or improving working conditions generally are welcome.

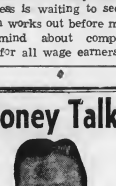
ANOTHER happy side to the news — Congressmen report that the home folks are coming through in the present crisis.

For example, one representative reported that a whole city was rearranging its life to cut down transportation waste. In order to conserve tires and to ease bus transportation, which is absolutely essential for war workers, schools and stores will vary opening and closing hours, factories will stagger their shifts, and pay days will be spread throughout the week.

Another member of Congress lauds the resourcefulness of management as evidenced by the tough problems they tackled and solved in changing over from peacetime to war production. He comes from an industrial region which until recently housed an essentially light metal working industry, and is now working on the production of heavy goods.

ODDS and ENDS: An unpublicized ruling of the Treasury Department unobtrusively upset 150 years of international law. Diplomats must now pay U. S. taxes, like the excises on liquor, jewelry, etc., and the income tax on income derived within this country. Salaries from home are not touched.

PUBLIC interest in the men who make our laws led to an unofficial survey of who did what for a living before coming to the Capitol.



Results show that among the members of Congress 310 are attorneys, 50 are businessmen, 34 are farmers, 34 are editors, 27 are real estate and insurance men, 17 are professors and teachers, 14 are doctors and dentists, 10 are investment and banking men, 5 are engineers and 14 have devoted their careers to public service.

THE Department of Agriculture reports that farmers are using their current larger incomes to reduce their farm mortgage debts. The statement is based on payments on principal to Federal land banks.

INDUSTRY is working hand-in-hand with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau on the voluntary payroll allotment plan for selling war savings bonds. Of the employers who have more than 500 workers, approximately 70% have already signed up. The plan provides for purchase by employees of savings bonds on a weekly basis.

Congress is waiting to see how this plan works out before making up its mind about compulsory savings for all wage earners.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Americans have decided by an overwhelming majority to support all-out war effort This may mean drafting men into industry as well as into the armed forces, but one thing we all know, all-out war effort will mean sacrifice on the part of everyone.

Up to the present time many Americans have made few sacrifices. In fact, many people were more prosperous in 1941, due to war activities, than they have been for years. The 1941 national income, highest in our history, amounted to 94.5 billion dollars which was 22% over 1940. Wages and salaries paid to American workmen amounted to 61.2 billion dollars which was 25% above the 1940 figure. The greatest amount of this increase can be traced directly to Government spending. Farm income in 1941 was the highest for any year since 1919. Do these figures look like sacrifice?

Workers and farmers are still using the war to better their positions. Labor is right now asking for a dollar-a-day increase in many of our key war industries and is pressing our Government to decide that industry should grant this increase. On the Pacific Coast the Bethlehem Company shipbuilding workers balked at a ten-hour day, even though the company offered them time-and-a-half for the two extra hours and a 10% bonus.

The powerful farm bloc in Congress is demanding legislation which will require the Government to hold the cotton, corn and wheat which it purchased when prices were low. This bloc is demanding that nothing be done which will prevent the rise in the price of farm products.

Caught in the middle of this political squeeze play on the part of labor and the farmer are the middle class people (white collar workers, professional workers, etc.) whose incomes have risen but little, but whose living costs and taxes have risen considerably Also affected are business organizations, large and small, which are faced with price ceilings, higher operating costs, and rising taxes. Likewise caught in this squeeze play are the automobile distributors, tire dealers, etc., who have been called upon to sacrifice their products for the war effort.

All-out war effort calls for sacrifice on the part of everyone—labor, the farmer, and industry. Before long, the Government must face this fact and regulate all prices and all wages, or certain powerful pressure groups will be able to better their conditions at the expense of other groups. We can ill afford to have this happen at this critical time.

SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

A PLEA FOR THE PRODIGAL GIRL

I have read of the death of the martyrs;
The story of Peter and Paul;
The story of Luther and Calvin—
I respect and honor them all;
And also old Thomas and Stephen,
Honest and faithful men,
And I've head the sweet story of Jesus
And expect to read it again;
I've read of the Good Samaritan,
Of charity's lesson begun,
And my heart goes out in great pity
To the wayward prodigal son.
All are glad to welcome him;
So quick to forget and forgive,
It makes no difference what he has done,
If he only comes back to live;
They have always prayed for the prodigal son,
Since ever the world begun;
The joy, the glory, forgiveness,
Of the returning, wayward son,
But poets seem to forget to write
Of the saddest thing in the world.
They are not so eager to welcome back
The poor little prodigal girl.
Just why she has turned out crooked—
She happened to find the right one,
Who had the slick tongue of a Judas—
And that was your prodigal son;
Though the boy is held up and forgiven,
It is common all over the world,
That you scornfully point out for gossip
The poor little prodigal girl;
There is nothing so truly pathetic
As the life of the maidens who fall
And if you search down to the bottom
You will find man the cause of it all.
But he is led back in society,
And nursed with the tenderest care,
Held up to the world as a hero,
And mentioned in fervent prayer;
While she is cast out from her loved ones,
Out in the hard, cold world,
And everyone points out and scorns her.
The poor little prodigal girl.
Now, as has been said quite often
And we will repeat it again—
That "the lowest of fallen women
Are better than some of the men."

NICHOLSON

"I know that my Redeemer liveth."

The Easter message brings brightest hopes for the world's darkness. It is the anniversary of the day on which the Savior brought life and immortality to light. The grave is not the end for Christians, but the gateway into a new and better world. Death is not the lengthening of the shadows at the end of the day, but the brightening of the horizon, which breaks into a glorious dawn. We must all meet it and lie down at last within its embrace. So live that we may not shrink from it in terror, but meet it with souls unafraid. The radiance that streams from His open tomb fills all the world with light and even though through the day we have walked with Him in the darkness, "at evening time it shall be light." "Because I live, ye shall live also."

True and lasting joy is to be found only in love for God, and in service to fellow beings.

Are We Christians?

Are we, the people of this nation known the world over as Christian America, really Christian? Or, is it simply a name that the pioneer fathers gained for the country and that in reality has been lost long ago? If the latter be so, it is time we begun to live up to our name.

We who have professed the name of Christ and who have come into the membership of some organized church are supposed to be Christ-like, and to lead others about us to fellow Christ. Are we? The first commandment is "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."—Ex. 20:3. Yet this nation has, as we see it, gone pleasure mad and speed crazy, and anything goes for a little money. We make gods of pleasure, we make gods of money and things money will buy. We hear so much about this machine age. Machines are a blessing in a way but at the same time a curse. Machines take the place of men in industry and cause man, God's chosen product, to suffer therefrom. Pleasure is more sought after than God. Why, for the past few weeks all that we have been able to hear in the way of conversation has been basketball. One hundred are more tickets have been purchased for the Louisville tournament games. Just think of the money that calls for, taking it entirely out of the community. And the tickets are the small part, there's the transportation, food, lodging for some, and any sundries that may be had, (the tires that were used). Hundreds of dollars no doubt right out of the local community for pleasure.

How many, I ask, could have been recruited for a religious rally of any nature? How much, I ask you, could have been raised for the cause of Christ in the same locality. Matt. :21, "For where your treasure is there will your heart be also." These pleasures and others are alright if not over indulged in. There is no objection to a basketball game in itself, but if done to excess there is the wrong. I Cor. 9:25, "And every man that striveth for the mastery is TEMPERATE IN ALL THINGS." Beware lest we put them before Christ and his kingdom work. We who have professed Christ, let him be our God and no other gods before him, let others see the Christ through us. Jesus said, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."—Matt. 5:16. What did Christ do? What examples did he give? In Matt. 4:17 we read, "From that time Jesus began to teach and to say, 'Repent for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand'." Who knows but that the Kingdom of Heaven, or the judgment may be very near at hand with the condition the world has thrown itself into at the present time. Are we, we who have professed to be Christian, crying out to our fellowmen who are unsaved "REPENT," or are we just going along seeking after the world as are they, treading questionable paths and going to unholy places?

When Jesus was tempted of Satan he said, "Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve'."—Matt. 4:10. He begun his work of letting his light shine by calling others to his way. Matt. 4:19, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." Then when they had left all and followed him he commanded them to let their light shine. When we have truly repented of our sins and layed them all on Jesus we want to tell others the story and lead them to the Savior. Have we truly repented? Are we fishing for men? Are the works that we do glorifying the Father? Are we doing the work of His Kingdom or is our time monopolied by other things, such as lodges, clubs, school affairs, pleasure, P.-T. A. or what not? These things are good in their place, some of them are very necessary, but must not cause us to neglect the work of the kingdom. They must not take precedence of Missionary circle meetings, of youth religious meetings, of official board meetings of the churches, of prayer meetings, of choir practices, of Sunday School class meetings, or of Sunday School and Church services. Now, if we are truly Christian they will not. Do they in your life? In mine? Let us study ourselves. Are we Christian? Does God's Kingdom work have first place in our service, and in our hearts? When any of the meetings of the church and other meetings not of the church fall on the exact time schedule which one do you attend? Jesus said "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business."—Luke 2:49 Do we run all week to various affairs then take Sunday morning to rest at home and neglect our Christ? Heb. 2:3, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him." Are we Christlike? Are we about our Father's business?

Sometimes we say "I may not do as much as some but I pay enough to make up for it." Matt. 6:1, "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them. other wise ye have no reward of your Father which is in Heaven." We cannot buy our way into God's favor. Eph. 2:8-9, "For by grace are ye saved thru faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast." Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth but lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven, for where your treasure is there will your heart be also. Matt. 6:19-20 "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Matt. 6:33. Do we seek God's Kingdom first or just when there is nothing else especially to do? We are here to serve our fellowmen. Matt. 26:26 "Who so ever will be great among you, let him be your minister, who so ever will be chief among you, let him be your servant." Remember the example of Christ. He took a towel and water and washed the feet of his dispicles. The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many. Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith to provoke unto love and to good works. Gal. 6:1, "If a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." Heb. 10:31, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Heb. 10:39, "But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition, but of them that believe unto the saving of the soul."

These are some of the teachings we find in the scripture of Jesus and his apostles, and in the light of these, again I ask "Are we Christian?"

"Be ye not equally yoked together with unbelievers, for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness.

"Wherefore come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord."

"Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

"Be not carried about with divers doctrines for it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace."

"Let brotherly love continue."

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever."

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotton son that who-so-ever believeth on Him might not perish but have everlasting life."

Let us be Christ-like, Christian. Let us start a revival sweeping this way. Let it begin in us, not you, not he or she, but in us, in me. Then and only then can we expect God to look on our nation with favor and lend it help in these distressing days.

(Signed) A Layman.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

I was an uninvited but very welcome visitor in the home of the J. B. Johnsons recently, and was well entertained too. Mrs. Olive has a swell voice and can play a piano quite well, too. I think she is a victim of hidden talent.

—o—

Mrs. Katy Welsh said she was sure her boys had a good time at the tournament, and she would have liked to have gone too, but it was impossible for her to do so. Although she paid dearly for Lawrence's and Nick's good time by laundring 12 shirts for the two of them, she was glad to do it—because she knew it represented a good time for them.

—o—

I dare any one to ask Helen Gillespie where she got that poison oak on her neck—or is it poison oak?

—o—

I know of one admirer of mine, and I'm sorry to say that I do not know her personally, but I know she must be one swell person. She told my good friend, Frank DeMoisey, that she liked WRWW so well, that she had clipped every one of them and started a scrap book with them. I would like to see it 20 years from now. I'm sure you all know who I am referring to—she is "Aunt Mary" Fields of Ludlow, who is 86 years old.

—o—

While I was walkin' the other night. I also stopped at the home of Rollie D. Farris ("D" for dropp) an dlistened to his youngest daughter, Emma Lou, strike out a few tunes on the ivory. She is pretty good, too. If she continues to improve in her next ten years as she has the first ten, she will make Duchin look like an amateur.

—o—

Don't let those dark glasses or that patch on good-natured Nick Welsh's eyes mislead you. Nick has not been "battling" like you might think. He caught a terrible cold on his return trip from Louisville, and it settled in both eyes. He's been having a tough time too.

—o—

I thought I would get a terrible tongue lashing from Mrs. Lucy Breeden last week—but Mrs. Lucy and I are the best of friends now. I have found out one thing about her—that she can take it when she HAS to.

—o—

I was sorry I had to turn down a perfectly swell invitation to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allphin over in Ft. Thomas the other night—but it came at a very bad time for me. It was Wednesday night, and that being publication night for your County newspaper, it is a bad time for me to try to get off. But I have a standing invitation now, so I guess I will go at my earliest convenience, which I hope will be real soon.

—o—

Walton loses another swell guy when Jimmie Bolington, night man at the Walton Garage, and assistant Cop, goes to Erlanger to work with the Dixie Traction Co. Jim has the best wishes of this column.

—o—

WRWW scores again! I know of eight letters written to Bill Green in one night, and it made such an impression on Blanche, she went to see him. I'll bet Willie liked that visit better than a letter from her—but who wouldn't?

—o—

Flowers this week to to Mrs. Mary Stephens, who transformed her living room into a small, but clean and cozy dance floor, to try and keep that younger high school gang out of so much mischief.

—o—

Pay no attention to the Ed's note at the bottom of one of my articles last week. Malcolm saw a chance to fix me up and he took advantage of it. There is no way that I can get even with him though, as he is as strict with his censorship as the German News Agency.

—o—

I always believed Ella Mae Chambers was still just a kid, but now I am super-sure of it—after hearing about her falling out of bed. You are supposed to know better than that at the age of 4, if I remember correctly.

—o—

It seems as though everyone wants me to put something about myself in my own column. That doesn't make sense, but if anyone has any suggestions as to what to use, I will be glad to consider it.

—o—

I don't know if it is love or spring fever that our Editor has, but it is something—and I do mean something bad. He came to work Monday noon without his glasses, something that doesn't happen to a person who is accustomed to wearing them, unless there is something wrong. P. S. I bet she has red hair.

—o—

Shhhh . . . this is a secret, Walker is going home, to Paducah, Easter. But don't worry girls, I'll be back Monday.

This Week On The Home Front

Donald M. Nelson's high-speed war production drive was in full swing during the last week. Day by day war production is accelerated. The faster the war factories hum the more materials they demand.

Priority preference orders go out from Washington diverting materials from the Home Front to the Battle Front. Then come scarcities at home. With scarcity, rationing and limitation orders. Prices go up in some scarce lines. Government's answer to that is price ceilings. This is a thumbnail explanation of every item of news in this column.

—o—

Management and Labor were called together in 31 regional meetings by Mr. Nelson. They're checking their pistols of old arguments at the gates of the war production plants, and joining in an all-out production battle against the Axis.

—o—

Mr. Nelson summed up his official attitude on the management and labor question in remarks to a labor delegation:

"I am interested these days in just one thing—getting the most war production we can possibly get, and getting it in the shortest space of time. As far as I am concerned, everything else is secondary to that . . .

"So let's get down to cases and talk frankly about this situation. We're going to see to it that nobody pushes you around—but we're going to see to it that Labor doesn't push anyone around either. There's a small number of short-sighted employers at one end of the line—there's a small number of short-sighted labor folks at the other end of the line—I don't propose to see either group taking advantage of this situation."

—o—

Last week recorded the first punitive action by the War Production Board against a violator of priorities regulations. To get special priority rating for defense housing materials, builders must agree to sell the houses only to defense workers and for not more than $6,000 each. The bard found that the Stearne-Mishkin Co., of Washington, D. C., after getting priority assistance, sold houses to non-defense workers and for prices up to $7,750. For sixty days, the company can obtain no building materials, and can get back into the building business only after it has modified its existing sale contracts to meet the $6,000 maximum price, made restriction to purchasers of the excess charged, and advertised all its buildings at not more than $6,000. Matthew G. Lepley, architect, is affected by the order.

—o—

An estimated 500 pounds of scrap metal will be found on every farm in the United States. Problem is moving it. WPA Bureau of enlisted by the WPB Bureau of Industrial Conservation to help State Salvage Committees and Department of Agriculture County War Boards to furnish labor and trucks when needed. There are 6,500,000 farms in America. Much scrap has been moved off, but it is believed that one to two and one half million tons of metal remain, because of transportation difficulties.

—o—

Office of Price Administration announced reduction of $5 a ton for meat scraps and $6 a ton for digester tankage used for blending balanced rations for hogs and poultry. Ceiling prices on fish meal are continued. OPA set a price schedule on animal product feeds on January 20, at January 17 levels, to check an advance of 20 per cent following outbreak of the war.

In the broadest action yet taken to combat price inflation the OPA set maximum retail prices on 7 major items of household appliances and typewriters. The order includes refrigerators, radios, vacuum cleaners, ironing machines, phonographs, heating and cooking stoves and ranges, manufacturer of which has been either drastically curtailed or stopped. The order was issued because of sharp price increases. "Enforced scarcity will not be permitted to dictate the price of any article subject to OPA control, now or in the future," Acting Price Administrator John E. Hamm said. Dealers must post the OPA prices conspicuously in their stores, and cleaners sold from door to door, must bear an OPA price label.

—o—

Price ceiling on cigarets fixed by OPA on December 30 is ordered continued following investigation of the books of eight companies which make 95 per cent of all cigarets manufactured in this country. Only an increase in federal taxes on the "coffin nails" will justify a change upward. The OPA investigators found that the companies' net incomes averaging 21 per cent of book value of invested capital, was such that there would be no excuse for them to depress prices paid tobacco growers.

—o—

WPB has ordered immediate curtailment of manufacture of all kinds of portable electric lamps and shades to 70 per cent of 1940 production between now and April 30, and to 60 per cent, beginning May 1. Iron and steel are only metals permitted in manufacture now.

—o—

OPA compiled figures which showed that during the first three months of the year passenger cars got only 5 per cent as many tires as they did during the period of last year.

—o—

City officials are asked not to take bids on fire fighting equipment until the city has received its defense rating for such apparatus from WPB Safety and Technical Equipment Branch.

—o—

For the next three months safety razor manufacture is limited to 70% of the 1940 monthly average. Blade and straight razor production is held to the 1940 average. Electrics are not included in the order. They'll be next.

—o—

Many recent purchases of automobiles are having difficulty obtaining new license plates. To clear this up, OPA has authorized local rationing boards to issue clearance statements if the car: (1) was acquired before 6 p. m., January 1, but not registered; (2) acquired by private sale from one individual who is not a dealer, to another; (3) acquired by written authorization of OPA, WPB or OPM; (4) owned by one person and previously registered in the name of another, by showing proof of ownership.

—o—

No metal except iron and steel can now go into metal household furniture, the War Production Board ordered.

HEBRON HOMEMAKERS HOLD MARCH MEETING

The meeting of the Hebron Homemakers was held at the Jr. Order Hall on March 11. Everyone joined in singing "America" and reading the "Collect." The minutes of the last meeting were read and there was one correction made, Mrs. Lorena Clore has nearly $3 on hand from a raffle held at an earlier date. The treasurer's report was read and approved.

Under new business, the president discussed transportation to and from the meetings. Mrs. Frank Wohrley invited the club to meet at her home for the next meeting. The hostesses will be Mrs. Virginia Pope, Sue Rogers, Hilda Hogan and Katherine Peel.

Mrs. Moore discussed the lessons for the coming year, explaining the Variety program, and the members voted to adopt the new Variety program. Mrs. Stella Nichols, foods leader, handed out enrollment cards for the Live-at-Home program. The meeting was then dismissed for lunch.

Mrs. Moore told of the Spring meeting. The roll call "Interesting Facts about Kentucky" was answered by 14 members. We had as our guest for the day, Mrs. Ratcliff.

Mrs. Sue Rogers, the reading chairman, reported that the Hebron club had read the most of any club in the county.

After some discussion, it was decided that as a means of refilling our treasury, each meeting as we pay our dues, we add a donation.

The clothing leaders, Mrs. Norma Aylor and Virgini Pope, gave a very interesting and instructive lesson. The meeting was adjourned after a very interesting day.—Katherine Peel, Sec'y

LESSON

Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for April 5

CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH (EASTER)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:24-27; I Corinthians 15:50-58.

GOLDEN TEXT—But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 15:57.

V for Victory! By that sign have many peoples indicated their confidence in a victory to come. It is well to have a victorious outlook, but it is even better to be able to look back to victory already attained. That is just what we are able to do as we consider man's great and final enemy—death. That victory has been won on behalf of all who believe, by the risen Christ of whom we think in a special way on this Easter day.

He is the Lord of the living, not of the dead; those who, even though they may have left this world, have only laid aside the corruptible body for the incorruptible. They are victorious, even as we are, over death.

I. Living, Not Dead (Mark 12:24-27).

The Sadducees, a rationalistic sect of Christ's day, denied the resurrection, and so they were much distressed by His plain teaching of that truth. They therefore devised an intricate hypothetical case (see Mark 12:18-22) and sought to set a trap for Him. But they only caught themselves, for He pointed out to them and to the people that what was wrong with them was that they did not understand the Scriptures nor the power of God.

That is precisely what is wrong with the modernists of our day—they misinterpret God's Word, and they deny His power.

Then Jesus turned to them and in place of their fantastic "supposing" story He spoke of three real characters from the books of Moses which they taught. He said that God still calls Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because though they had long been in their graves, they were still alive. God's fellowship with His people is not merely for the brief life span of this earth, but for eternity. That fact, of course, carries with it the truth of the resurrection.

II. Incorruptible, Not Corruptible (I Cor. 15:50-54).

Man knows that his earthly body is marked for decay and death. That fact is written in its very members. He also knows that such a body would be entirely inappropriate for heaven—for eternity. Is he then barred from God's eternal kingdom? No, indeed, for there is to be a glorious change — the corruptible shall put on incorruptibility.

Whether we shall tarry until Jesus comes and be transformed without dying, or whether we shall await His coming for a time among those who sleep, there will come that trumpet sound, and in the twinkling of an eye we shall be clothed upon with incorruptible bodies like unto His glorious resurrection body (Phil. 3:21). There we have an assurance of victory already won on our behalf, which can and does strengthen our souls against the trials and sorrows of life.

III. Victorious, Not Defeated (I Cor. 15:55-58).

When Satan after a long struggle finally had Christ's body laid away in the tomb, he thought he had the victory, but just then came his great hour of defeat.

"Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Death could not hold its prey," for it sought to hold one stronger than itself—the Lord of Life Himself. He had broken the bonds of sin by His sacrifice on Calvary; and since it was sin (the violation of the law) which brought death in the first place (Gen. 2:17; 3:17-19), there was now a complete victory over both sin and death.

The one who knows Christ need no longer fear death. For him it is not a leap into the dark, or going as a trembling wayfarer into an unknown land. President John Quincy Adams was right when, aged and frail, he replied to a question as to his welfare: "Quite well, thank you. The house in which I live is tottering and trembling, and I may soon have to move out, but I am quite well." He was ready for the departure into a better land and a better body.

Such a hope has a splendid practical application, which Paul stresses in verse 58. With victorious assurance the believer stands steadfast and unmovable at the center of life, while always abounding in the joys and duties which come at its circumference. Like the wheel which can be useful only as its center is established and steady, so man can serve the Lord and enjoy a satisfying life only as he has the steadfastness of which Paul here speaks.

We trust that it is your possession by faith in Christ. If not, make it so on this resurrection Sunday!

— OBITUARY —

In the passing on March 24th of Mrs. Mary Maddin, Boone County has lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens. Mrs. Maddin, whose maiden name was Code, was born more than 86 years ago in Cincinnati, of parents who were married in Ireland. When she was a small child her parents brought her to a farm near Verona, and she spent the remainder of her long life in that vicinity. February 20, 1875 she was united in marriage to the late Richard J. Maddin, in the little Church of St. Patrick. It was in the same church that all of her children were baptized and where the last sad rites for her were held. Seven children came to bless the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maddin, five of whom survive her: two sons, Geo. Maddin of Union and P. J. Maddin of Beaver Lick, and three daughters, Mrs. J. T. Dempsey of Ludlow, Mrs. Thos. Ryan of Verona, and Mrs. Russell Ryan of Walton. She also leaves a brother, Pat Code of Walton.

Her two supreme interests in life were her church and her family. She never let anything interfere with the practice of her religion, and her sorrowing children have the great consolation of knowing that she is now enjoying the reward of a life well spent in the service of God.

Besides being a model of all motherly virtues, Mrs. Maddin always found time to lend a helping hand to anyone who was in trouble or sorrow. She spent many a night taking care of a sick friend or neighbor. She always had a sweet, gentle smile for everyone and although God has chosen to take her to live with Him, the beautiful memory of her life will always remain in the hearts of all who knew her.

The large number of relatives and friends who gathered to attend the Requiem High Mass, celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. John T. Jobst, was ample evidence of the esteem in which she was held. Interment in the new St. Patrick cemetery.

The following poem was written two years ago by a loving granddaughter of Mrs. Maddin:

My Grandmother

That's my Grandmother's picture on the wall.
It looks so very real. I think of all
The many pictures that I've ever seen
I like it best. I know it doesn't mean
So much to you. But look at it again.
It is her wedding picture, taken when She was but twenty. She had just become
The wife of him who never would succumb
To any wrong, who always would inspire
Her and her children with a strong desire
To do God's will. You see how proud she is
Of him, how proud and glad that she is his Beloved partner. Did you notice, too,
The serious look upon her face, the blue
But darker-looking eyes, that seem to see
A life of hardship stretching endlessly
Before her; yet she's not a bit afraid.
She seems to know the price that must be paid
Before she rears, for God and happiness,
Her children. Yet a certain fearlessness
Shines plainly from those bright, though pensive eyes;
And anyone who sees her can surmise
That she will do her chosen work as well
As anyone could do it. Who can tell
How many thousand times since then she's failed,
And even when another would have quailed
And given up, she tried again and won?
She always finished what she had begun.
And how, when she is near the close of life,
Her eyes are just as fearless. Yes, the strife
She has endured through all the long hard years
Has made them sadder; but you see no tears.
Perhaps, when she sits quilting, all alone,
She thinks of all the trouble she has known,
And all the gladness, too, and all the fun.
I wonder if she thinks of what she's done
For all her children, teaching them to be
As brave and fearless, yes, and kind as she Herself has always been. She knows that two
Are now in heaven, that their joy is due
Largely to her efforts, that the rest
Are good and kind and faithful, and are blest
With happy homes. Perhaps they've not much wealth,
But, as she would say, they have their health,
They're true to their religion, and are known
And much esteemed by all. Each one has shown
That her unselfish work was not in vain.
For all eternity there will remain
The fruit of her endeavors. Till the end
Of time her influence will help amend
The evils of the world; and every son
And daughter she has reared, each work begun
By her, will be the source of many more
Good works; and though she has to die before
She sees what she accomplished, still I know
She feels that when God calls her, she can show
Him many works that helped to give Him glory.
I fear I'm tiring you with my story,
And so, although I'd like to tell you more,
I'll end this now; but may I say before
I do, that she whose picture this is, trod
Always the path that leads up to her God.

A PENNY for a CHICK'S LIFE!
Many thousands of chicks die every year because they do not get a properly balanced starting feed. If a chick's life is worth one extra penny to you—you can afford to feed the best. For one penny per chick above the cost of an inadequate feed is all it costs to feed Purina Startena. And that extra penny may mean the difference between life and death to your chicks.
We sell Purina Chick Startena and can also fill your other chick-raising needs.

BUNGALOW INTO COLONIAL

BEFORE

The so-called "bungalow" above has many desirable features, none of which are visible from the outside. Many people who built or bought homes of this type have now completed their time payments and are wondering what can be done to make their homes look a little more in keeping with 1941 design. The house below is one suggestion.

Elimination of the ugly, front stoop; substitution of two dormers for one, new windows, and a new front entrance constitute many but not necessarily expensive modernization operations. Changing the roof pitch would be more expensive, but the result, like the charming Colonial home below, is well worth the cost and effort.

AFTER

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!
Modern life with its constant hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion, alcohol, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.
After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.
Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbances sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

"WELL, I ALWAYS STAY AT THE BROWN"
The first guest ever to register at The Brown Hotel in Louisville was England's great ex-Premier, Mr. Lloyd George. From that day to this, The Brown has been Louisville's favorite hotel for busy men who want the comforts of home when they travel.
What's the reason for this preference? We can try to tell you but, it's hard to put into words. Here at The Brown, we don't regard our patrons as some kind of "freight in transit". The men and women who stop here are our guests—nice, friendly people who, like ourselves, simply want to be treated courteously, and made comfortable while they're away from home. So that's what we try to do for them, and they like it!
That sounds almost too easy, doesn't it? But, believe us, lots of people say it's practically unique! Next time you're in Louisville, see if you don't agree. We hope you'll give us a trial.

State and National 4-H Mobilization Week

M. L. Wilson, Director of Extension, United States Department of Agriculture, has announced the week of April 6-11th as 4-H Mobilization Week.

4-H Club members in the state and nation are making a great contribution to the war effort by producing, canning and conserving food. They are also taking an active part in the collection of salvage.

All 4-H Clubs are called Victory Clubs this year and will be for the duration. Boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 that are not members of the 4-H Victory Club in their community are urged to join during mobilization week.

Radio Program

Marjorie Binder and Chalres Brown, members of the Simon Kenton 4-H Club, and Maurice K. Williams, Assistant County Agent, will present a 4-H program on "Everybody's Farm Hour" over station WLW, Tuesday, April 9th.

Poultry Pointers for April

by Cecil Hinton—

Those who have not already started their baby chicks will be starting them in the very near future. Dut to the war we are facing problems much different from those of recent years and many of the operations on the farm must be different. We as individuals must consider what each of us can do to help win the war. With that in mind let's consider a few of the more important problems.

Is your poultry project the most economical unit for your farm? Would it be possible to raise a few more pullets to house in some unused building that could be converted into a servicable poultry house? On many farms a barn shed could be used if it is not possible to build a new laying house. Many farms should discontinue keeping more hens than are needed to supply the family throughout the year. Those who are interested and realize a sizable income from their poultry should expand and keep enough birds to give a net income sufficient for the work involved. Many flocks of less than 100 laying hens could be increased to 200 or more and the work of caring for them would increase very little. After deciding on the number of laying hens that should be kept on your farm multiply the number by three and the result will be the number of chicks that should be started. Start as many as are needed but do not overcrowd. A 10x12 foot brooder house is sufficient for 300 chicks. Overcrowding causes poor growth, higher mortality, slow feathering and pullets of poor quality.

Feed a well balanced ration. In most sections a commercial mash may be purchased as cheaply as a home-made mash of equal quality. Kentucky Extension Circular No. 157 "Brooding Chicks" contains several mixtures that can be mixed at home and give good results. This circular may be obtained from your county agent.

Provide at least one inch of feeder space for each chick during the first three weeks and two inches or more as the chicks get older.

Sanitation in producing chicks is as important as purchasing chicks of good quality. Most brooder houses are built on a permanent foundation so that they cannot be easily moved. For this reason sun porches should be constructed in front of the broder house so the chicks will not be on ground where chicks have been ranging in past years. Grow chicks that are healthy rather than hunting for a "cure all" when trouble follows poor management.

Homemakers Training School Held in Covington

Leaders from seventeen communities in Kenton County met Wednesday at the Federal Building, Covington, with Miss Florence Imlay, Extension Specialist in Foods and Nutrition from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, for a training school on the subject of "The National Food Program in Developing Good Family Relations." Miss Imlay stressed the fact that the production or purchase of the food supply, the planning of meals, preparation serving of food is a family responsibility and not that of a part of the group. The home is the place where children must first learn to take and share responsibility, to be efficient and self-reliant, to respect the rights of others and to know food needs and to spend money wisely. If these emotional attitudes and habits are not learned from parents, the home has failed to give the child the greatest security for a happy, efficient and successful life.

Leaders who attended were: Mrs. Edwin Hiatt; Mrs. Kendall Hand; Mrs. J. C. Locke; Mrs. Geo. Milner; Mrs. J. A. Keeney; Mrs. Henry Free; Mrs. Elmer Frank; Mrs. Ed Wolfzorn; Mrs L. W. Brown; Mrs. Paul Newsom; Mrs. H. C. Smith; Mrs. Warren Scouten; Mrs. Ray Parsons; Mrs. Eula Grant; Mrs. John Chambers; Mrs. J. K. Rural Pastor sto Meet at College

The eighth annual Rural Leadership Institute and Short Course for town and country pastors and others interested in country life will be held at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, April 6 to 10. The theme will be "Rural Service in This Hour."

Among the speakers will be Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, who has appeared at previous institutes; Dr Myron C. Hopper of the College of Bible, Lexington; Dean W. S. Taylor of the university's College of Education, and a number of other prominent Kentucky pastors anl laymen. Also, negotiations are under way to have on the program a missionary who recently returned from Japan.

Are You Helping Our War Enemies?

You may not think so, but you are helping our enemies to invade our country if you set or allow fire to burn through the woods and field areas. Fire helps the enemy by destroying our timber resources which are needed now for defense purposes and will continue to be needed long after the war is over.

To win the World War we are now fighting, it will be necessary that trees of all kinds and sizes be carefully protected from fire and othed damage.

We cannot afford to help our country's enemies by continuing to burn the woods here at home. Every forest or wildlife that occurs, deprives our boys now in the fighting lines of much needed timber which can be used in the manufacture of war munitions.

Be careful that you do not set any fire on your land, either in the woods or in sedge grass areas. If you see a fire burning go to it at once and help to put it out. In this manner you are being patriotic and helping your country in its defense program, which is very necessary now.

If you wish to be of great help in your community, it is suggested that you and your neighbors form fire suppression crows headed by a good active leader and stand ready to go to and put out every woods fire which may get started in your neighborhood.

Join hands with your neighbor in this great work to help protect our timber resources.

Food To Win War, Wickard

FOOD will win the war and dictate the peace, according to an announcement made by the Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard.

In every country in Europe the populations are undernourished, and in most countries, people are living from day to day in the shadow of actual starvation.

In the entire world the United States is the only great nation which has not only abundance but a perpetual surplus of food, according to Louis Bromfield in the April issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Mr. Bromfield points out that aside from the humanitarian aspects of our being able to feed the starving world, the very fact that we have the means of feeding them will give us the opportunity to dictate the rules of a new and better world.

Food is a great weapon, in the hands of the one nation in the whole world best suited to use it as a weapon. We should be fools if we did not use this weapon to force the creation of a better world, but to do this we need to begin organizing at once the production of food as we are organizing the production of armament.

At this point in the question of food production, there appears a job which can be done by many million Americans who ordinarily are not farmers or gardeners. They are the citizens who can provide for their families a large percentage of food to be consumed through the year by the raising of small gardens.

The capacity of the community or individual garden is limited only by the area under cultivation and the amount of elbow grease put into it. Vegetables can be produced here in much greater variety than is possible in most of the countries of Europe. Our season, in any part of the country, is both warmer and longer than the average European season. Most people know something of the principles of gardening. A man or a woman who has "the feel of the soil" doesn't need training. Others can learn by experience, by reading, by aid from more experienced gardeners. Seedsmen are generous with instructions. One thing about the amateur gardener is that he becomes a professional with astonishing speed, and often successful professionals become fanatics.

Farmers Are Saving Much Feed

A few hundred Boone county farmers are beginning to do one of the best jobs of saving feed they have ever done, according to County Agent, H. R. Forkner. The solution is simple. They are harvesting cover crops sown last fall in the form of rye, wheat, barley and winter oats pasture.

The extra months grazing is giving these farmers the finest of nutritious pasture and is greatly reducing the hay bill, protein supplement cost and is saving the permanent pasture.

The greatest addition to early spring pastures in the past twenty-five years in Balbo rye. This crop is outgrowing, outgrazing, and outproducing all other varieties. Farmers are urged to observe the fine grazing cover crops are furnishing this spring. Now is the time to begin making plans to cooperate this fall in seeding Boone county's 20,000 acres of 1942 cultivated land to Balbo rye, Thorne wheat, Ky. No. 1, No. 2 Barley or Fulwin Winter oats.

Many farmers report the excess water in young grain crops scour their stock. This is not the case. It is not the water but the high protein content of young grasses that scour sock. By cutting out the high cost protein in the rations and feeding heavier on grain alone will give greater increased production and reduce this trouble

VICTORY GARDENS BEING PLANTED

Boone County floks will do a record job of raising Victory gardens this year, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Farmers plan to grow bigger and better gardens and town folks were seen busy the past week spading and plowing lots that were not previously cultivated.

Now is the most important time since the last War to grow Victory Gardens. The food supply is needed and the extra food produced will prove a big help to the already cramped family budget.

Care should be taken by the many new gardeners that successful crops are produced. The ground should be carefully prepared; only good seed planted at the right time should be used and once the seeds are planted, the crops should be followed through until harvested.

New gardeners would do well to secure a sack of good complete fertilizer for the average family size garden. A good garden fertilizer would be one of an analysis similar to a 5-10-5 or 6-10-6, 4-8-4 or 3-8-6. The furrow should be laid off, the fertilizer spread thru the furrow by hand, the plow run thru once or twice to mix the fertilizer good with the soil and then the seed planted. It is best not to put the seed directly on a ribbon of fertilizer.

There are thirty agricultural garden leaders, 12 homemaker's clubs leaders and garden leaders of other organizations that are glad to help new gardeners with their problems. Every new gardener and most other home vegetable growers should secure the agricultural Extension Circular No. 376, "The Vegetable Garden Month by Month" at the County Agent's office. The circular is free upon request.

Wool Pool Members Hold Annual Meeting

The Boone County Wool Pool members held their annual organization meeting at the Burlington courthouse on Monday, April 6th. All 1941 officers and solicitors were reelected for 1942.

The secretary-treasurer reported that the Association operated the past year on an efficient business basis and that sufficient money was in the treasury to secure wool sacks for members at wholesale prices. The members voted, this year, that because of the great difficulty encountered in securing sacks, they would be distributed to members at $1 each, with the members being paid back in full for the sacks when the wool is delivered.

Wool Pool members may secure their sacks and strings in the near future from one of the following convenient locations: Gulley & Pettit's store, Burlington; Hebron Bank, Hebron; Feed Store, Florence; Lusby's store, Walton.

Officers reelected were H. E. White, president; Lillard Scott, secretary-treasurer; solicitors: Lee McNeely of Carlton, Lillard Scott of Grant, Charles Stevens of Petersburg, Clint Riddell of Bullittsville, Lloyd McGlasson of Constance, Clint Blankenbeker of Florence, H. E. White of Burlington, Alma Riley of Union, John Conley of Beaver, B. W. Franks of Walton, and Walter Johnson of Verona.

All sheep raisers in the county are urged to pool their wool with their solicitor at the earliest possible date. Members do not sign contracts but every grower listing his number of fleeces is taken on his word that he will deliver his clip. Only pool wool that is signed up can be sold through the Association, as buyers refuse to pay highest price except for specified pool fleeces.

The next meeting of the Association will be held on May 14th at Burlington, 2 p. m., Eastern War Time. L. A. Vennes, Marketing Specialist, College of Agriculture, has been requested to address the growers on the market outlook for wool and lambs. The date for selling the pooled clip will be set on that day.

Bond, Stamp Sales $46,000 in Feb., Mar.

The County Committee on Defense Savings met Monday night in the courthouse, Burlington, to discuss the Sale of Bonds and Stamps for the months of February and March. From all information available, it was determined that the sales for those two months was approximately $46,000.00. It was determined from this figure that the daily average of purchases was about $800.00 for the entire county while the approximate amount which should be bought, based on population and income, would be greater than 800.

The committee believes that more consistent efforts should be made by the people of the county to buy Bonds and Stamps and increase this figure and maintain it at the increased level.

It was clearly pointed out that no goal was being established, and that there was no intention to establish one. However, the belief was expressed that the patriotic thing for Boone County to do, was to accept and bear its part of the burden now resting on the American people.

Figures used and quoted herein are for the purpose of calling to the attention of the people, that more activity must be had through out Boone County.

There was no inclination on the part of the committee to minimize the efforts of the past months, but it was pointed out that the preservation of the future is imminent. The great expenditures necessary to create our war machine must be, and will be met by patriotic Americans everywhere, buying Defense Bonds and Stamps. Boone County must not be an exception.

April Designated As Cancer Control Month

For centuries cancer threatened humanity with its hopeless fear. Today the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the control of cancer carries to every home the message that cancer can be cured if discovered early. Launched in 1936 the Army today has divisions in 47 states and the District of Columbia. It has the approval of the American Medical Association, American College of Surgeons and the U. S. Public Health Service. It has the guidance of State and local Medical Societies and the assistance of thousands of individuals. The Congress of the United States in 1938 set aside the month of April as Cancer Control Month. During April an appeal is sent to everyone, both men and women to help in its work. No one is drafted in this war against the second greatest cause of death in the United States. But the help of everyone is needed. Everyone can give copies of pamphlets you receive this month to as many friends as possible. Any funds raised during this month in the 5th District go directly toward maintaining a free bed in one of our Northern Kentucky hospitals where indigent patients may go for diagnosis and treatment.

Boone county must have a part in this work. A contribution, little or much, may help save a life. The schools, P.-T. A. groups, Homemakers Clubs and Church groups are cooperating. Ou may give through any of these organizations or to the Committee.

The committee is composed of Miss Elizabeth Lowry, Public Health Nurse; Mrs. S. B. Nunnelley and Mrs. M. A. Yelton.

RECEIVE 41 TONS OF PHOSPHATE

A 41-ton shipment of TVA concentrated phosphate fertilizer has been received at Erlanger for use by test demonstration farmers, it was announced Monday by Frank Rouse, president of the County Soil Improvement Association. The Association and the Ky. Agricultural Extension Service manage the test demonstration program through the County Agent's office.

Franklin Frazier, Assistant County Agent, explained that application of phosphate with lime always gives most satisfactory growth of soil building crops. The 161 lime and phosphate demonstrations conducted in every section of the county last year show that plots treated with both limesone and phosphate produced an average of 117% more hay crops than the untreated plots. Pastures treated with limestone and phosphate required 1.9 acres per animal unit, while 3.1 acres per animal unit was required on plots receiving no treatment.

There are 26 test demonstration farms in the county. The present shipment is for the following: J. C. Aylor; H. W. Baker; Shelby Beemon; T. C. Bonar; J. W. Corley; W. L. Crigler; B. W. Fra ; E. W. Jergens; Charles L. K ; W. G. Kite; J. J. Klopo; William Moore; Albert Parker; Charlie M. Riley; F. H. Rouse; S. B. Scott; Wilton Stephens; Harry R. Tanner; Ira M. Tanner; B. S. Wagner; Jesse Wilson and J. R. Worthington.

PVT. LEWIS TELLS OF THE NARROW ESCAPE FROM ON BOARD ILL FATED PULLOX

(Special to Advertiser)

We received the sad tidings of the tragic destruction of the ill fated Pullox off the coast of Newfoundland on Feb. 23, 1942, shortly after the accident occurred, but not until we heard the story told by one of its survivors could one have a conception of the horrows of the incident.

Pvt. Howard Thomas Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lewis of Sparta, Route 1, on board one of the ill fated vessels tells the following pathetic story. Having been granted a 15-day furlough, as have all the survivors of the Pullox, is enjoying a vacation with his parents.

"It was February 23," said Pvt. Lewis, "that our ship had been detailed to carry food products to an ocean liner lying some distance from shore, when a strong Northwesterner began to blow. The wind came with great velocity and the surface was changed from a choppy sea to a mountain of billows, that swept the deck, washing half her crew into the sea, most of them were lost. The mad waves dashed the vessel against the rock-bound coast of Newfoundland, where cliffs formed in the misty ages of the past, and whose appalling heights seems to prop the skies, awaited us. The vessel struck twice and went into splinters, paused and shuddered then sank out of sight. The waves dashed many of us on shore. Some swam to safety and others went back with the receding tide. There was a quantity of oil abroad that drenched most of us, I being among them to receive a bath of it," he said.

"The weather being inclement, a number of sailors froze and fell by the wayside. We were rescued by the natives, a small dwarf-like people with high cheek bones, flat noses and wearing a tufted beard, but with hearts of gold. Ropes hung at distant points were lowered and holding on to these we slowly crept up the summit, and a walk of 15 minutes brought us to the homes of the natives, where we were warmed, given a bath to remove the oil from our skin, and fed. Those who were nearly exhausted were placed in bed." Pvt. Lewis, for one, remained in bed for three days.

"The only discomfort felt was that these beds are not sufficiently long to accommodate the average American soldier. The natives who are low in stature, men five feet and the women four, require short beds. They are tough and hardy, like most dwarfs, and their foods are very simple. The influence of the Gulf Streams are felt powerfully here. The great ocean current flows past the Newfoundland coast, bequeathing to these fishermen, their fire wood and the treasures it has long carried on its bosom, such as the trunks of palm trees and the vegetation of the tropics."

While this will be a never-to-be-forgotten experience, Pvt. Lewis, with the gallantry of every true Kentuckian, expressed a desire to return to service, anxious to do his part to defend the flag, and hopes to return to his native heath after the struggle is over, to celebrate the victory that "is sure to come," he stated.

His legion of friends are wishing him good luck and a happy return from the ranks. He sailed from Newfoundland to Boston Harbor, thence by rail from New York on Friday, March 13, to his home here. He is a native of Owen county and lives on Lewis Lane Road and comes of early pioneer stock, his ancestors being settlers in this place more than 140 years ago.

YOU GUESSED WRONG! HE'S IN THE INFANTRY—In modern warfare infantrymen fight with other arms than the traditional rifle. This soldier operates a 37-millimeter gun and among his comrades on foot are mechanics, cyclists, telephone operators, ski troopers, "walkie-talkie" radio men, parachute troops and airborne infantry. Off to each flank of infantry troops, mounted in a speeding armored car or crouched behind his well-concealed weapon at a road junction is the 37-millimeter gunner. Primarily, in modern warfare, he has but one target: enemy tanks and armored vehicles. His first shot must be a direct hit for armored vehicles travel at a high rate of speed and a miss means precious seconds lost.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Walton is getting more patriotic every day, I believe. I notice several new flags flying up and down the main stem.

—o—

It seems that Lawrence Welsh is a walking epidemic of "poison ivy." I have seen several victims of his recently.

—o—

Blanche Brittenheim is extending her trip to two weeks instead of one. She said on a footnote in a card the other day that she had something better than "orchids" for Easter. Wonder what that means?

—o—

One question that has always lingered in my mind, is why they have arm-rests on depot benches. If it hadn't been for them Walker could have gotten some much-needed rest on his return trip from home.

—o—

Lot of the home town gals were disappointed when Walker got home without Welsh, after the big build-up I had given him.

—o—

I am positive that Simpson, our capable editor, has something dreadfully wrong with him now. It may be love, but this time, I think it is Spring fever. He set all the names of the men who registered the last time with the wrong numbers on them, and had to set the whole business over again.

—o—

I rode up on the train with a good friend and an old school chum of our basketball coach. Louie must have really been a "catbird" while in college — at least that is the impression I gathered from my newly-made friend.

—o—

When Johnny Gault, another of Walton's contributions to the Army, got ready to leave for camp, his mother told him that his hair would surely turn grey before long. The ever-comical Johnny said he would rather be grey than yellow. That is the way we are all going to have to be before we win this war.

—o—

I'll try to have John's address for you next week, and when I do, we want to start a gang of letters flowing to him, too.

—o—

Although the ole' home town likes a lot being what she used to be, I must admit I had a very nice time. But I had enough riding to last me until next juvember.

—o—

I don't remember what Powers told me was Mary Carnes' prescription for reducing, but I am going to have to find out before long. I'm already 50 lbs. heavier than when I first came here, six months ago.

—o—

Rollie and Frank had a very nice banquet for the basketball team one night last week. They all enjoyed it very much too, I think. Plucker was unable to attend school the next day, though. I don't know if it was from eating too much or not.

—o—

They tell me each member of the team made speeches. I'll bet that was really good.

—o—

Main stem memos: Many people chasing after hats that have been blown off their heads by that welcome spring wind — old and young alike, on bikes going to and from work and also for pleasure rides — most of the high school lads playing hooky from school these pretty Friday afternoons — people carrying rakes and other garden implements — and Tom Percival forever puffing on one of those big black cigars.

—o—

I saw something very unusual the other day. Feldhaus, the dependable Greyhound ticket agent, carrying a spade into the garden, getting ready to make a garden. That should be an inspiration to a lot of people.

—o—

I've heard of people getting stuck in mud in autos, but never of anyone getting mired when they go wading, like Georgia Rouse did last week.

—o—

Ella Mae is wearing a new brand of face powder — one that George Heginbotham and I introduced to her. It is called "Sweet Pea" I think.

—o—

If this column is not up to par this week, blame it on a trip home and to me. I was not in Walton over the weekend and know nothing to write about.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for April 12

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.—Luke 10:2.

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and place."

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3).

Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our day, is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship. The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work.

He sent them to go "before His face"—what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to "labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they were—

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"—which was food and shelter (v. 7).

Time is what life is made of, and the servants of Christ were not to waste it in lengthy oriental salutations (v. 4), or going from house to house to be entertained, thus losing much time and strength.

Nor was he to strive or become angry if some one did not receive him and his greeting of "peace" (v. 6). In any case his word would return in blessing upon himself (v. 6), and he could go on to another house. The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (I Sam. 21:8b).

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24).

The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively!

While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus told them in verse 20 that an even greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not only about having our own names written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch—at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"—unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who become spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (B. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The world is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.—Rev. A. E. Gregory.

"As thy day so shall they strength be."

The many friends of C. O. Morgan deeply regret to learn of his continued illness.

The many friends of Mrs. Oscar Rankin are pleased to learn of her improvement at Jewish Hospital.

Deeply appreciated was the kind thoughtfulness of Mrs. Joseph H. Maddox in sending a lovely basket of fragrant blossoms from her husband's grave.

Recent callers were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox and Mrs. V. L. Stephenson.

"He has only passed from mortal sight, beyond the silence of life's mystic bar. To us is left the shadows and the night. To him the radiance of the morning star." Kenton County lost a most highly esteemed citizen and many hearts were overshadowed with sorrow at announcement of the death of Joseph H. Maddox, which marked the passing of a noble christian character. The curtain of death which slowly has been drawn, closed his long, useful life of more than four score years, Friday, March 27, 1942. Despite gentle, untiring ministrations of loved ones, and nurse, he peacefully fell into that dreamless slumber with the calm repose of eternal rest upon his brow. Like the shadow of a passing cloud his spirit was wafted to realms beyond, where he has entered the higher life in some fairer clime. To the follower of Christ, death is only a sleep so calm and restful, a passage from earth to Paradise, an unconscious journey whose end is light. How deep would be the grief over the grave did not the rainbow of Christian hope span the dark gulf between time and eternity. Besides his devoted companion, he is survived by one son, three daughters, ten grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and other relatives. Heartfelt sympathy is extended to all who tread the lonely path of sorrow. Following the last rites Monday afternoon at the Hickory Grove Church, impressively conducted by the highly efficient pastor, Rev. Courtland Weldon, interment took place in the Independence Cemetery, where in the quietude of the hills, he slumbers awaiting the dawn without a sunset. Floral tributes of surpassing beauty adorned the casket, attesting the esteem in which he was held. They are not dead who live in hearts they leave behind. In those whom they have blest they live a life again.

"Some day when the sunset sky is gold, loved ones will follow thee in the West and join thee in the heavenly fold on the happy hills and rest."

Growing fruit for home use, and also for sale, is being promoted in Perry county.

Members of homemakers' clubs in Graves county gave extra attention to setting trees and shrubs this spring.

Five Fleming county farmers sowed about 50 acres of sericea lespedeza, and five others are trying Ladino clover.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.
These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medicine would be more often employed.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide confidence than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Have You A Plan for Your Home Garden? How Does It Compare With Last Year's Garden? What Additions and Improvements Can You Make?

You can have a better Home Garden each year if you will take pencil and paper, sit down and study your garden program from year to year. Make a list of the successful practices and methods you used last year and add to them each year. As time goes on you will discover many ways to get more profit, health and pleasure from your garden.

You should not expect to become an expert home garden producer in a year or two. Look at it from the long-time viewpoint and make a study of the kinds of seed to use, the best time to plant, how to prepare the soil and the kind of soil suited to different kinds of plants. Best methods of cultivation, control of plant insects and diseases, and after you know how to produce garden crops, study how to prepare; canning and storing of the crops for use during the months when crops cannot be obtained fresh from the garden. The College of Agriculture, Lexington, lists th efollowing on the "Vegetable Timetable:" Peas, lettuce, onions, greens, parsnips, radishes, cabbage, potatoes — cauliflower, broccoli, beets, carrots, beans corn — tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, watermelons, squashes, okra, I sweetpotatoes, turnips and many others may be added to suit the individual choice. Get a copy of the Garden Circular from your Agricultural Extension Agent. Make extra plantings for canning and storing to take care of your family needs during the winter months.

Fruit and Small Fruit Growing In A National Defense Program — by W. W. Magill—

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS:

1. For strawberry plants set this spring, carefully pull off all blossoms or small berries that are now on the berry plants. Each berry (large or small) that is allowed to remain will probably decrease the yield in 1943 as much as 100 berries. We want the new runners to develop as soon as possible and if the small berries are allowed to mature, runners will be delayed three weeks or more.

Cultivate the berry row during May, as you would a row of corn or beans. Keep all weeds pulled or hoed out around each plant. Comb the first runners down the row, filling in the space between the plants with tip runners. When the new runners are a foot long, cover the growing tip with soil (using a hoe). Apply, broadcast, 10 pounds of garden fertilizer to each 100 feet of row. Superphosphate will be a good substitute for the garden fertilizer.

2. Newly set apple, peach, plum trees or grape vines. Your poultry house probably needs to be cleaned out—so spread one gallon of poultry manure in a 2½-foot circle around each tree or vine, then spade up (cultivate) the area where you spread the manure. If you have occasion to bury a dead chicken, cat or other animal, dig the hole two feet from the young tree—it will make good fertilizer.

If you have bearing fruit trees, feed them like suggested for small trees, but use several times the amount suggested. Any kind of manure will improve fruit trees. A half-wagon of stable manure spread under each mature apple or peach tree will be a desirable treatment, and may be applied at any time. May will be an especially good time for the application. Do not pile it around the trunk of the tree—simply broadcast under the entire spread of the branches. This treatment now will be especially valuable for producing a crop of fruit in 1943.

3. Prospects now look promising for a good fruit crop for apples, plums and grapes. You can help nature with the crop prospect by applying some sprays. See Extension Circular 353, Sprays for the Home Fruit Garden.

4. How many native seedling peach trees have you located that will produce the same kind of a peach if the seeds are planted and the tree allowed to mature? Please write me about them.

5. This winter we want to obtain grafting wood from native seedling apple trees that you tell us about—trees that may be quite old but yet have a local reputation for producing annual crops without spraying—grafting wood consisting of new terminal growth shoots that are from 8 inches to 2 feet in length. If you know of such trees will you serve as a "committee of one" to help the tree force a new growth of terminal shoots? This can be done by pruning a part of the tree rather severely, especially some of the top branches. (Prune them in May) and then see that the tree is heavily fertilized to force new growth. Broadcast 10 to 15 pounds of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia under the spread of the branches. (Four bushel baskets of poultry manure broadcast under the tree would accomplish the same results).

BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Almost Persuaded

Few of us would admit that what we believe in is even remotely connected with superstition. We like to think that the beliefs of others are tinged with nonsense, and we even would say that as children we feared that certain things are true that now we know are false. All this is fine and a good sign, too, that we are becoming civilized as well as grown. But if you were put into a dungeon or otherwise tortured, just how many superstitions would you admit having in some form. Of course, you know better; I will gladly admit that. But when you are alone or blue or half sick or worried, do the silly superstitions that you know all seem equally silly?

Here is a sample. I grade innumerable papers, a fact that no English teacher would fail to believe. Suppose I have graded a number and am expecting to quit for a change or a rest. Do I stop on the thirteenth one or leave just thirteen ungraded? Is it necessary for me to nudge myself and say, to avoid being superstitious, "Oh, you're not tired enough to quit yet. Grade another one, at least (leaving only twelve)"? Do you, my gentle reader, as old books used to call you, feel safe after passing by a pin and failing to pick it up? Did you ever go back stealthily, pretend to be looking for something, and then casually bend over and pick up the offending pin? Neither of these may appeal to you; you may be an enlightened one, with no left-overs of primitive thinking. Well, let us go walking at dusk in an old overgrown cemetery, with sunken graves and tumbled-down headstones. Will you welcome this as much as walking elsewhere at the same time of day? Or do you fear noises in the still of the night, when you wake from a nightmare? Maybe you are fearful of relating a bad dream before breakfast; many good people are and many others ought to be, for telling a dream is one of the most bring of all human habits. Anyway, whether these or some other superstitions occasionally have weight with you an honest confession might make you appear to yourself to be not so very far removed from the primitive days of the race.

Personally, I am glad that there is left enough of the traces of superstition in me for me to sympathize, even a little bit, with those who live in a fearful world of good and bad luck, of visible and invisible forces working against us. I am doubtful whether many people were ever driven from superstition by severe methods. A too obvious making fun of some harmless belief often serves to strengthen it, for none of us like up give up too easily our cherished customs and habits. A scientific attitude, on erarely taken by the folk, is the best way. It takes more than an average amount of nerve for a superstitious person to use himself as a guinea pig to be experimented on. Just walk under a ladder, once, and defy the consequences. Eat at the table with twelve other people and make a minute record of what happens afterward. The folk habit of connecting things logically because they were connected chronologically can be broken once for all. I suspect, by this rigid scientific method. Merely being laughed at or scolded is not enough.

Before becoming too severe on primitive people or children for their folk fears, analyze yourself and see whether you are the guiltless who is entitled to cast a stone.

Billy Fox, a Todd county 4-H club boy, sold a sow that weighed 775 pounds.

A cannery in Hopkins county is planning to put up approximately 40,000 cases of tomatoes.

The subject of the day was "Food for the Convalescent and Semi-Invalid." Our leaders, however, stressed the necessity of striving to stay well and one important way of doing this is to eat the proper foods. Lunch was perpared according to instructions and a well balanced meal was served to ten members and one guest. Miss Moore came in the afternoon and gave us instructions and urged all to take part in the garden project and to try to get many others interested in growing gardens for summer use and in canning surpluses. Mr. Frazier, Assistant County Agent, gave an instructive talk on Poultry products as a means of defense. Many questions were asked and much information was obtained from his visit.

Miss Nora Dempsey, who had been at the home of her sister, Mrs. Foley of Lebanon, Ohio, died last week and her remains were brought to the Hamilton funeral home and prepared for burial. The funeral was conducted Friday morning at the Catholic church. Interment in St. Patrick cemetery.

Association Identifies Exceptional Guernsey

The Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association has identified an exceptionally good herd sire in the herd of Dr. R. G. Garrison of Burlington. The bull Meteor's Lad, 235539, has been given an official index proof of increased productivity of daughters over dams by 2243 more pounds of milk; .1% higher fat test and 119 more pounds of butterfat per year. The official proof was received the past week from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This bull is one of the best production bred Guernsey bulls in the county. He was sired by the Berea College bull that held the highest productivity index of the Guernsey breed. He is also a good type of individual.

This is the second herd sire proved by DHIA records during the past year and a half, according to H. R. Forkner, the County Agent. The other bull, a Jersey, Ada's Tormentor 345855 is owned by the Boone County Bull Association. He was the third highest production bull last year in the United States.

Boone County dairymen carrying on Dairy Herd Improvement Association work are: Franklin Huey of Burlington; W. G. Kite of Waterloo; Robert Youell of Hebron; Jesse Wilson of Verona; Walter King of Verona; Herman Decker of Walton; T. O. Dunlap of Walton; Ben Litchting, Beaver Lick; Grant Maddox of Florence; Albert Parker of Walton; R. C. Garrison of Burlington, and Ira M. Tanner of Florence.

BANKS AWARD 4-H TROPHIES

The Banks of Boone County the past week purchased two new trophies to be awarded community 4-H clubs scoring highest in achievement during 1942 and 1943. The trophies are beautiful pictures representing rural scenes of educational values.

This is the 17th consecutive year that all banks of the county have sponsored outstanding community 4-H club work in the county, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This splendid cooperation has been greatly appreciated.

Banks cooperating in the 1942 and 1943 community club program are the Farmers Bank of Petersburg; Hebron Deposit Bank of Hebron; Citizens Bank of Grant; Peoples Deposit Bank of Burlington; Florence Deposit Bank of Florence; Union Deposit Bank of Union; Dixie State Bank of Walton, and Verona Deposit Bank of Verona.

Rationing Violators Face Prosecution

Willful violators of rationing orders and rationing regulations issued by the Office of Price Administration now face direct prosecution and severe penalties under provisions of the Second War Powers Act. 1942, Acting Price Administrator John E. Hamm announced today.

The Act, which became effective last Saturday, when signed by President Roosevelt, provides a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and imprisonment for one year for willful violation of priority orders of the War Production Board of ratining orders or regulation of OPA, whether already in effect or issued in the future.

Mr. Hamm disclosed that OPA, working in close cooperation with the Department of Justice, has adopted a comprehensive plan of action for investigation and criminal prosecution of those persons who flout the ratining rules. This plan will be pursued vigorously, he said, with the object of making illicit trafficking in rationed articles an expensive business.

"Until passage of the Second War Powers Act, enforcement of the rationing program has been severely handicapped by the fact that the law provided no criminal penalties fo reven the most flagrant violations of rationing requirements," Mr. Hamm stated. "Dealers who had made misrepresentations to the government of facts concerning their supplies could be prosecuted for such misrepresentation under existing statues, but the open and notorious violator could be reached only by suit to enjoin further violations.

"Those who connive to get more than their fair share of any rationed article are equally as guilty as those who traffic illicitly in rationed goods for profit. Public condemnation of these practices now will be supplemented by criminal prosecution."—Boone Co. Rationing Board, No. 8, R. E. Brugh, Chairman.

4 SORGHUM DEMONSTRATIONS PLANNED

Seed for conducting four sorghum demonstrations with the Williams' Variety have been received, according to County Agent Forkner. The Williams variety is reported by the College as the outstanding variety for molasses making that has been identified in the State.

One of hese demonstrations will be conducted on the farm of A. T. Knox of near Florence; another is on the farm of L. R. Vice of near Burlington. The other two will be located in the near future.

Sorghum molasses has been proven one of the high mineral and vitamin foods. Increased production of molasses and honey is recommended in the Live at Home and Food for Victory programs.

The Senior class play, "Slightly Delirious" presented last Friday evening at the Walton school auditorium was well attended the enjoyed by all. It was a good comedy with plenty of snappy dialogue. Miss Kathryn Scott was the coach.

Alcott To Speak At Williamstown

The appearance of Carroll D. Alcott, WLW Far Eastern Authority, at the Williamstown School auditorium on April 21 at 8:00 p. m. is eagerly anticipated by a large following of listeners. Mr. Alcott's career of 13 years in the Far East as newspaperman and commentator, and the unenviable and uncomfortable distinction of being high on Japan's lengthly list of enemies, establishes him as a much sought after speaker. He is kept busy filling speaking engagements all over the country in addition to his regular WLW newscasts and news commentaries.

Alcott went to China in 1925, where he served as news editor of the Shanghai Post and Mercury, associate editor of the China Press, Associated Press war correspondent and newscaster on XMHA at Shankhai. It was in this latter position that Alcott, through his ruthful reporting of Asiatic affairs aroused the anger of the Japs to the point that they made several near-successful attempts on his life. He still carries a scar from the first attempt on his life which cost the life of his rickshaw coolie, who was killed from the effect of a bomb thrown with Alcott as its target.

Supt. M. J. Belew of the Grant County Schools is chairman of the committee that is sponsoring Mr.

Carroll D. Alcott

Alcott's appearance. Tickets are on sale at fifty cents each and may be obtained at the door that night or from any member of the following organizations: G. E. M. Club, Williamstown Woman's Club Nomads, Robert P. McLachlan Post American Legion, Williamstown Rotary Club and the Grant County Farm Bureau.

P.-T. A. MEETING POSTPONED

Mr. Blackburn, a well known and well liked man, is survived by his widow, Care Belle Blackburn; three sons, Ernest Blackburn of Louisville, Paul Blackburn of Cincinnati and Robert Blackburn of Mt. Zion; fourteen grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

Welsh; Mrs. Russell Hall; Mrs. L. A. Gardiner; Mrs. Lula Huey; Mrs Claude Norman; Miss Mary Rensler; Miss Helen Ruth Gardiner; James Bolington; Charles Watson; Miss Virginia Richards, and V. D. BAPTIST W. M. U. CONVENTION

The 39th annual session of the Kentucky Baptist Women's Missionary Union was held in the Harrodsburg Baptist Church, on April 7-9.

Delegates attending from the Walton Church were Mrs. D. K. Johnson, Mrs. Joe Neumeister and Miss Geraldine Elliott. There were 664 registered delegates and 1122 registered visitors.

The theme was "The Lord Exalted," and the meeting was deeply spiritual and the attention was earnest and enthusiastic, as the needs of the work were heard and plans made for the evangelization of the world, at home and abroad —specially with the sponsoring of the religious life of our boys in camp.

The hospitable people of Harrodsburg extended every courtesy to those attending the convention.

Kentucky celebrates the 150th year of it's statehood in 1942. Any of her citizens contemplating a vacation could find no more interesting and patriotic place than this historic town, known as the "Cradle of Kentucky." On the hill by the side of an exact replica of the fort built by Daniel Boone in 1776, in an old cemetery lie the bodies of Kentucky's first pioneers and also the body of the first white child born west of the Alleghany Mountains. There is a monument which says "Here lie the bodies of the men, women and children of Kentucky's early pioneers, many of whom lost their lives in settling the state. Their names are known only to God but their memories are enshrined in our hearts forever." There are many interesting pictures, relics and documents to be seen in Mansion Museum and we might learn a well needed lesson by walking through the rough cabins, viewing the rude furnishings of those early pioneer days, seeing how few material things they possessed, yet they were rich in the things worthwhile. Faith, hope and courage that in spite of almost insurmountable obstacles enabled them to conquer a wilderness and leave us the heritage of this Commonwealth, loved not only by her own citizens, but by people all over the world.—A Delegate.

Tobacco Growers Have Important Jobs

Boone County tobacco growers have two important jobs to do during the next few weeks. The first of these is treating their beds with the Bluestone-lime treatment to kill ground borne diseases that infect young plants; the second is to prepare their ground for the fertilizer treatment for the growing crop.

The Bluestone-lime treatment is so cheap and important that every grower should protect his beds. Two treatments are made: the first when the plants are just coming through the ground; the second ten days later. Plans for this treatment are furnished free at the county office.

The fertilizer program that many of the best growers this year will use calls for 8 to 15 loads of manure per acre turned under; 50 lbs. of phosphate per load of manure broadcast and 250-375 pounds of a good complete fertilizer used in the row. A few farmers will treat their plants at setting time with vitamin B-1.

Several growers report the plants in their beds have come up and are now ready for the bluestone-lime treatment.

APRIL 17 NAMED VISTORY BOOK DAY

In his press conference Tuesday, President Roosevelt named Friday, April 17th as Victory Book Day. The President urges all Americans everywhere to contribute as many good books as possible to the men in the armed forces, the soldiers, sailors and marines at home and overseas who, while fighting and training to fight, still have time to read, and appreciate a good book. Won't you do your part?

NO DISPUTE AS TO RATIONING

The following statement was issued today by Donald M. Nelson, Chairman, War Production Board, and Leon Henderson, Administrator, Office of Price Administration:

"Newspaper and radio stories indicating existence of a dispute as to the need for sugar rationing between the War Production Board and the Office of Price Administration are without foundation in fact. The sugar rationing program will proceed as scheduled and the public should not permit unauthorized sources to confuse the necessity for this policy."—Boone Co. Rationing Board, No. 8, R. E. Brugh, Chairman.

This Week on The Home Front

Combatting the rising cost of living and inflation is still one of the major concerns of the Government, and the problem of the Office of Price Administration.

The fight must be won if we are to win the war.

In the past few days OPA has added many articles, including 44 electric appliances, ranging from curling irons and toasters, to a long list of things over which it has set maxumim prices.

OPA is a big busy agency and it is getting bigger and busier. It opened seven new branch offices and a twelfth regional office during last week. More than 400 new branch offices of various sizes will be opened between now and June 30th.

War production is zooming. Last month we spent more than three billion dollars, more than two and one-half billion went for munitions and war construction. Not enough, but it's three times as much as we were doing last year. For oudselves and allies we are now spending at the rate of about thirty billions a year.

War contracts and other government committments in February rose to $20,892,000.000. The figure was $8 414,000,000 in January and $5,122,000 000 in December and $1 782,000,000 in November.

Shipments of steel plants in March set an all-time record. Deliveries to shipyards were up 30 per cent over February, in answer to the Nazi and Jap subs.

Men and bosses in 444 manufacturing plants followed the War Production Board's suggestion and organized 444 Labor-Management Committees during the first seven days of April. They are working together through these committees to speed production.

Farm tractors originally fitted with steel wheels but later changed to rubber tires will not be permitted to purchase tires whenever steel wheels are locally available, state rationing boards are informed.

Office of Price Administration warns that there is no guarantee that recapping material will be available even for the tires of defense workers—that "national interest and not the convenience of the war worker," is the governing factor in allocating such material. If you drive to work, pool the use of your car with your neighbor and save the rubber!

WPB has halted all non-essential building construction, both public and private because war production demands have caused a shortage of materials. Builders are told not to start new construction without permission, except for specified purposes, which include: Army and Navy projects, restoration of residential property destroyed by fire, flood, earthquake or tornado since January 1, and controled and restricted projects for production and distribution of petroleum. The order does not affect ordinary necessary maintenance and repair. Even some projects under construction could be stopped.

WPB is making it easier for people to get materials to do low cost remodeling jobs. If you are eligible to build a defense house, you now have an A-5 rating for remodeling, not to exceed $100 per room, or $800 for the whole job. WPB order P-120 is the regulation.

Charged with diverting approximately half a million pounds of secondary aluminum from the war program, the WPB has ordered the Hoover Company of North Canton, Ohio, third largest producer of vacuum cleaners in the country, to cease using aluminum for three months. The order is the penalty. Two New York concerns a textile processor and also a yarn jobber were also punished by suspension orders.

Only about half of the companies the government has asked to report on their idle aluminum, replied to the questionnaire. WPB is moving to requisition the hoarders of the vital metal. During the week such action was taken to get 1000 pounds of aluminum ingots from J. Clem Kline & Son of Easton, Pa.

There is one commodity the government wants "hoarded" now. That is coal. Office of Price Administration's "Buy Coal Now" campaign, aims to get the family coal bin filled to prevent a jam on railroads and truck lines when the snow starts blowing.

Red Cross will collect those cuffs from trousers and sell them to wool processors.

To women and girls: There will be no extremes in dress styles during the war, and present wardrobes will not become obsolete. New WPB order stabilizes length and fullness of skirts, applying to styles beginning next fall and winter.

The golf ball was almost lost in the rough when crude rubber was forbidden in their making in mid-December. April 1 production stopped completely. New WPB order now takes iron and steel and other critical metals out of the clubs, and also plastics and cork. Limited manufacture of clubs may continue, but there'll be no new ones made for next year. Use of iron and steel stops June 1, other materials immediately.

The eastern states (including West Virginia) and northwest areas got another cut in their gasoline allowance. It was 80% of normal sales, but, now, effective Thursday, it is 66 and two-thirds. First reduction order of the WPB was effective March 19.

Movement of materials and troops is taking the transportation system. Office of Defense Transportation has asked both government agencies to order only transportation they know they can use and make reservations and purchase tickets well in advance.

J. M. Katz, supplier of bathroom accessories, got 78.000 lbs. of copper sheet requisitioned and taken away from him by the WPB The New York dealer had an excess inventory and refused to sell his material to the government's Metal Reserve Corporation, for war purposes.

The lead foil in the cigaret wrappers the kiddies have been saving will be eliminated May 1, the WPB ordered.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Victory won't wait for a nation that is late—late in getting into a full fledged armament production program—late in asking business to accept an all out-war program which may mean lower profits—late in asking labor to forego strikes and, if necessary, accept a longer working week—late in asking the farmer to keep prices at a reasonable level.

Some industrialists, anxious to keep their plants on a peacetime basis and consequently saving them for post-war peacetime production, want the Government to build new wplants for war use only. But the Government is finding this costly not only in money, but also in time. Material which would be used in the construction of these new plants is scarce and it is needed for the construction of tanks, bombers and guns. These producers will be told they must convert their plants for war production.

Labor leaders, in some instances have used the war to force upon industry the closed shop, higher wages and shorter hours. A recent wave of public resentment against work stoppages in our war industries has forced union leaders to go slow on calling strikes and asking for exorbitant wage increases.

With farm income pushing toward record levels, our agricultural population is more prosperous than it has been for years. Yet our agricultural leaders are clamoring for higher prices and no ceiling.

Viewing the situation impartially, it seems that we are still a nation of "pressure groups" (industry, labor, agriculture), trying to get as much as possible for ourselves out of this war. Public opinion may demand a change, and when it does we may expect a speed-up of war effort. Victory comes to the nation that is coordinating its men, materials, and money for the common good.

Daviess county farmers have about 150 combines for harvesting small grain, soybeans, lespedeza and other crops.

All members of homemakers' clubs in Mason county have signed a pledge to "waste nothing."

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!
Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion, alcohol, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.
After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.
Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

If Air Raids Come

by George Baehr, M. D.
The Chief Medical Officer,
Office of Civilian Defense

"Doctor coming down! All out for the doctor!"

When a rescue party digs into the piles of rubble that once were homes in the bombed cities of England, the doctor follows as soon as there is any indication that living people are about to be reached. As the war has gone on, a well-ordered plan to bring relief to the injured with the least possible waste of time and energy has been evolved in England.

As war comes closer to the shores of the United States, it will give confidence to our citizens to know that the Government and the medical profession began months ago to work out plans for the care of the injured in case of belligerent action. Though the possibility of actual bombing of our cities seemed remote to many minds at the time, a carefully thought-out plan, devised after close study of the bitter experience of the British, was put before the physicians and hospitals of the country by the medical division of the Office of Civilian Defense, in August, 1941.

Hospitals were urged to organize emergency medical field units and to begin drilling them for instant action if an emergency arose. Many hospitals, especially those in the important seaboard cities and in cities with great industrial plants forging the grim implements of war, began organization at once. When war actually broke on the United States last December hundreds of physicians, nurses and their helpers, the nurses' aides and orderlies, knew what they were to do if enemy bombs came to wreak destruction on homes and factories, shipyards and hangars, or if sabotage brought disaster from within.

The United States has been divided into civilian-defense regions corresponding to the familiar corps areas of the U. S. Army. In each of these regions, a Civilian Defense medical officer, commissioned in the U. S. Public Health Service, is on duty to co-ordinate the work of the States in his region. In each State there is a physician known as the State chief of emergency medical service. Within the States are many local chiefs, heading organizations that vary according to forms of local government. The whole network is headed by the chief medical officer, with headquarters in Washington.

The emergency medical field units established in hospitals are made up of squads composed of two or more physicians, two or more nurses, and two or more orderlies or nurses' aides. The reason for having at least two of each type of worker is that when catastrophe comes, a squad may split up into teams to work in different spots. The squads serve in shifts around the clock.

Once the medical group is organized, arrangements are made for places for them to work. In the medical defense program, an important task has been the selection of reasonably safe and accessible places in different parts of a city for medical headquarters. These are called casualty stations. When a disaster occurs, the emergency medical field units are called out from hospitals and report to the casualty stations. In these stations the medical squads will stand in readiness until they are called out by the person who is co-ordinating all phases of the rescue work. An unforseen feature of England's experience has been the discovery that medical workers need not rush instantly to the scene of an "incident" or "visitation," as the British with characteristic understatement call a bombing attack. Persons injured by the destruction of buildings are buried beneath tons of brick, glass and the indescribable wreckage of household goods. Often it is many hours before the comforting call, "Doctor coming down" can be issued.

All members of these emergency medical field units have some special instruction in first-aid procedures, including care of burns, prevention of shock (collapse), control of hemorrhage, emergency treatment of broken bones and open wounds, and in methods of decontamination in case poison gas is used in an attack.

From casualty stations, which are intended as places for treatment of persons with minor injuries, depots for supplies, and canteens for refreshments of tired and dusty rescue workers, first-aid teams will be dispatched to establish first-aid posts at the scene of disaster. Persons with severe injuries will receive emergency treatment in these front-line posts and then be sent as rapidly as possible to hospitals.

Paralleling its planning for the establishment of the emergency medical field units, the Office of Civilian Defense is cooperating with the American Red Cross in sponsoring training courses for nurses' aides and courses in first aid for lay persons. It is also urging women to take its long-established home-nursing course.

The nurse's aide takes a seven weeks' course including both didactic instruction at Red Cross headquarters and practical experience in hospitals to fit her to lend a helping hand to the nurse either in the regular work of the hospital or in the front ranks at the scene of a disaster.

You have always intended to take a first-aid course. Now cruel necessity makes it imperative that someone in every household know principles and practice of first aid for no one knows when or where he may need it. All the enrolled Civilian Defense workers are required to have first-aid training. You should join a class at the earliest possible moment. The knowledge will serve you well, whether in an organized rescue group or in the possible moment when medical aid is not immediately available. For this is a domestic war, as John Strachey said in "Digging for Mrs. Miller."

"It happens in the kitchen," he said, "on landings, beside washing baskets; it comes to us without our stirring a yard from our own doorsteps to meet it."

We have much evidence from England that the horror of bombing attacks is enormously mitigated by the ability to do something definite. The uncertainty and tension that psychiatrists feared might unnerve the British people were resolved when actual bombing began. The Office of Civilian Defense says in its "Handbook of First Aid," issued for enrolled Civilian Defense workers: "Horror and its kindred sensations are caused by helplessness; when we have the power and knowledge to deal with horror, it disappears. The dark loses its terror, when we turn on the light; a casualty's cries will cease to unnerve you when you have the power to ease the pain that causes them."

The spirit of the British, whose bearing under the punishment they have taken has electrified the world, gives us an example that should go far toward preventing panic if our own turn comes. John Strachey tells us, "It is true and comforting that the reality is never as bad as the fantasy, never as terrifying, never as shattering. That is why the raids, when they came, were such a genuine relief to so many people."

It has been some of the surprises of the war that casualties have been so much fewer than it was anticipated they would be. We have been told over and over how the big London hospitals were cleared early in the hostilities in expectation of many casualties and how they remained comparatively empty. After they recovered from the first impact of the war the British people took the advice of Prime Minister Churchill to make a business of "dwelling under fire, and of having always this additional—not very serious—chance of death added to the ordinary precarious character of human existence."

92 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

Still Building

The keynote of the late 'twenties was a constant improvement in the road's physical plant and the completion of this work extended into the early Depression years. Bridges were re-built, portions of the line were double-tracked, grade separation work was done and heavier rail was laid.

At Birmingham, Ala., for instance, a number of crossings at grade were eliminated and passenger facilities were rearranged. This work was begun in the latter part of 1928 and was completed in April, 1933. Similar work was done at Louisville and in the Cincinnati area during this period.

The line was double-tracked from Winchester to Sinks, Ky., a distance of 56 miles, in 1925-1928 and from Lebanon Junction to Parkston, Ky., 14.1 miles, in 1926 and 1927. Other construction work included the building of a new mechanical coaling station at Muscogee Wharf, Pensacola, completed on November 12, 1927, to replace the one destroyed by the "big blow" of September, 1926; and the building of an annex to the General Office Building at Louisville, completed in February, 1930. The L. & N. also completed its $1,000,000 Sibert Yard and Shops, near Mobile, in October, 1929, and helped build the gigantic $41,000,000 Cincinnati Union Terminal project which was dedicated on March 31, 1933.

The 14-mile C. C. & O. Connection between Chevrolet, Ky., and Hagans, Va., was completed on December 1, 1930, at a cost of over $5,000,000, and created a new route for the movement of coal from the coal fields in Southeastern Kentucky to the Eastern Seaboard and the Carolinas.

The 168-hour week for all-out war production is nothing new to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. It has been operating on an around-the-clock schedule 365 days a year ever since the line was opened to Nashville in October, 1859. The increased production of America's factories and National Defense plants has found the Old Reliable in first-class physical condition for the handling of this traffic, and with a trained personnel equal to any emergency.

Choose Best Diet for Potato Crop

How potato leaves reveal plant food hunger is indicated by above illustrations which show: 1—A healthy growth; 2—The effects of nitrogen deficiency; and 3—Typical signs of potash starvation.

WHETHER feast or famine is to be the result at potato harvest time is an event that can be foretold during the growing season.

Potatoes, like other crops, require a properly balanced ration of plant foods. Their diet should always include nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in greater or lesser amounts.

When any of these elements is lacking, the growing crop shows definite symptoms of distress. To enable the potato grower to detect these signs so that he can apply correctives and provide his soil with adequate plant food, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee has listed these symptoms:

Nitrogen hunger. The young plants are runty and listless. Leaflets lose their healthy green color and take on a pale green or yellowish-green hue. Leaves later show a tendency to "fire" and curl at the edges.

Phosphorus hunger. Plants are spindly and slow growing. Leaves are darker in color. Foliage is crinkly and leaves fail to expand normally.

Potash hunger. Potatoes are heavy potash consumers. Without it they cannot live. With potash deficiency the leaves lose their smooth surface, are undersized and become droopy. Older leaves become yellowish and eventually develop a brown or bronzed color, starting from the tip and edge and gradually affecting the entire leaf. Sometimes the lower leaves dry up.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Quite a few changes are being made on the main stem of Walton —first the Advertiser started it off with our new building, and Aleen Conner moved her insurance business into the other side of our new shop—Frank DeMoisey is moving his electric shop to the place vacated by Aleen, and Taylor's grocery has gone out of business. Time marches on.

The Advertiser backshop is like a public playground some afternoons. One evening recently we had almost as many kids here as were in school.

Mary Rensler was giving me a few pointers on married life one night last week, telling me what married men and women should do for amusement, etc., in order to have a successful marriage. I don't know where she gets all the answers. I don't think it is from experience of her own.

Martha Wilson is doing her part for National Defense by wearing some of those new-styled cotton hose.

I didn't get to see it, but would liked to have—I was informed of George Brittenhelm's slight mishap when he was burning trash in back of his home and happened to catch a leg of his trousers on fire. No damage done, thanks to Mrs. Waldon, Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Stephenson.

When "Foxie" sends presents he has very little to say. When he sent a box of candy to a little "cutie" here in town recently, the card enclosed said, "Words are useless."

Doc Maddox, local tooth-jerker, was slightly embarrassed one nite not long ago, when he came into the restaurant with lipstick smeared all over his face. But he explained to us that is formerly belonged to wifey; Mabel.

And speaking of lipstick, George Heginbotham had a little bit on his face one morning lately, until I spied it, and told him about it. Don't know who that belonged to. Charlie was in town the nite before, so I know it wasn't Ella Mae.

Frank DeMoisey has a new and efficient office gal, in sister Mary. I think Mary has prospects of becoming an important figure in the business world. Mary standing behind one of those good looking radios makes a wonderful advertisement, too.

Don't let anyone ever tell you that Buck Gross can't shake a leg, any time he wants to. I saw him the other nite in a local nitespot. He was truckin' on down.

Yippee!!! Blanche is back from the Lone Star state, and her name is still Brittenhelm too. I saw her soon after her return and she was yelling for her boots and saddle. She did alright too, for a gal who went to Texas—she came back wearing a pin from the Municipal Auditorium in St. Louis. I don't know, but I think she brought a longhorn or two back also. Just the same she has been singing, "Deep In the Heart of Texas" ever since she got home.

I was talking to Pete Johnson the other nite, and he told me he would be leaving for the Army soon. I noticed a finger on his left hand that had the lower joint off, and the remainder stiff. I began to question him to see if he would not be deferred on account of that, but Pete, always ready with a good "crack," told me that he was the kind of a man that the great Uncle wanted one that, when he ran out of ammunition, could use that stiff finger to poke out the eyes of the Japs. We hope you won't have to go Pete, but if you do, we wish you all the luck in the world.

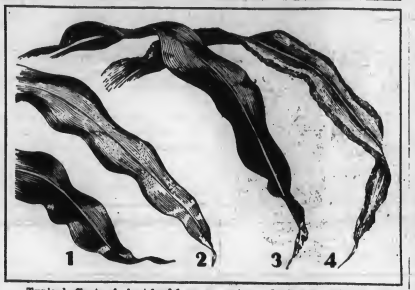
You have been asking for something on myself. Well, for the benefit of those who saw me climbing up a ladder, going into the window of Aleen's washroom—I was trying to do my daily good deed. Aleen had gone outside with the night lock on and left both keys inside. My mission was to try to get the keys so she could go back in and resume her work.

Old Truthful Walker is at it again. I try to never go back on a promise and, I believe that I promised our readers that I would have John Gault's address for you. Here it is: Pvt. John Gault, A. S. N. 15067177, 709 Ordnance Co., A. P. O.-1109, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif. I dare everyone to write him a long newsy letter.

Hunger Signs Reveal Corn's Need for Plant Food

YOUNG corn, like young children, reveals definite hunger symptoms when the diet is lacking in sufficient nourishment. By the time corn is halfway to the "knee-high" stage, these starvation signs are plainly visible to the alert farmer's eye.

Steps can then be taken to correct the condition by applying nitrogen, phosphorus or potash, and the plants restored to healthy, vigorous growth.



Watch out for the following hunger signs once the corn is 8 inches above the ground, says a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. They will tell you whether famine is rampant in your fields.

1—If the corn is stunted and undersized; if the leaves are greenish-yellow or orange-yellow instead of deep green; and if the tip ends are withered, then the plant is starving for nitrogen. A side-dressing of nitrogen fertilizer, applied at the rate of 40 to 50 pounds per acre along the row, will quickly remedy this condition.

2—If the leaves and stem show a tendency to become purplish and if the young corn plant is spindly and unthrifty, then it lacks sufficient phosphorus. Under conditions of severe phosphorus starvation the leaves may show symptoms similar to those resulting from nitrogen deficiency.

3—If the margins and tips of the leaves appear scorched or fired; if growth is slow and the young leaves are yellowish-green or streaked with yellow, then the corn is crying for potash, the balance wheel of plant foods. The remedy is a side-dressing of 150 to 200 pounds of muriate of potash per acre in the row or hill, before the final cultivation.

If a combination of these symptoms appears, a mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash will provide an effective prescription.

Typical effects of plant food hunger, contrasted with normal leaf. No. 1—A healthy corn leaf; No. 2—Nitrogen starvation; No. 3—Phosphorus deficiency, chiefly indicated by a purplish hue, often very noticeable on under side as well as top, and a "firing" of the leaf tip; No. 4—Potash hunger. (See details in story.)

Danger Signals Shown by Legumes When Starvation Menaces Their Life

Above are shown: 1—A healthy soybean leaf; 2—Symptoms of nitrogen starvation; 3—Lack of potash.

LEGUMES that are starving for plant foods reveal their distress by losing their healthy green color and developing white spots around the edges of the leaves that spread over the entire surface. But unlike starvation in human beings, this ailment is much more frequently fatal, for the leaves turn yellow and die.

The three essential plant foods most needed by legumes, as by other crops, are nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

In general, slow growth, smaller plants and reduced yields are the result of nitrogen deficiency.

Phosphorus deficiency causes slow growth, small and under-developed plants.

Of all starvation symptoms noticeable in legumes, those of potash hunger are the most easily recognized. Irregular white dots or mottled patches appear around the leaf edges. These finally merge, forming a continuous yellowish rim around the tip.

Among things to watch in particular species of legumes are the following, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee:

Soybeans. A pale green to yellowish-green color indicates a lack of nitrogen. When potash is urgently needed, a "measles-like" mottling occurs, forming a yellowish band along the sides and tip of the leaf.

Red Clover. Potash hunger starts with a series of yellowish or white dots around the tip and sides of the leaf. The entire margin of the leaf becomes yellowish and then dies as the condition spreads to the center.

Alfalfa. When symptoms appear the plants are in desperate straits for nourishment. In general these follow the trend in other legumes. The discoloration starts as small dots; then it involves the entire leaf margin and is followed by death of the tissue.

Knowledge of Plant Foods Is Aid in Rebuilding Soil

CHEMICAL terms such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potash seem a bit difficult to understand, don't they?

But as a matter of fact, they are no harder to grasp than many other new terms which we of this generation who live on or near farms have had to learn. And once we learn what job each of the three major plant foods performs, then we shall be able to more successfully treat growing crops for plant food hunger signs and rebuild soil fertility.

What are these jobs?

Nitrogen encourages growth, builds protein and develops the fleshy portion of roots and fruits. Phosphorus hastens the ripening of seed and favors early maturity. Potash is the balance wheel, enabling the crop to make better use of the other plant foods. It likewise develops resistance to disease and improves quality.

FARM LABOR LOSS OFFSET BY BETTER SOIL MANAGEMENT

CHICAGO.—As the wartime draft and defense jobs take increasing numbers of hired hands, Midwest farmers are faced with a labor problem and the task of producing heavier crops on fewer acres, a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out.

"Thousands of farmers have already learned that the solution to this problem lies in following an intelligent soil improvement program," the statement declares. "Experience throughout the Middle West has shown that even the most productive areas on the average can be made to yield from 10 to 20 per cent more through careful soil treatment.

"Effective soil improvement comprises a few basic principles. These include crop rotation, the raising of legumes and the use of fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

"Experience has proved that farmers can expect dividends in the form of increased crop yields and crop values when they supply the soil with adequate plant food.

"The type and quantity of fertilizer will depend on a number of factors. The average farmer's knowledge is based largely on experience —not on laboratory research—no matter how long he has tilled the land. But he can turn for advice to his county agent or the agronomists at the state college."

Miss Jean Elizabeth Poston was the Sunday guest of Miss Ruth Aylor.

Seek happiness for its own sake and you will not find it, but seek it for duty and happiness will follow, as the shadow comes with the sunshine. These are the words of the poet Tyron Edwards.

April so far has been casting its shadows and sunshine on us quite bountifully.

Ye scribe has been absent from the weekly items of the vicinity of Bracht for some time on account of severe sickness, but here's hoping she will find a cordial welcome with a few disinterested items in brief.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton spent the weekend at Maysville with Mrs. Walton's parents.

Several from around this vicinity attended the show at Walton Sunday afternoon.

Miss Janett Huff entertained a couple of her girl friends from out of town over the weekend.

E. Huff is adding an additional living quarters to his place of business, which is nearing completion with four or five nicely finished rooms.

Sr. much rain and inclement weather is beginning to get the farmers behind with their spring plowing.

Thomas Sebree is erecting a nice new house on his farm at this place, which is a portion of the old Grandad Sebree farm which he inherited from his father's estate.

Some seem to think the cold, freezing weather has damaged the fruit crop in this community.

There seems to be quite a bit of sickness among our neighbors.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:37-48, 52-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.—Luke 11:23.

Opposition to Christ and to Christian teaching has come down through the centuries practically unchanged. Hence, we find in Christ's dealings with the enemies of His day helpful indication of what may be done in our time.

It is sad to note that the chief opposition came from those who professed to be religious leaders. It is expected that the world, the flesh, and the devil should fight God's truth, but one might expect better of those who profess His name. The difficulty is that there is only profession, with no real life.

I. Hypocrisy Unmasked (vv. 37-44).

The Pharisees professed great interest in the observance of religious laws, but their concern was for the outward appearance, while God judges the heart. First we note a false profession of cleanliness. Christ came to the Pharisees' table with clean hands, but He had not observed all their ceremonial washings. When rebuked He struck home with terrific force at the heart of the whole matter (v. 39); namely, that inward filthiness of heart which often makes folk meticulous about outward cleansing. This leads to a substitution of technical observance of the letter of the law that ignores love and judgment (v. 42), which are so precious to God. There can be a dead, dry, and technical orthodoxy which entirely misses the point.

But worst of all is the covering up of spiritual death (v. 44). Sometimes we speak of those who are "dead and don't know it," and that may actually be true spiritually. There may be death within and yet a brave and sometimes self-deluding outward show of life.

II. Theological Deadness Condemned (vv. 45-52).

The lawyers of that day were those learned in the Mosaic law, hence were really the teachers of theology and ethics. They came under the rebuke of Christ as He pronounced three "woes" upon them.

First, they were guilty of heaping upon others burdensome requirements which they did not themselves keep, and which they did not help the people to keep. There are such teachers today who set up standards they do not themselves observe, a sort of signpost pointing the right way, while they are not themselves going that way. Then there are those who present high ethical standards without the spiritual dynamic needed to live up to them. To tell a man to be good without telling him of the Saviour who can make him good is mockery.

Then, those of Christ's day were condemned for hating God's witnesses. They were willing to build sepulchers for the dead prophets (killed by their fathers), but were not willing to hear the living prophets. How true to life that is! The very ones who hate and hinder those who are preaching God's Word, speak and sing smoothly of the faith of our fathers, and claim as their own the witnesses of a past day.

Christ also pointed out that while professing to interpret the law they obscured its meaning. They threw away the key to knowledge so that neither they nor their people could learn—and yet they continued to teach. Have not the false teachers of our day done likewise? They deny the integrity and authority of the only infallible Word—the Bible; they reject the deity of our Saviour, Christ, and yet they talk about being Christians and preachers of the truth. Woe be unto them in the day of God's judgment and wrath!

What happens when such men are condemned or unmasked? We find—

III. Enmity Intensified (vv. 53, 54).

The scribes and Pharisees had two approaches: they sought vehemently to provoke Him to overspeak, and they craftily laid in wait for Him. The writer of these notes has seen both methods at work in our day. Liberals, or modernists as they are called, profess for the most part to a suave courtesy which makes them speak smoothly and gently about the conservative and orthodox believer or teacher; but if one only has eyes to see, there is often the strong and cruel hand of iron hidden under the velvet glove.

Whatever may be the approach, be assured of this—every effort to reveal false teaching in its true light, or to deal with hypocrisy in spiritual things will bring intensified opposition. Christ took it—we too can take it in His name and for His sake.

Praise the Lord

I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those who condemn his soul.—Psalm 109:30-31.

CONCORD

"Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might."

Stanley Robinson and wife entertained Sunday in honor of his birthday, the following: Rev. G. N. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller and three daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Connley, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Robinson. We are sure they all enjoyed the day together, as well as the good dinner.

We are glad to report Mrs. D. R. Chapman improving. We hope to see her out soon.

Mrs. Lena Speagle has returned home from an extended visit with relatives in Erlanger.

The farmers are quite busy trying to get out their crops. The recent rains made the ground too wet to work for awhile.

Services were well attended at Concord Sunday. We missed Walter Brown and wife. They had the misfortune of being in a wreck, she getting her arm broken, and he badly shaken up.

Several from a distance attended the funeral of L. W. Chapman on Sunday afternoon at Concord.

Floyd Chapman is still in the hospital in Cincinnati. We hear he is improving. Would be glad to see him home soon.

Let's not forget to attend Sunday School. A welcome to all new neighbors.

Leonard Worth Chapman

Leonard Worth Chapman was born near Verona, May 15, 1875 and departed this life April 10, 1942 at the Mary Margaret Hospital, Batesville, Ind., in which state he had resided for the past 16 years. He was 66 years, 10 months and 26 days old at the time of his death. He had been an invalid for a number of years and confined to his bed for the past 3 years. Although his suffering at times was almost beyond human endurance, yet he never once questioned why or lost faith in his Maker. He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, Mrs. Addie Chapman, Sunman, Ind.; a son, Henry Chapman of Cincinnati, O.; two daughters, Mrs. Joy Garvey of Cincinnati and Mrs. Elizabeth Pittman of Norwood, Ohio; two grandchildren; four brothers; three sisters; other relatives and a host of friends, both in Kentucky and Indiana.

Mule Day

Not often in our time is a new tradition made, right under our own eyes. That such can be done proves how deeply dyed we are in folk ways of doing things. Mule Day at Franklin is one of these genuine traditions that have recently come to have even national attention, getting into LIFE MAGAZINE and the news reels. A great motion-picture actress is induced to come and ride the mule crowned as queen, bands from the town and neighboring towns play and march, there is clowning on the part of school boys chosen for the purpose, and Kentucky burgoo is served to all and sundry. And probably not a dozen of the hundreds who participate in any year's program ever dreamed that they were acting a part hallowed by ages of folk customs.

Change the calendar a little, and Franklin's Mule Day in Corpus Christi Day in some English village or town four or five hundred years ago. Since the Church was the center of interest in those times, you might expect it to be in charge, actively or passively. But the Church soon lost its hold on what started as a sacred procession, and the guilds or labor unions took over. The day becomes an occasion for a great splurge by the businesses of the city; the plays, depicting scenes from the Bible, get mixed up with folk elements until Adam and Eve, Samson and Delilah, Noah and his quarrelsome spouse (an addition of the players), ranting Herod, and the rest were just contemporary characters, as real as the boys and men acting the parts. Clowns passed through the crowd, getting off many shady jokes that used to make the circus memorable. There was food to eat, there were numerous extra forms of entertainment, and even the sharper was around, ready to take his toll of gape-mouthed yokels.

The circus as an institution seems to have practically passed, and with it passed a whole series of events that are distinctly folk in flavor. After all, though, the circus was an outside influence, not really typical of the community except in the throngs that attended and made it a great festival. It does me good to see these folk things, like Franklin's Mule Day, coming into increasing popularity, to take the place of the late-lamented circus and to let us know, too, that the folk are neither dead nor sleeping. The old things may not please any more, but we are too basically folk not to be thrilled by Mule Day or a Tobacco Festival or a Cotton Festival or whatever else has grown up as a community business advertisement for distinctive products. Some have felt that there are too many such days, but I believe that every town owes itself a festival of some sort, a twentieth-century version of the mediaeval folk plays.

That such things have possibilities has been illustrated in recent years by the WASHINGTON POST'S annual Folk Festival, held each spring in Washington. Miss Gertrude Knott, formerly of Paducah, started this movement in 1934 and held folk festivals in many parts of the country. The WASHINGTON POST, realizing the advertising value of such an appealing program, took it under its protection. Annually there are dozens of groups of people from every part of America who travel to Washington for this event, to exhibit their songs and dances and folk industries and yarns and other means of entertainment. Indians, lumbermen, Cajuns, Spaniards of New Mexico, cowboys, quaint religious sects, mountaineers from the Appalachians and the Ozarks—the list could be extended indefinitely—live again their folk customs for the thousands who attend. Isn't that a fine thing for us as Americans to do, to show how through our many endowments we are basically one? And Mule Day in our state is just another fine folk custom of recent origin that should be continued for its own sake and for the similar things it may help to bring about.

THE drive to mobilize the nation's man and woman power for more effective use in the war program is gaining momentum here. Officials say that most of the controls that will be necessary can be carried out without legislation—another use to which "priority power" may be put in the near future.

At the present time the labor program includes six points:

1. Establish a Manpower Mobilization Board.
2. Require employers to hire no workers except those certified by the U. S. Employment Service.
3. Organize mobile labor units, which the Board could dispatch anywhere in the country wherever labor bottlenecks appeared.
4. Compel employers to train workers for jobs.
5. Register all men whose employment qualifications are not known as a result of draft questionnaires.
6. Place women in industry throughout the country.

REPORTS received here from the nation's production front indicate that considerable progress is being made in speeding up the output of war materials. According to information from the War Production Board, conversion of the automobile industry is continuing at a rapid clip. Sixteen hundred machines that had been standing idle in Michigan auto factories have been put on war work in the last month. In many instances plants are turning out equipment ahead of schedule, and the rate is constantly picking up.

The same is true in shipbuilding. Ship deliveries, now at the rate of one a day, should be double that figure by May and should reach three a day before the end of the year. The way the situation shapes up now it's possible that 9,000,000 tons of merchant shipping may be completed this year—and that's 1,000,000 tons AHEAD of the goal that the President set for the industry.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

BEHIND the scenes here many of the social reform dreamer boys are hitching their wagons to the war, which has taken the place of the depression as a cover-all excuse for rushing into action with controversial theories about social reforms.

You don't read much about these boys in the papers right now but that doesn't mean that they're not on deck. Many of them are carry-overs from the old WPA days, and to a large extent they are still thinking in terms of conditions that prevailed at that time.

At present some of these men wield priority powers that are needed to speed war production. Through the use of these powers they are able to put whole products out of business. In certain instances such action is necessary to the nation's victory effort, and, when that is the case, even the manufacturers and the employees who are liquidated can see the point.

However, a checkup on the reform boys reveals that many of them have a feeling of responsibility that they should effectuate social reforms through priority power, achieving results in the post-war period.

In addition to that, many of them have a theory that government bureaus should have the power to issue orders that, in effect, are laws. They call this "cutting red tape," and justify their actions by pointing out that their reforms are badly needed.

Even when such reforms are necessary, the feeling among observers here is that ordinarily they should not be decreed at the whim of a government agency that may or may not understand all the facts of the situation. Far from aiding the war effort, such actions only hinder it by creating confusion and uncertainty.

SILVER STAR

The Silver Star is awarded to each person who, while an officer or enlisted man in the Army of the United States is cited for gallantry in action and the citation was published in orders issued from the headquarters of a force commanded by, or which is the appropriate command of a general officer or issued by the War Department, which citation does not warrant the award of the Medal of Honor or Discinguished Service Cross. A bronze star in the center thereof a raised silver star, the center lines of all rays of both stars coinciding. The reverse to have the inscription "For gallantry in action" and a space for the name of the recipient. It is suspended by a silk moire ribbon in stripes of blue, white and red.

This will bring to a close a very profitable year for New Haven, inasmuch as its competent faculty has worked zealously to stress team work as well as brain work, which teaches our children the full meaning of the all-important words of today—Unity and Equality, which will be read in the future, as Peace and Victory for America and the Allied Nations of the world.

SELF-CLEANING HOUSE PAINT developed by DU PONT

Starts brilliantly WHITE

Stays WHITE because it's "Self-Cleaning"

Is easy and fast to apply—has excellent hiding quality

Lasting beauty and protection

DU PONT House Paint keeps white houses white, because this brilliantly white paint is "self-cleaning." It forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot, or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it and exposing a fresh white surface. This self-cleaning process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual dirt-collecting conditions such as found in sooty industrial areas. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Available in light COLORS, too!

The new Du Pont Tru-Tint formula gives you lovely light colors with the same super-value results. Like the white paint, these colors are "self-cleaning." Du Pont House Paint costs no more than other good paints . . . is more economical because it needs fewer repaintings. Next time you paint, ask your painter to use Du Pont House Paint!

COVER CROPS HELP MIDWEST WIN WAR ON SOIL EROSION

CHICAGO.—Cover crops as a weapon for winning the battle of soil erosion are being used at a rate that has increased the area planted to legumes by 9,700,000 acres in seven midwestern states in the past 20 years, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Farmers know that in legumes they have crops that will deposit nitrogen in the soil and add to its supply of organic matter. They are coming to realize, however, that legumes must be reinforced by intelligent soil management such as the use of fertilizers high in phosphorus and potash.

"Legumes require a good diet of phosphorus and potash. If this diet is not provided by fertilization, the legume crops may use up the soil's supply of these two plant foods."

OF INTEREST TO ALL PATRIOTIC CITIZENS

Nearly every person who is severely injured passes into a state of exhaustion known as traumatic shock, which is a signal that the end of life is near; this condition is accompanied by a rapid fall in blood pressure and a collapse of the patient. The treatment of this alarming condition by blood transfusions is now the major problem of military and naval medicine.

The call for dried plasma as an essential medical supply, comparable to surgical dressings and bandages, anesthetics and indispensable drugs, is therefore an urgent need, according to Mrs. James C. Layne, Publicity Chairman of the Boone County Blood Donor's Service.

N. T. ROUSE PASSES IN CINCINNATI LAST THURS.

N. T. Rouse, chief of the Western Power Plant of the Union Light, Heat & Power Co., for the past 35 years, died Thursday at his home in Cincinnati. Mr. Rouse had recovered from pneumonia a short time ago and had been down in the city on Monday. That night he had a stroke from which he did not recover.

He was a native of Butler, and lived in Walton when a young man, as employee of the Southern Railroad. Later he and his wife made their home in Erlanger before moving to Covington. He was a member of the First Methodist Church of Covington. For the past few years he had resided in Cincinnati.

He leaves his widow; a sister, Mrs. M. L. Howe of Dry Ridge; two brothers, Ernest Rouse of Ft. Thomas and Jasper Rouse of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at the M. L. Swetnam Funeral Home, Covington. A large crowd of relatives and friends were gathered at this sad hour to pay their last respects to a most lovable person and a fine christian man. The floral tributes were numerous. He was laid to rest in Spring Grove Cemetery in Cincinnati.

James W. Dunn, 75, well known retired farmer of Mt. Zion, died April 16 at his home after several months' illness. He was born in Cordova, Grant County, and had also resided in Dry Ridge.

His only child, Hobart Dunn, was killed in a train accident March 3rd in Buffalo, N. Y. Besides his widow, Mrs. Pearl Franks Dunn, he leaves six nieces and five nephews.

He was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. at Dry Ridge and Ky. Council No. 63, Daughters of America, and was a deacon of the Dry Ridge Christian Church.

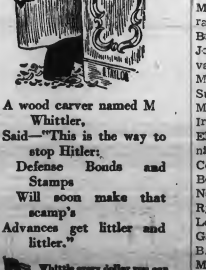
Reds Open Long Home Stand Sat.

When the Cincinnati Reds return to their home lot on Saturday, April 25 to open a long home stand their first opponents will be Jimmy Wilson's Chicago Cubs. This set of games against Jimmy's men will take in Saturday, Sunday and Monday, whereupon the fireworks will open up. The biggest explosion is set for Tuesday, April 28 when the Dodgers enter Crosley Field for the first of a three-game series that will stretch through April 29 and 30.



The Phils will follow the Dodgers for two games, then will come the vastly improved New York Giants for games Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 3-4-5.

Bill McKechnie is very optimistic about the prospects of his Cincinnati ball club this season, mainly because he feels he still has the nucleus of a great team in his pitching, and because he believes the remainder of the club has been strengthened by the addition of Gerald Walker, Bert Haas and Rollie Hemsley. These three fellows are aggressive ball players, and Walker and Haas will add plenty to the team's sock. Hemsley is rated as one of the finest catchers in the business, and while he is not a prolific hitter, he is a fellow who comes through with the base hit when it is needed most.

It begins to look like the Reds will be a colorful outfit, what with this aggressiveness added to that of Goodman; Joost; Frey; Mike and Frank McCormick, etc. It will be a ball club of speed too.

Tickets for all of the Reds' home games for the remainder of the season are now available at the downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street in Cincinnati. Mail orders receive prompt attention.

Hybrid Seed Corn Pays $1.63 Per Bu.

Boone County farmers, based on last year's demonstration yields, should receive $163.50 extra for each bushel of adapted hybrid corn seed used in 1942, according to County Agent Forkner. Last year in the weighed demonstration yields, adapted hybrids produced an average of 19 more bushels of corn per acre than the commonly used open pollinated varieties.

The above figures are based on the following factor: Last year's yields, corn at $1 per bushel; a bushel of hybrid seed planting an average of 9 acres, and a 19 bushel per acre increased yield. It should be remembered that the unfavorable weather of last year made hybrid vigor give outstanding yield differences. Under more favorable weather conditions the average increased yield would be much less.

The most important lesson to learn from last year's work is that a few of the better adapted varieties gave more outstanding yields than other varieties. A few of the less adapted hybrids gave no appreciable increase.

To date the best adapted varieties of yellow field corn for this county are U. S. 13; Ky. 102, and Ky. 103. The best white varieties are Ky. 69, 72B and 201.

The seed for the best adapted varieties is available from growers in Boone County who have made a study of those varieties most adapted to our local conditions and are closely following the hybrid corn program to see that this county receives only those best adapted varieties. Farmers who will plant corn this year can not afford to plant any seed other than adapted Boone County varieties.

Characteristics of yellow hybrid adapted are: U. S. is the earliest, softest and lowest growing; Ky. 102 is the latest, hardest and tallest, and Ky. 105 is intermediate.

U. S. 13 is especially adapted where early maturity is desired; Ky. 102 and 103 produce more stover and equally as much grain, and will probably produce well further south than U. S. 13. Ky. 103 in rapidly increasing in popularity.

There is little difference in the adapted white hybrid yields. Kentucky 201 is the largest eared, rankish growing latest maturing variety.

Boone farmers are cautioned again to be careful about the seed they use. Farmers as a whole have been convinced of the value of hybrid seed. Hybrid seed is expensive and adapted hybrids will always demand a premium price. Because of local interest, many foreign seed companies are selling seed that may not be adapted to local conditions and as a result, may discourage farmers from future improvement work. Use only Kentucky Adapted Certified Seed.

by JAMES PRESTON

DURING the next few months civilians all over the country are going to feel the impact of war more strongly than ever before. Shortages like those that have already occurred in many lines of consumer goods are going to increase, and increase rapidly, according to officials here, as more and more industries change over to the grim and sober business of full-time war production.

The experts say that an acute metal shortage is rapidly developing on the production front. It's bound to cut still further the amount of metals now available for the manufacture of many of the articles that are regarded as necessities in peace-time. Army and Navy estimates for the current war program indicate that military demand alone exceeds the supply of many metals.

This month five industries — laundry equipment, radios and phonographs, electric refrigeration, vending machines and vacuum cleaners—are going to stop making civilian goods. No lawnmowers except those used to harvest crops may be turned out after June 30. Iron and steel used in making beds, bedsprings and mattresses have already been curtailed from 15 to 60 percent. Iron, steel and zinc used in manufacturing scores of kitchen and household articles will be cut up to 50 percent, beginning June 30.

These reductions are only a few of the many that are coming, but they indicate what's happening, and what's going to happen in the future, as industry continues to concentrate on war production.

WPB and OPA officials are frankly worried over the possibility of "panic buying" as a result of these scarcities. They realize that something must be done to prevent runs on stores by anxious consumers, but so far no one has come up with a workable solution to the problem.

RIGHT now many staunch Administration supporters are urging the President to issue an executive order instructing the government agencies involved to develop and execute a coordinated policy that would put an overall blanket on wages, profits and prices to replace the present "piecemeal" method of dealing with these problems.

Officials who are sponsoring the plan contend that it would eliminate the continued demand for wage increases on the part of labor. When such increases were given, they would be paid in Government bonds.

AS men and women throughout the country become more and more aware of the fact that "this is war." Congress can look forward to a closer check on its actions by the folks back home. The recent flood of mail about the 40-hour week is only the beginning, according to many observers here who remember other national crisis that aroused a letter-writing mood in John Does all over the nation.

Although the truce in the bitter controversy over labor legislation is scheduled to last until April 20 opposing camps are still maneuvering behind the scenes. What the outcome will be no one can predict at the moment, for the situation changes from day to day. This much is certain, however. Letters from the folks back home demand that something be done, and done quickly, to guarantee maximum cooperation in the victory production drive.

As Donald Nelson said the other day, "we have but little time." General opinion here is that leading industrialists already realize this and are acting accordingly.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The full meaning of war is rapidly becoming clear to many Americans. Last week the War Production Board ordered a drastic curtailment of production or a complete shutdown of a score of industries that up to now have made life more comfortable for the average citizen.

The use of metal in garment hangers, vegetable bins, curtain rods, soap dishes, sink and dish drainers, carpet beaters, towel bars and fly swatters has been banned after July 1. The production of toasters, percolators, flat irons, waffle irons and electric shavers is cut after May 31. The production of vacuum cleaners and mechanical refrigerators is to stop April 30 while April 23 puts an end to the production of radios for public use. Lawn mower production for non-farm use stops on June 20, and the output of washing machines for civilian use will end April 15. The sale of bicycles to adults has already been halted. When we add this list to the already large list of commodities which have been banned for general public use (automobiles, tires, etc.) we can readily see that life cannot go on as usual.

Retailers who handle these items are going to be seriously affected. It is estimated that the sales of consumers' durable goods (refrigerators, washing machines, radios etc.) will drop from the high of nearly 15 billion dollars in 1941 to around 9 billion dollars in 1942 or 42%. This simply means that some retailers must take on additional lines of goods or be prepared to suffer through a long period of hard times.

What can they do? Well, they might consider adding a line of non-durable consumer goods (groceries, dry goods, shoes or clothing etc.) for the estimated sales volume of these articles will jump from about 39 billion dollars in 1941 to nearly 45 billion dollars in 1942 or about 15%.

Unusual times call for unusual action. What's wrong with a hardware dealer who has a store room, delivery and store equipment, and a sales staff adding a line of groceries, dry goods, dry goods, shoes or clothing? It may mean the difference between keeping the doors open or closing down a business. Adjustments in business and in life are coming. They will be severe; now is the time to prepare for them.

This Week on The Home Front

Registrars for sugar rationing are getting 56 pages in instructions They go to state and county administrators, local rationing boards and county and city superintendents of schools, and school-site administrators and registrars —two million for the country.

Registration for wholesalers, retailers, industrial and institutional user swill start April 28. On April 28 and 29 this group will register in the nation's high schools. These applications are now obtainable through local rationing boards.

Consumer registration takes place in the elementary schools on May 4-6, and will be handled by 1,250,000 teachers under supervision of the "school-site administrators" who will usually be the principals. Individuals will get a half a pound a week.

Phonograph and radio transcription records are now hit by a WPB restriction order. Their production is cut to 30% of the 1941 figure. Shellac used to make them comes only from India now blocked by war. Military production makes heavy use of shellac, as well as certain necessary civilian production.

Cartoonists and jokesters had a field day lampooning the wartime clothing styles for men, but they didn't stick closely enough to the facts. In general, men's clothing will be more conservative, hard weaves will be out and softer fabrics utilizing reprocessed wool, but nevertheless good looking and serviceable, will be plentiful. The color range will be restricted. This is the lowdown from the Office of Price Administration.

You may never have heard of rotenone, but if you are a farmer or trucker you've used it. It goes in delousing powders for domestic animals, and spray for food crops. It comes from Malaya and the East Indies, and now its scarce—you know why. WPB Conservation order restricts its use to delousing and food crops except cranberries, eggplant, onions and peppers and sweetcorn. Household use is prohibited.

Buttons, hooks-and-eyes and snaps, good enough for everybody a few wyears ago are now enlisted for war service. Zinc and steel for zipping is cut, and first quality zippers are reserved for military and work clothing. Copper is banned for these items. New supply will be susceptible to rust and must have more care.

To conserve supply of critical iron and steel (and also fuel oil) manufacturer of oil burners and coal stokers for residences will be stopped after May 31. The stoker order will save 80,000 tons of iron and steel and 142,000 sets of motors and controls, while the oil burner order saves 12,000 tons of iron and steel and 211,000 sets of controls and motors. It is estimated there will be 65,000 new coal stokers and 120,000 oil burners on hand when manufacture ceases.

OPA will "liberalize" automobile rationing. The rationed cars move too slowly. Rolf Nugent, Chief of Auto Rationing Section, said: "The slow movement of passenger automobiles under the rationing order is being blamed upon the rationing boards. This is highly unfair. These boards — have done a remarkable job — and they are entitled to the thanks of everyone. It is their duty to adhere strictly to the provisions of the rationing order, and if these provisions are too strict, it is the responsibility of Washington — not the local boards to liberalize them — An amendment designed to liberalize the order is being prepared."

Delivery of plumbing and heating equipment is frozen by War Production Board.

From now on it is going to be harder to purchase many household and kitchen utensils of the same quality and material to which we have been accustomed. WPB has restricted use of iron, steel and zinc in their manufacture. Three groups of articles are affected: (1) Pots, pans and cooking utensils using much metal: iron and steel cut 10%; (2) Secondary articles such as garbage cans, galvanized tubs and pails, can-openers: iron and steel cut 30%, zinc cut 50%; (3) Non-essentials like flyswatters, curtain rods, cake coolers and clothes pins and such gadgets; all three metals cut 50%.

Emergency war agencies are cracking down on chislers and cheaters — In Boonville, Ind., two officers of a motor sales company face possible $10,000 fines and 10 years imprisonment for violating tire rationing — Walleck Brass Co. of Cleveland and Aluminum Bronze Powder Co. of Bedford, Ohio are forbidden to use the metal three months for violating priorities orders — Mills Novelty Co. of Chicago, slot machine makers violated priority regulations and can't get material till July 10, after illegally diverting critical metals, from the war program.

Donald M. Nelson, WPB Chairman, encourages vacations for workers. He asks management to use its ingenuity so that absenses will not interrupt production. He suggests: (1) spread vacations over the year, (2) additional overtime for workers not vacationing, (3) special training for substitutes—doing work ahead in departments affected. His reason: "Experience here and abroad is indicating that the worker, even when stimulated by urgency of the allied war situation, cannot work long hours and maintain peak output indefinitely — some rest period this year is going to prove doubly effective in the restoration of his energy and determination."

Ten companies having millions of dollars in war contracts are directed to cease discriminating against available workers because of race and religion in "findsings and directions" of the Presidents Committee on Fair Employment Pricitce. Several of the companies in help-wanted ads has specified "Gentile" or 'Protestant" or White. Companies are directed to cease giving employment agencies such discriminatory specifications, and are required to file a monthly report to show non-discrimination.

Typewriter rationing went into effect April 20. The rationing will make available an estimated 100,000 new machines, mostly portables, now frozen with distributors, wholesalers and dealers, as well as approximately 750,000 office-sized used typewriters. All machines in production and now held by manufacturers are still "frozen."

WPB stopped all production of medium and heavy trucks for civilian use after existing quotas are completed. Rubber shortage, the main reason. Medium truck assembly lines stop April 30 and the heavies May 31.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes slip in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

If Air Raids Come

By GEO. BAEHR, M. D.,
The Chief Medical Officer,
Office of Civilian Defense

(Concluded from Last Week)

Ever since the last war there has been a lurking fear that someday there would be a war in which poison gases would spread horror and death. It is one of the strange facts of the present holocaust that gas has not been used. Authorities are neglecting no opportunities for preparedness, however, and much effort is being expended in the study of gases and measures to prevent or minimize their effects. Since much of the terror engendered by the thought of poison gas arises from lack of knowledge, a brief outline of the types of gases may be of interest here. Your first aid course will doubtless include a lesson on the subject.

Some gases are not dangerous to life, although their effects may be temporarily alarming. Their importance in warfare lies in the fact that they may render troops or civilians helpless for a time, permitting some more deadly attack to be launched while no one is able to combat it. Gas may also be used to demoralize workers in vital industrial plants, hindering essential production.

The gases with temporary effects are tear gases and sneezing gases. The dangerous ones are those which damage the lungs, such as prosgene, which many will remember as having been introduced during World War I, and the "blister" gases, of which mustard and lewisite are best known.

The blister gases are dangerous in several ways. Their action may be delayed as much as 24 hours, but a victim must be treated immediately after exposure if he is to be saved from intense suffering and possible death. Even if the person who has been exposed insists that he feels normal, he must have medical care. Not only may the effects of the blister gases be delayed, but the gases themselves may cling to clothing and other objects and may even remain on the ground for long periods. These substances, which may be vapor, liquid, or solid, even though usually called gases, will burn any part of the body with which they come in contact; their vapors will burn the eyes, the membrane lining the respiratory tract, and the skin. The liquid produces severe burns on the skin.

The axiom that defense always catches up with offense in warfare applies to medical care of war injuries as well as it does to military measures. Students of chemical care of war injuries as well as it does to military measures. Students of chemical-war injuries have learned much about coping with them. They know, for instance, that the victim of tear gas should not have his eyes bandaged, and that irrigation with soda water will help bring relief. They know that flushing the nose and throat with soda water will usually relieve the effects of sneezing gases, which cause violent symptoms, including mental depression.

A person who has been exposed to one of the choking or lung-damaging gases must have absolute rest, even though he insists that he feels well. Treatment that will neutralize the effects of the bliser gases if applied in time has been worked out so that even a "first-aider" can give it if he has had good training.

Besides direct physical injury by gas attacks, there is another danger. It lies in the contamination of food supplies by poison gas. Special attention should be given to protective measures, experts advise. Foods should never be left exposed in the open if there is danger of a gas attack; if they cannot be placed under shelter, tarpaulins or oilskin sheets can be used. If there is even suspicion that any food, in large or small quantities, has been exposed to air or other materials contaminated with poison gas or to the liquid forms of these poisons, the proper authorities should be notified immediately. Even food that is in a container such as a sack, a box, or a can should be examined by a specially qualified person, as the containers themselves may be dangerous to handle.

Related to the burns caused by gases are those produced by another form of chemical warfare, the release of phosphorus in the explosion of incendiary bombs. When these bombs explode, anyone within range of the flying particles of phosphorus may be burned. Since phosphorus burns in air, it keeps on burning on the skin until the particles are removed. After they have been removed treatment can be begun for the burns.

A vital factor in protecting the lives and health of citizens in wartime includes the maintenance of safe water supplies. Water-purification plants and sewerage systems are particularly vulnerable to enemy attack. Hong Kong fell because its water supply was destroyed.

"Important reservoirs fell into Japanese hands. Water mains were destroyed by bombardment. The public-works department struggled bravely to effect a remedy, but the enemy destroyed the pipes again and again," said the British announcement of the city's fall.

To meet such an emergency as this in an American city, as well as to protect the population against contaminated water that might start epidemics of typhoid and dysentery, the Medical Division of the Office of Civilian Defense has an engineering section working through State Defense Councils with State health departments. Sanitary engineers of the U. S. Public Health Service have been detailed to this work and are constantly advising with local officials.

The Medical Division has many other tasks arising out of various phases of its work of providing protection in case of belligerent action. It has prepared a bulletin instructing hospitals how to protect themselves and their patients as far as possible from damage during air raids. In this the division's special subcommittee has been advised at every step by a British medical official brought to this country by the Rockefeller Foundation.

The development in recent years of methods of preserving blood, still more recently of ways to separate blood plasma and serum, and even of drying blaad, has made transfusion a regular part of treatment in many conditions instead of a dramatic last resort in desperate cases. The term "blood bank" is now familiar to everyone.

Many months ago the American Red Cross began collecting blood to be processed into the various forms for use in the U. S. Army and Navy. Now the authorities in charge of medical civilian defense are encouraging hospitals to make similar collections for use in the case of civilian casualties.

Here is an opportunity for every healthy person to make a vital and greatly needed contribution to civilian defense. The procedure is simple. The donor drops into a hospital at his convenience; his arm gets a touch of iodine; a needle attached to a syringe is inserted into a vein, and he feels a prick for an instant. After a pint or so of blood has been withdrawn the donor rests half an hour, eats a good meal, and goes his way.

Since the way was found to preserve blood, many hospitals have adopted the custom of asking relatives and friends of any person who has a transfusion to contribute to the blood bank. The days of hurried searching for a donor are probably over. A transfusion with plasma or serum may now be given without regard to blood groups. Thus hospitals can in this hour of peril build up a lifesaving reserve within a few months if citizens will volunteer. Not only can a large "bank" reserve be built up, but it can be maintained, because a healthy person can give blood repeatedly at intervals of a few weeks with no ill effects whatever.

This is not a war of armies alone; it is a war of whole populations. It behooves the American people, therefore, to learn how to protect themselves.

Walkin' Roun' With Walker

by 'Buddy' Walker

Mrs. Lucy Breeden told me the other night she always liked to go to bed to read the Advertiser. I wonder if she still does, or if that was just while the basketball season was going on.

—o—

If you have noticed how stuck up Katy has been the past week or two, think nothing of it. We missed a bottle of paste last week and I am inclined to think he ate it.

—o—

I have been asked a number of times and by various people what the (V.) in my name stood for. It could be (vicious) if I were mean; (victorious) if I should win; (valedictorian) if I were smart enough; (vacant) when I'm empty; (vagrant) when I'm broke; (value) if I were worth it, or (varmint) when I feel like it. But none of them ARE the right one. It means (Vance), a name my mother evidently found in a secluded spot in the dictionary.

—o—

I saw Spud Rice the other day doing his part to lick the snakes that make up the Axis. He had a Defense Bond—something we all should have.

—o—

Someone asked Art Kent the other day what he thought about (Shakespeare). Art said he liked (Shakes Beer) as well as anyone else's—if it were free.

—o—

I am sure Spring is getting near now. I saw Rollie and (Gentleman Jim) Cleek the other day with their fishing rods and the rest of the necessary equipment, heading for the lake. I never did get to find out the outcome of their trip, but I would think that if there were any fish there, they would be the two that would bring them back.

—o—

I met (Frenchy) DeMoisey the other day for the first time, and he is all that I have heard he was, even to size. Mrs. Johnny told me he was her (little boy). He may be, but if he is, I want to see the big one.

—o—

I made a mistake last week in one of my articles, and probably never would have known it, had it not been for Ella Mae Chambers. Charley had gone back, so it was her that made George's face so red (with lipstick).

—o—

Heard one man say that men get married to evade the draft and within 6 months volunteer for the army to evade the mother-in-law. There may be something to that after all.

—o—

Only two more weeks of school, after this week—and to think that less than ten years ago everyone felt sorry for hapless high school and college graduates, who didn't have one chance in 10,000 of landing a good job. Now they can go into war industries overnight and make more money in a week than they would have been paid in six months in the CCC or NYA.

—o—

A tip to the penny wise. Don't ever match for drinks with (Robin) Brugh, our good natured cop. That is, of course, if you don't want to have to pay for them. He wins every time. I think Buck Gross was his latest victim.

—o—

It might be called carlessness or it might be called something else, when you lock yourself out once—but when you do it twice in as many days—what do you call it? I am referring to Aleen, our closest neighbor, who for the second time in a week has locked the door from the outside with a night lock and left both keys inside. She is playing safe now, however, she has entrusted a key with us so she will have one to get in with the next time such a thing occurs.

I gave Simpson, what I would call a (mild) cigar the other day. He said it was pretty mild too, but the only reason he did was to be sociable. After a couple of puffs I noticed him heading for the water.

Whew!!! have you noticed the cute little gal who has been visiting the (Fats) Kendalls. Katy sure did. He even talked her into extending her visit a couple extra days.

Mrs. DeMoisey should have, and probably did, feel honored the other night at the mother and daughter banquet held at the Methodist Church. She was called on to be toastmistress, after Olive Kackley, WCKY commentator, didn't show up. I've been told Mrs Johnny did mighty well too.

W. B. Johnson was in the office the other day and he wanted to know if I were the one who wrote the (crazy) stuff for the Advertiser. I held my tongue and thanked him for the compliment.

At last Ernestine is happy. Her Navy man is home for a spell. I think he told me he would be here 10days. Deaton looks pretty good too in that blue (suit) of his.
